

MR. AND MRS. A. DENNIS AND ATTENDANTS

Mid-Summer Wedding Is A Very Pretty Scene

A very beautiful wedding was solemnized in St. James' Church, Port Hill, at 3 p.m. August 21, when Doris Ethel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Rodd and Allison Beecher, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Beecher Dennis, were united in marriage by Rev. M. J. Findlay, Rector of the parish.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in a ballerina-length gown of white nylon net and embroidered acetate over satin with matching bolero. Her finger-length veil of illusion nylon tulle was held in place by a pearl and sequin studded tiara. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses with streamers of white satin and red rose buds.

Miss Wanda Rodd, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and was attired in a gown of white nylon net and lace over taffeta with matching headress set with rhinestones. Her bouquet was a nosegay of yellow and bronze roses.

The best man was Mr. Clinton MacLean, cousin of the groom, and the ushers were Mr. Elmer Rodd, brother of the bride, and Mr. Elmer Dennis, brother of the groom.

The wedding music was under the direction of the church organist, Mrs. Percy L. Birch, who rendered Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's Wedding Marches. The choir sang "The Voice that

Breathed O'er Eden and "The Deus Misericordiarum."

The soloist Miss Erma Grigg sang very effectively, "O Perfect Love", during the signing of the register, and was also in charge of the guest book.

The brides' mother wore a street-length gown of figured beige satin trimmed with rhinestones, with white accessories and a corsage of baby's breath and blush pink roses while the mother of the groom wore a navy blue ensemble with pink accessories and matching corsage. The church was adorned with beautiful summer flowers also new hangings in brocaded green satin were in use for the first time. The guest pews were marked by white satin ribbons and pink sweet peas.

Following the ceremony a reception for eighty guests was held at the Birch Hill Tourist Home where Mrs. Graydon Grigg and Mrs. Alvin MacLean seated the guests. The bridal table was decorated with cut flowers and lighted tapers flanking the three-tier wedding cake.

Rev. Mr. Findlay, acting as master of ceremonies, proposed the toast to the bride which was responded to by the groom. Later the young couple left for a honeymoon in New Hampshire. For travelling the bride was attired in a box suit of honey beige mix with brown accessories and wore a corsage of pink roses.

then with a sudden rush of trucks into our peace it was the super-hour! How smartly they come to the yard and pour out the workers! No horses now to unhitch and care for before the meal. What changed days these are!

"And wait till we get atomic power on the farms!" one of the young help smiled. "You'll hear us threshing a way over the fields, and then before you can turn around there'll be a bang! in the yard, just like that, and we'll be there in a atomic-powered gear" another's eyes shone at the "vision."

"I wonder what farming will be like, say, twenty years from now?" a dreamy one offered. "Machines will be faster and more powerful — the threshing will be done in a matter of a few hours, I guess."

"Some of us may be farming on the moon by then — raising stars!" another lad laughed at the thought.

"But we'll come down, or is it over? and help with your harvest. Not to stay... to go home at night!" a lad offered with a broad smile. "You won't go home tonight!" James' chuckle was as young and happy as theirs "until we get every sheaf now on the wagons threshed and baled!"

Home now "where the heart is" the harvesters are... to dream presently, we think, of the quiet loveliness of the harvest days. To stir perhaps on a pillow, and maybe chuckle aloud over some scene from them, forever stored in memory away.

Until tomorrow — — — Diary — Goodnight. . . .

KINGSTON W. M. S.

The October meeting of the Kingston United Church W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. William Colwill. The devotional period was led by Mrs. Owen Younker, opening with hymn, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." The program as given in the Missionary Monthly was followed and hymn "Jesus shall Reign."

ELLEN'S DIARY

Dreaming About The Farm Power 20 Years From Now

"She wanted green peppers," a man commented, mentioning a trip this evening to the store.

"What could she want peppers for?" we asked idly and with a chuckle.

"I don't know exactly," he replied, obviously somewhat puzzled, "but I believe it had some connection with pickling."

"We made three batches today, mind you!" a young visitor volunteered today. "And" she nodded, "we're not done yet. We've more tomatoes and cucumbers waiting. This was a good day. Mother says one has better pick making pickles when the sun shines — you can be sure then of the color."

So now the pickling season is come in earnest to kitchens, and jars are being filled with the pungent mixtures, to range invitingly on modern basement or cool stone-walled cellar shelves. And mixing a mustard sauce this morning to make for James the preferred variety his mother used to make ("None of those paper-thin slicings floating in vinegar for me Ellen!") wondered if the woody path we once knew well, and which led through beautiful autumnal aisles to a growth of hazelnut bushes in our woodlands, is overgrown now and quite lost by the years.

We should, it came to mind, find it for our young fry as we did for former children of this farm, and gathering the green prickly burrs to store in a hay-loft to ripen, tell them the legend as we heard it from the old folks when a child — how all in one night of autumn, every last bush is stripped of its bounty, and the booty mysteriously spirited away. "It may be the squirrels that do it" and in a lower tone "it may be the elves and pixies... nobody knows!"

And now the threshing was with us again — by afternoon, and at other barns of the farms. And also the baling of straw, to make in one grand endeavour a tidy sweep of it there. So quiet it was then at Alderlea, and hushed the surroundings. And

BLOUSE BEAUTIFUL

No matter the trend of fashion in fabric, lace is always part of the picture. Paris likes her filmy laces and every designer tries to work out an outstanding lace fashion. The choice of Balmain for a very beautiful

Mouse is wispy, filmy black Chantilly lace which he poses over rose organza. The sleeveless lace shirtwaist could be the making of any afternoon suit, or, with a beautiful skirt, to shine for "little" evenings.

DEFTLY DRAPED

Smartly sleek and slinky is this striking dinner dress. The peau de soie is draped spirally to good effect. The fabric takes a diagonal lap over line in front while the back of the skirt is cowl draped near the hem in the presently approved fashion of emphasizing the hemline.
