Membership Is Tripled Of Citizenship Council

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Citizenship Council has more than tripled its individual membership in one year. J. T. Thorson of Ottawa told the council's annual meeting Saturday.

Mr. Thorson, 76-year-old former Exchequer Court judge, said the past year has been "one of great activity" for the council, which was founded in 1940 as a national voluntary organization to promote the ideals of Canadian citizenship.

Earlier on Saturday, Mr. Thorson was re-elected president of the council for a second one-year term.

He said individual membership in the council had increased from 191 in April, 1964 to 533 in April, 1965.

"Our organizational membership is in a very healthy state too. We now have 89 national or provincial groups affiliated with the council."

TO VISIT MARITIMES

The council president has travelled over 11,000 miles since last December on a speaking tour which has taken him to all parts of Canada except the Maritimes and Quebec. He will visit those areas this fall.

Professor Dallas W. Smythe, chairman of the social sciences division at the University of Saskatchewan, was the keynote speaker at the council's annual meeting, which was centered around the theme "the citizen and the mass media of communications."

Prof. Smythe said at the closing banquet of the meeting Saturday that modern technology used by the communications media could work towards regional and international integration of states.

The citizenship Council presented its annual awards—inscribed beaver pelt—to the Canadian citizenship branch of the department of citizenship and immigration and the Young Women's Christian Association.

