IT IS THE FACT, Think as You Please

It is not generally known, but it is a fact readily proven by the investigations of science, that the real danger from every known ailment of mankind is caused by inflammation; cure the inflammation and you have conquered the disease in each case. Inflammation is manifested outwardly by redness, swelling and heat; inwardly by congestion of the blood vessels and growth of unsound tissue, causing pain and disease.

INFLAMMATION

External inflammation accompanies bruises, bites, cuts, stings, burns, scalds, chaps, cracks, strains, sprains, fractures, etc., and is the chief danger therefrom. Internal inflammation frequently causes outward swellings; as instances familiar to all we mention pimples, toothache, stiff joints and rheumatism. Yet the great majority of internal inflammations make no outside show, for which reason they are often more dangerous than the external forms.

Causes Every Known Disease!

Inflammation of the nervous system embraces the brain, spine, bones and muscles. The breathing organs have many forms of inflammatory troubles. The vital organs form one complete plan mutually dependent; therefore inflammation anywhere is felt more or less everywhere, and impairs the health. The late Dr. A. Johnson, an old fashioned Family Physician, originated JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT, in 1810, to relieve pain and cure every form of inflammation. It is today the Universal Household Remedy.

Send us at once your name and address, and we will send you free, our New Illustrated Book, "TREATMENT FOR DISEASES," caused by inflammation. I. S. JOHNSON & Co., Boston, Mass.

AN EXPERIMENT IN LIBERTY.

"Well Amy, this is a pleasant surprise!"

"Ditto, dear old Gladys. Fancy our meeting here, too, of all the places in the world!"

"Yes; but we always had a spice of independence in our respective compositions. So our both happening to join this club was nothing so very improbable, after all. Are you living in town?"

"Yes; my husband is at the Bar, you know."

"Ah! I was very interested to read the announcement of your marriage in the papers. You always used to say that you would never marry—if you remember."

"So did you. And yet you lost no time in following my example, it seems."

"True; I was like the man in the 'Honeymoon,' my dear:—

'I made a very silly vow
But was not quite so foolish as to keep it.'"

"Do you find matrimony agree with you?"

"Oh, yes; capitally. I go my own way a bit, of course. I'm not an absolute slave to my husband."

"No more am I. I put down my foot from the first. Robert was inclined to be absurdly exacting."

"Did he make a fuss about your joining this club?"

"Rather! But I insisted on having my own way. Did your husband raise objections?"

"Plenty. However, I overruled them all."

"That's right. In fact, it strikes me, Gladys, that though we are both married, we are, nevertheless, doing full credit to our early principles."

"Just so. After all, the being married or not married is a mere detail. It is the being free, or not free, that really matters."

"And if one was not married, one could not belong to this very excellent club?"

"No. And what a miss that would be! Oh, thank goodness! Here comes our luncheon."

The two ladies engaged in the above dialogue were seated at a small table in the dining salon of the Aspasia Club. Everybody has eard of this institution, which is one of the newest and most successful of ladies' clubs in London. It was especially founded to encourage and foster the freedom of married women; and so matrons only are eligible for election. Its motto is descriptive and characteristic: "Liberty, Equality, Maternity." And the principles which it upholds are the most advanced principles of wifely emancipation. Nor are these principles a mere matter of words—a simple question of theory. The conditions of membership are stringent, and are rigidly enforced. The founders of the club had no belief whatever in faith without works. They required the members of the Aspasia to show their faith by their works—to act, not merely to subscribe to, their creed of emancipation.

Pursuant to this requirement each member agreed to perform at least once in the month some decided act of wifely independence; and such act she was obliged to record in a book of blank forms—provided by the club for the purpose—and at the month's end to send in her form to the secretary, duly signed and filled in with particulars. If the secretary did not consider that the act, or acts, recorded were sufficiently assertive of wifely liberty, she submitted the form to the committee, who, if not satisfied, would call upon the defaulting member for an explanation. It will thus be seen that a very strict eye was kept by the Aspasia upon its members.

"How long have you been a member of the club, Gladys?" her friend inquired, as they discussed their luncheon.

"Only a fortnight, dear. How long have you?"

"Rather less than a month."

"And have you done your first task, as enjoined by the regulations?"

"Well—yes; I did it only last evening."

"And what form did it take, dear?"

"I went alone to the Indian Exhibition after dinner."

"By the piper, Gladys (expletives were rather encouraged than otherwise in the Aspasia Club), what a very extraordinary thing." Amy exclaimed, with a half laugh. "It just shows what kindred spirits you and I are. I did my task only three nights ago; and I went alone to the Indian Exhibition after dinner."

"You don't say so. And how did you get on?"

Amy hesitated a minute, and looked rather embarrassed.

