Prince County Report Merits Study-Shaw

Premier Walter R. Shaw yesterday expressed the hope that resource development groups, town councils, village commissioners "and leaders in general" will study and make use of the Prince County physical aspects report recently presented to government by the consulting firm of A. Habberstad Canada Limited.

"I feel," he said, "that making use of the report is vital. There has been too much time over the years devoted to studies, surveys and accumulation and data which, in many cases, has not gone very much farther than high level offices."

Premier Shaw said he was "very impressed" with the Habberstad report. He said "it is a very satisfactory survey that outlines investigations of such things as population, fisheries, harbors, transportation, education and agriculture. There is also a very fine outline covering conditions in different centres of the county.

"The report is so prepared that the smaller communities will have the advantage of studying their own areas without spending too much time on other areas. It is also divided in such a way that problems of industry, fisheries, agriculture and transportation are separated so they may each be studied."

Premier Shaw said that he hopes in the months ahead the report will be well studied by the areas covered. He said "people must be informed before effective action can be taken. It is the plan of the government to assist in every way and copies of the report will be placed in the hands of government members, and the extension staffs of various government departments and every effort will be made to make the provisions of the report common knowledge among the people of the province. I feel that this is vital."

Prince Co. Moss Plant To Test New Methods

CAPITAL BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

OTTAWA — The federal department of fisheries will build and operate for the first three years a $100,000 experimental Irish moss plant in Prince County.

Solicitor General J. Watson MacNaught said the government has decided to build the plant on recommendation of the Atlantic Development Board. He said tenders will be called as soon as plant plans and specifications are prepared and a site is chosen.

According to Mr. MacNaught, the department of fisheries will operate the plant for three years after which it is hoped that an organization of moss growers will operate the plant on a co-operative basis.

He said the department will turn the plant over to an organized group without charge.

In the three-year operation of the plant by the fisheries department, experiments of new techniques of moss washing and drying will take place.

STORING EXPERIMENTS

According to Mr. MacNaught, moss storing experiments will be carried out also. At present moss storage facilities do not exist and local gatherers have to sell at New Brunswick prices.

Instead of gatherers drying moss themselves, the drying will be done at the plant. The plant will keep a portion of the moss and sell the balance. A mechanical dryer, now on the market, will be used initially but the department is developing a new dryer.

Mr. MacNaught said he was confident the plant will be an economic boost to Prince County.

Accident Victim Dies In Hospital

SUMMERSIDE — Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Arsenault, 73, of Summerside, died yesterday morning about 3.30 after sustaining injuries the day before when she was struck by a car on Notre Dame Street in Summerside while returning from a bingo game in the Legion Home.

She had been taken by ambulance from the scene of the accident to Prince County Hospital about 10.45 Thursday night.

Prince County coroner Dr. Melvin Clark, from Kensington, ordered an inquest. Jurymen were sworn in yesterday morning and viewed the remains at the hospital.

Police said that traffic was heavy around the time when Ronald Joseph Paul Skien, who is stationed with the airforce at Summerside, struck Mrs. Arsenault with his car.

The jurymen are: Peter White, foreman; Jack Schurman, Heath Warren, Bud Mountain, Ben Champion, Jack Balcom and Allen Warren, all of Summerside.

Surviving are one adopted daughter, Mrs. Helen Hagerty of Boston, two sisters, Mrs. John Heckbert of Summerside and Mrs. Mary A. DesRoches of Toronto; and one brother, Louis, in Cape Breton.

Unique Oyster Hatchery Opens Next Saturday

Federal and provincial government officials and other guests will tour the station following the ceremonies, scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

The hatchery, which has been termed unique in this country, is designed for experiments with the production of disease-free oyster spawn under artificial conditions.

to be interested in big-game animals, he felt.

He feels also that migratory birds, which in his words play a large part as "bait" for the important tourist industry, face possible complete destruction without measures of preservation.

He said no details for any duck-stamp—a federal migratory game bird hunting license —had been worked out, pending discussion of the principle. About $600,000 he estimated as the possible additional revenue from federal implementation of such a measure.

Bird hunting licenses are now sold individually by the provinces. Any duck stamp would cost above and beyond this original license, and Mr. Laing felt that sportsmen would be prepared to pay the extra charge if they had confidence in the preservation plan.

WHOOPING CRANES

Canadian and American scientists outlined an international plan for swelling the numbers of the rare whooping crane well into the three-figure bracket.

Associate director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Bureau Lansing Parker and E. L. Stevens, chief of Canadian Wildlife Services Western Region outlined their program at the conference.

The plan involves primarily the use of artificial hatching techniques rather than letting the birds do it themselves' in the difficult conditions of the wilds.

After experimenting and improving their techniques through the plentiful sandhill cranes, they feel that they are ready next year to try hatching the eggs man's way. There are three or four known nests where they feel that they can find the eggs; once the eggs are in hand they will be rushed to Monta Vista National Wildlife Refuge in Colorado for the hatching.

The next should yield six or eight eggs next year, and the Wildlife scientists feel that they will be able to hatch 25 or 30 eggs during the next few years.

Mr. Stevens hoped the program would eventually reach the stage where about 100 whoopers a year will be added to the known stock each year, and eventually some could be put back in the wilds.

The only known wild whoopers number about 32 in one flock, and the level has held steady there for several years.

Cyprus Force Likely To Remain 3 More Months

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Extension of the UN Cyprus force for another three months was virtually assured Friday as the countries most directly concerned agreed its presence was necessary to prevent a worsening of the situation.

Britain and Greece disclosed their agreement during a debate in the 11-nation security council which had received the assent of the other two main parties — Cyprus and Turkey—Thursday night.

Brazil, meanwhile, formally introduced a five-nation resolution to keep the 6,400 - man force in Cyprus. The force originally became operative last March 27 and its three-month mandate will expire June 27 unless it is extended.