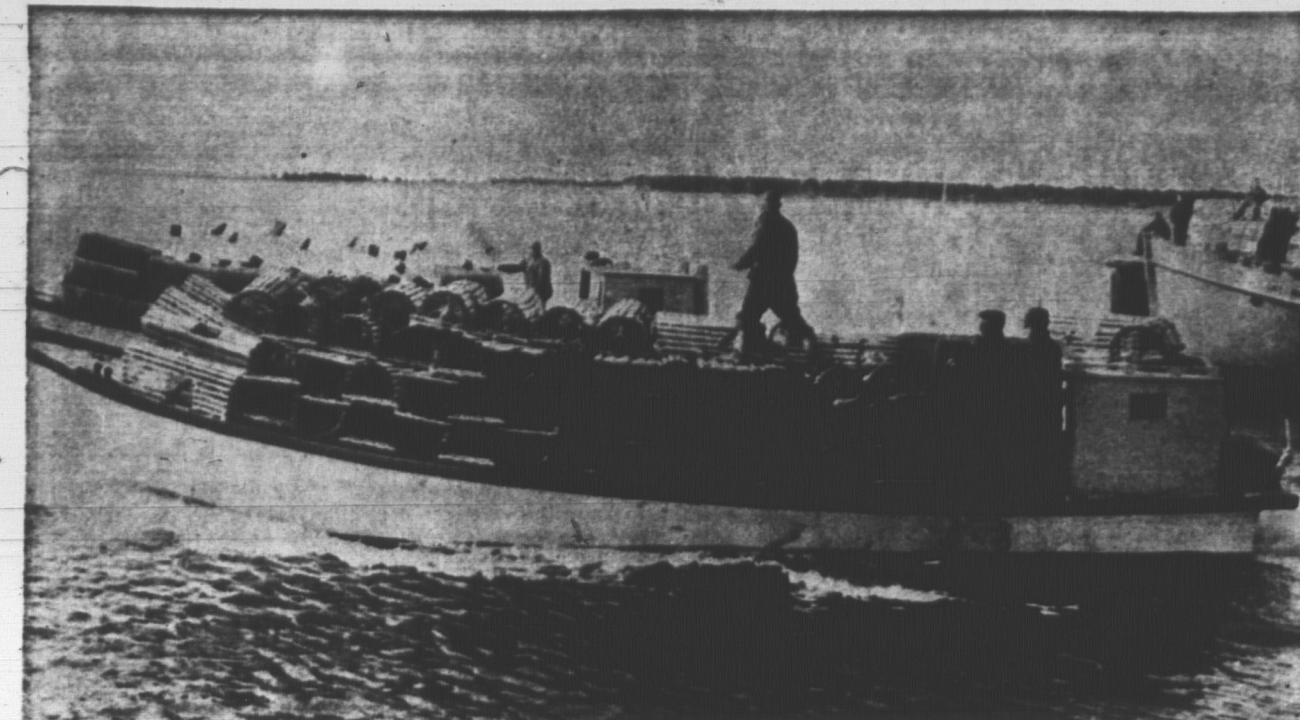

The awards are presented to organizations which have made outstanding efforts towards the enhancement of citizenship in Canada during not less than the past 10 years, in programs that are national in organization or influence."

LOBSTER CATCHES on Saturday ranged near the 1,000-pound mark for a number of Tignish and Alberton fishermen which is considered exceptionally fine fishing from traps only one day in the water. Wide Variation In Lobster Luck

The luck of the lobster fishermen varied from excellent in the western part of the island to poor in the eastern section where operations were at a standstill because of ice which prevented fishermen from setting traps.

Lobster catches Saturday ranged near the 1,000-pound mark for a number of Tignish and Alberton fishermen. A total of 27,000 pounds were landed at the Tignish Fisheries Factory at Jude's Point where factory staff worked until midnight processing the large catch.

This haul is considered exceptional for only one day of fishing as traps normally do not catch many lobsters the first day or so. It usually takes a week for any firm indications of prospects.

However, conditions were much different further east along the North Shore with Rustico fishermen hauling a few traps which averaged one pound.

Heavy ice moved into the Covehead area and fishing conditions were at a standstill Friday with no reports from that area as yet.

Some traps were reported set in the Covehead East a 3 1/2 districts during the first two days but traps were not hauled either.

Almost parallel conditions existed from Tracadie to East Point. A spokesman for the Murrell Packing Co. stated Saturday that some boats were going out, but they were only running lines and no attempt was made to get traps in the water. They thought it might be the middle of the week before they saw any lobster in that area.

Fishermen in the Souris area ran traps before ice settled in late Friday. Ice poles were tied on trap lines to prevent traps from being moved and lines remaining fixed.

The same conditions existed in the Naufrage and North Lake areas with ice setting in Friday and remaining over the weekend. No traps will be set until the ice flow moves.

The south shore fishermen were busy setting traps Friday and those in the Victoria region had set a considerable number but none were reported pulled as yet. The picture was much the same in the Murray Harbor district which seemed to be clear of ice due to north westerly winds which kept ice flows clear of fishing grounds.

Although lobsters were scarce over the weekend, a few Charlottetown stores had obtained them late Saturday and were selling cooked lobsters at 90 cents per pound.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—A crackling thunderstorm forced a 24-hour delay in the final round of the $100,000 Colonial national golf tournament.

Intermittent rain coupled with lightning and a tornado alert forced the field to return to the clubhouse twice.

The American Medical Association in 1951 termed Krebiozen useless in the treatment of cancer. In 1963, a committee of 24 experts assembled by the National Cancer Institute also reported the drug was ineffective in cases of cancer.

are on trial charged with fraud and conspiracy.

Since the start of the trial April 27 in U.S. district court, a jury of seven women and five men have heard the drug, described by prosecutors as having no value in the treatment of cancer and hailed by the defence as "the discovery of the century."

Cancer patients, many of whom say they receive Krebiozen regularly and depend upon it to keep them alive, take up most of the limited space available in the court of Judge Julius Hoffman for the daily sessions.

They listen with rapt attention as prosecutors seek to prove charges contained in a 49-count indictment that accuses the drug's sponsors of conspiracy and mail fraud in its promotion and sale.

Discovered in Argentina by Dr. Stevan Durovic, a defendant, the drug was brought in the United States in 1949 and for many years has been a subject of controversy among its sponsors, government agencies and medical groups.