"I—I—" she began. "At least—well, I may as well confess to you, Gladys my—my—visit resulted in a rather unfortunate occurrence."

"What was that?" inquired her friend, looking interested.

"Why—why—" said Amy, lowering her voice, "I was quite alone, you see, and—and—"

"Yes? yes?"

"I—I—didn't know my way about very well, and—and—I happened to ask a—a— gentlemen if he would kindly direct me to Elysium. He said that he was going in that direction himself, and that he would act as my guide. He—he—was quite a gentleman, and seemed very agreeable and—and—nice looking. And—and—I could not very well refuse his civil offer."

"Go on—go on," interjected Gladys eagerly.

"W-w-well, he walked by my side as far as Elysium, and was most polite and pleasant. I—I—couldn't very well help talking to him was—"

"Of course not. But what happened? I am dying to hear."

"He—he—kept with me for quite a long time; and he was really very nice looking and amusing, and I had found it rather slow by myself, and—and—altogether I saw no harm."

"Why should you, my dear? But how did it end?"

"We—we—strolled about Elysium for nearly an hour, and—well, then he said he must be going. He—he—began to—to—talk dr-dreadful non-nonsense then; said he'd never appreciated the name Elysium before, and as he wished me good night, he put his arm around my waist, and—oh, Gladys!—he—he—kissed me."

Amy spoke almost in a whisper. Her cheeks were the color of a geranium.

"What cheek of him!" ejaculated Gladys, whose face gave the impression that she was full of a certain suppressed excitement. "And yet," she added, "it will look very well in the report, especially the kiss."

"I—I—it may have been weak of me, but—but—I didn't put the kiss in the report," faltered Amy.

"Look here," exclaimed Gladys, with great eagerness. "This is a most extraordinary thing. It is the most extraordinary thing I have ever heard of. I may as well tell you—I myself had a—a—very similar experience when I went alone to the Indian Exhibition. A—a strange man got into conversation with me. He was very nice looking and agreeable, and—and—it ended the same way as your experience did."

"Did he kiss you?"

Gladys nodded.

"And was your man fair, with blue eyes and a flaxen mustache?"

"No, dark and clean shaved."

"Ah, then it wasn't the same. But what an extraordinary coincidence!"

"Most extraordinary. It only shows what these men are."

"Yes, the wretches. And—and—did you put down the kiss in your report?"

"N-no. I was like you, my dear. I thought it read sufficiently strong without. But—but—something worse happened to me, Amy. If my experience had—had—ended where yours did, I should not so much mind. Some one saw my man kiss me!"

"Oh, how dreadful! Who was it?"

"The last person I could have wished to do so, except my husband. One of my own domestics."

"I say! How did that happen?"

"Well, it chanced to be the cook's evening out, and by the most unlucky coincidence in the world she was spending it at the Indian Exhibition with her young man. I—I—was not aware at the time that she had witnessed the—the—unfortunate occurrence; but this morning, when I complained to her about the—the—dinner, she spoke to me most impertinently, and upon my giving her notice she told me what she had seen, and threatened, unless I withdrew the notice, to report matters to my husband. I—I—had to give in to the woman in the end. I was never so humiliated in my life. And the worst of it is she still has it in her power to expose me to—to—Tom."

"Oh, dear! That is dreadful. I am sorry for you, Gladys."

"Well, it is most uncomfortable for me. Of course, you know, I'm not in the least afraid of Tom; but still I shouldn't quite like him to—to—"

"Precisely. Men are so hasty."

"And so unreasonable."

"They make no allowances."

"And always believe the worst."

"That comes of judging others by themselves."

"Yes; but we must not blame them too much. Look at the matter the other way round. We should be righteously incensed, my dear, if we found our husbands kissing strange girls in places of public amusement—shouldn't we?"

"I—I—should like to catch Tom kissing a strange girl in a place of public amusement, or anywhere else," exclaimed Gladys, bridling.

"And if I caught Robert, he should have good reason to remember it."

(To be Continued)

Build Up.

When the system is run down a person comes an easy prey to Consumption or Scrofula. Many valuable lives are saved by using Scott's Emulsion as soon as a decline in health is observed.

The Rome correspondent of the London Times reports that he is authoritatively informed that the term for the denunciation of the Dreibund ends in May, 1897, and not as formerly reported in 1896. The treaty was renewed in 1892 for 12 years, with power to denounce it in the fifth year, the treaty, if it should be denounced, terminating in 1898.

It Saved Our Child.

"My little daughter, three and a half year old, suffered three years with Eczema. Her little body was covered with the itching rash, and doctors did no good. Four boxes of Chase's Ointment entirely cured and saved our child. Her skin is clear and not a sign of rash is to be seen." Andrew Aiton, Hartland, N. B. Mr. Aiton is one of thousands benefitted by this unfailing cure for piles and skin diseases.

