

NEW KENNEDY LIBRARY IS SET TO BE UNIQUE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A unique adventure in the chronicling of history began here as Robert F. Kennedy became the first of 300 public figures — relatives, friends and foes — to record in his own voice the years and crises of John F. Kennedy.

It is hoped—although planners of the John Fitzgerald Kennedy Library aren't even discussing it yet—that Soviet Premier Khrushchev will take part in the project.

The attorney-general talked long into the night, and continued today, recording his memories of his assassinated brother. Helping him, by acting as an interviewer, was author and former ambassador John Bartlow Martin.

In the end, the tape-recorded interviews — some of which are to be filmed — will be deposited in the Kennedy Library to be erected on the banks of Boston's Charles River.

Some of them—for reasons of national security or to avoid embarrassment where personalities are discussed—may not be made public during the lifetimes of the persons involved.

ARE IN FOUR PHASES

The interviews will be conducted in four phases.

In the first round, which got under way after a luncheon for the interviewers Friday, about 200 officials — from the cabinet to Congress, White House and judiciary — will be interviewed.

In the second phase, such family members as the president's widow and mother will record their memories of Kennedy. So will such political allies as mayors Robert Wagner and Richard J. Daley of New York and Chicago, governor Pat Brown of California and old Massachusetts enemies.

Roger Blough, board chairman of U.S. Steel, who clashed with Kennedy over steel prices in 1962, will participate as will a political foe, former vice-president Richard M. Nixon.

The third round remains in the planning stage. But it promises interviews with international figures whose destinies touched Kennedy's. No agreements have been reached yet, but it is hoped such leaders as Khrushchev, French President Charles de Gaulle, Prime Minister Nehru of India, former prime minister Macmillan of Britain and Indonesian President Sukarno will participate.

The final phase of interviews will bring together panels of figures to go over outstanding events in Kennedy's career—such as the unsuccessful Cuban Bay of Pigs invasion and the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

Scotland Yard Pushes Probe Missing Yacht Had Mail Loot

LONDON (Reuters) — Scotland Yard detectives are continuing their investigation into a sensational claim that £1,000,000 ($3,000,000) in cash from Britain's great train robbery may have been aboard a yacht missing for two months.

The new development in last summer's record cash robbery of £7,000,000 from a London-bound mail train, revealed Sunday when Edward Anderson, owner of the yacht Christine, told of a plot to smuggle the money across the English channel.

Anderson, 32, revealed the details to a senior Scotland Yard detective and later went on television to repeat his story.

Although he did not make it clear, Anderson was believed to have given Scotland Yard the name of one of the two men who came aboard his yacht Jan. 3 and offered him £5,000 ($15,000) to take them and the loot across the channel.

The Christine disappeared after it sailed that night from the English port of Ramsgate. It has not been found despite an intensive search which included dragging part of the channel.

TURNED UP IN IRELAND

Anderson was believed to have been aboard the missing yacht. But he turned up in Ireland Jan. 23 and returned to England Jan. 24 to police.

Anderson said the two men carried the money in two suitcases and a heavy bag. He said he got frightened because "the whole set-up seemed so sinister" and jumped off before the yacht put out to sea.

He said it was possible Danny Bassett, a Londoner who was believed to have sailed on the Christine, might have been murdered.

Bassett's body, wearing a life-jacket, was washed ashore Feb. 12 near the Belgian resort of Middelkerke.

Nineteen persons, including three women, have been charged in connection with the holding. Ten of the men are on trial in a marathon case which has now entered its seventh week.

Ontario Women Said Remiss In Not Pushing For Rights

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP)—Ontario women have only themselves to blame if they aren't getting equal pay for equal work, says Ethel McLellan, director of the provincial labor department women's bureau.

Many of them she suggests, either don't know or are afraid to do anything about the fact they have a legal right to equal pay with men.

The right was established as part of the Human Rights Code in 1962.

"Nothing has happened since," Mrs. McLellan told the Orillia Council of Women.

"What is the matter with women if they know their right and don't make any use of it?" she suggests that women who are afraid of losing their jobs if they file a signed complaint should turn to one of their community's larger women's organizations for support. The Council of Women and the Business and Professional Women's Clubs had been advocating equal pay for years.

The Ontario government advertises jobs without designating sex, she says, and urges that all businesses follow its example.

The attitude of young women who consider work only a bridge to marriage helps keep alive prejudice against working women, she says.

She acknowledges that women are criticized for taking jobs only long enough to earn money for new appliances, or to qualify for unemployment insurance, but maintains that men do the same thing.

She denies any justice in the male complaint that women take jobs away from men.

"Unemployment is highest in jobs which require men only—road construction and building. Most of the men applying for those jobs would not be able to work a typewriter or do other clerical jobs."

Prospectors Approve Plan To Get Money For Backing

By FORBES RHUDE, Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—A plan to get Mr. and Mrs. John Public to put some money behind the Canadian prospector was approved here at the annual meeting of the Prospectors and Developers Association.

The plan calls for formation of syndicate syndicates, clearly labelled as "speculations" or "gamblers."

The investor might lose entirely what he puts in, but if the prospector he is backing makes a find he might make a fortune.

The proposal would require federal and provincial legislation and Mrs. Viola MacMillan, the association's dynamic president and herself a successful prospector and mine developer, said.

"The association would co-operate with governments to assure that these syndicates were not abused and would invite any policing system they proposed."

The plan, approved by the association in its general terms, awaits further study. Some prospectors at Monday's meeting were enthusiastic and others skeptical. One thought it would cure unemployment in Canada.

As envisaged the proposal is this:

Syndicates could be formed by prospectors, geologists or similar individuals or small groups in amounts of $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000, depending upon what is involved.

Investors could buy units of such syndicates, with each investor limited to the amount he could put in any one syndicate with a limit set at perhaps $500.

The federal government will be asked to allow an individual to deduct 60 per cent of such an investment from his personal income tax. That is, if an individual put up $500 he could deduct $300 from his tax and would, in effect, be risking only $200.

If the prospector makes a find and a company is formed, the prospector and his backers would share the vendor's shares; with the prospector getting perhaps 25 per cent of them, and his backers 75 per cent.

Mrs. MacMillan believes many people will go for that sort of gamble.
