To Prince Edward Island

—Roy little sister of the nation, First Jewel of Confederation; Fifteen cranes stood in a row To bid me welcome ere I go— They stood out clearly, one by one, In the golden pathway of the sinking sun!

(Land of red rock and dark green pine, Thy distant sons are proud to call thee "mine.")

The succulent oyster and the juicy clam Each said to the stranger: "Here I am!"

The fast-famed potato winked an eye At the kettle of fish prepared to fry

(Land of sweet mead and quiet streams, Thy spell calls all the children in their dreams.)

Colourful Crescent, we remember thee, Enclosed by the silver sea.

Roy little sister of the nation, First Jewel of Confederation.

Land of still waters and of rich red loam, Thy tranquil beauty calls thy children home.