A grand review of troops was held at Rome on Tuesday morning in honor of the marriage of the crown prince of Italy to Princess Helene of Montenegro. About 20,000 troops were under arms. The crown prince and princess of Naples, Prince Nikita, of Montenegro, and others were present.

Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Chase's Pills have gained popularity because they are a specific for the uric acid condition, prevent Bright's disease, cure Rheumatism and all Catarrhal conditions of the Kidneys and Bladder. They do this because they possess remarkable alterative, tonic and deuretic properities, exerting a wonderfully soothing influence on irritated or inflamed mucos membrance of the kidneys or bladder. One pill a dose. 25 a box. The cheapest medicine in the world.

Among the bequests made by the will of Patrick O'Brien, of New Orleans, was that of $150,000 for the endowment of three professorships in the Catholic University at Washington. To Cardinal Gibbons is left $5,000, and to the Catholic diocese of New Orleans $20,000 for the education of priests in that diocese.

Completely Knocked Out.

"I was so much run down I had to give up work, and I felt as if life was not worth living," writes Wm. W. Thompson, Zephyr, Ont. "I took Scott's Sarsaparilla and am now feeling as I did years ago." Scott's Sarsaparilla tones up the entire system, purifies the blood, and eradicates rheumatic and scrofulous poisons. Ask for Scott's and get it.

The London Daily Mail publishes an interview with H. J. Wickham of the Navy League, Toronto, urging that an auxiliary British navy be gradually established by liberally subsidizing the improved mercantile cruisers, manned and officered by a system of naval reserves which shall include colonial seamen.

25 cents secures Chase's Catarrh Cure with perfect blower enclosed in each box. Sold by all dealers.

The London Standard's Constantinople correspondent says: "The purchase of arms during the week has been most extensive, and a feeling of vague uneasiness and alarm is spreading rapidly. The Palace hopes to distract the attention of the Moslems in Constantinople from its own misdeeds by holding out a prospect of unlimited loot."

DROPPED DEAD!

Suddenly Stricken Down by Heart Disease.

"A sad and sudden death occurred to a well-known citizen on one of the leading streets this morning."

Nearly every large city paper contains daily some such heading. The number of deaths from heart failure is very large, but it is only when they occur in some public and sensational manner that general attention is drawn to them.

Palpitation and fluttering of the heart are common complaints. With the heart itself there is nothing radically wrong. But the system is disorganized, the kidneys and liver are out of order, and the stomach is not in condition to do its work porperly. Between them all, they throw too much responsibility on the heart, and the latter is unable to stand the strain.

A box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills at a cost of 25 cents will regulate the system, purify the blood and make a new person of every sickly man, woman or child.

Dr. Chase's Liver-Kidney Pills may be had from any dealer or from the manufacturers, Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. One pill a dose, one cent a dose.

Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine is and colds. Largest bottle on the market; only 25 cents.

What She Thought.

It was one of those delightfully sultry evenings at one of the watering places off the Jersey coast. The faintest suggestion of a sea breeze wafted up from the bay, and the little winged couriers of satan, the mosquitoes, were now giving vent to a monotonous buzzing and making themselves disagreeable. In general, personally they would become quite fascinating, and in case of a vicious slap, would be actually dead mashed on one.

Little Mabel had been gamboling about the long veranda, getting herself usually in the road, endeavoring to play horse with old Mr. Spunkler's rheumatic leg, or having a pitched battle with her little companion, Jesse Brown. "Come, dear," her mother called, coaxingly, in a musical accent, "it's time for little girls to go to bed." "No; don't want to go to bed." "Now, dear, you must obey mamma; you've been running around all day, and you're real tired and sleepy." "No; ain't tired, and I ain't sleepy, and I don't want to go to bed."

"Yes, run along now, dear; put yourself to bed; don't be afraid of the dark. You know mamma's told you that God's angels are always around. They'll take care of you. That's a good little girl. Kiss mamma good night." "Dood night."

The little darling sobbed in heart-broken tones, and hied herself into the darkness. Soon all was serene, and mamma imagined her dear little Mabel to be far away in slumber land. But such soothing reveries were not destined to last. A piercing howl came from the darkness above: "Ma—ma!" "Well, dear." Again it came, still wilder than before "Ma-ma-a-a!" "Well, dear, what is it?" "Ma-ma-a, one of God's angels bit me in the cheek."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

At times my suffering was intense, and medicine taken did no good. At last a friend assured me that Dodd's Kidney Pills would cure me. A few boxes have kept that promise, and I thank these pills for a perfect and I believe permanent cure."
