The following information, relative to Public Education in Britain, extracted from official returns, presented to Parliament by command of Her Majesty, and furnished to us by a friend of Denominational Schools, will interest many of our readers:

Revised Code, 1868, of Minutes and Regulations of the Committee of the Privy Council on Education.

Preliminary Chapter.

1. A sum of money is annually granted by Parliament for Public Education in Great Britain.

2. This sum is administered by an establishment called the Education Department.

4. The object of the grant is to promote the Education of children belonging to the classes who support themselves by manual labor.

5. The means consist in aiding voluntary local exertion, under certain conditions, to establish or maintain schools which are either:

(a) For the instruction of children (Elementary) or

(b) For training school masters and school mistresses (Normal)

8 Every school aided from the grant must be either:

(a) A school in connection with some recognized religious denomination; or

(b) A school in which, besides secular instruction, the Scriptures are read daily from the authorized version.

12. No grants are made to schools which are not open to inspection by inspectors appointed by Her Majesty in Council on the representation of the Committee of Council on Education.

14 The inspectors do not interfere with the religious instruction, discipline or management of schools, but are employed to verify the fulfilment of the conditions on which grants are made, to collect information, and to report the results to the Committee of Council.

The following is a second letter of the Rev. Dr. Cameron, on Education, addressed to the Editor of the Halifax *Daily Evening Record*r. As those letters touch upon the question now at issue in this Island, we freely give them insertion.

To the Editor of the Daily Evening Recorder.

Sir,—

I have the right to assume that the Rev Dr. Cramp has exhausted the objections to the Hon. Mr. Flynn's Bill, and if I succeed in shewing that those he urges are imaginary rather than real, I shall have the further right to assume that, against the Bill, there can be alleged no valid argument whatever. Possibly, it is much in its favor, that when one peruses all that Dr. Cramp can say against it, one is obliged to admit that his courage is much more daring than his logic is consequential. One sees the writer's determination to injure the Bill, and knows his ability; but one looks in vain for opposing arguments other than words of furious sound and imperceptible application. This itself will be considered by many as a high eulogy on the Bill; for it is not to be presumed that if the Bill be obnoxious, the learned Doctor would fail to discern the precise aspect under which it is faulty.

1st. The first objection is that "it is opposed to the spirit and object of "the Law concerning public schools in Nova Scotia.'" At the most, this merely begs the question, for it supposes that the existing law is so perfect as not to require amendment. Every amendment is in quantum opposed to the statute which it amends; and to urge this opposition as a bar to its adoption would preclude all progress in legislation, and assimilate our laws to those of the Medes and Persians, which changed not.

But the Doctor says that "Distinct Schools" will call up the spirit of disunion. "The Catholic School" will be set up against the "Protestant School;" the "Church of England School" against the "Presbyterian School;" and "all the elements of sectarian animosity will be found mingling in wild uproar." Who would wish to see such a day in Nova Scotia? I assure the Doctor that I for one do not desire to see sectarian animosity excited in our midst, nor do I perceive how the "Bill" in question can produce effects so deplorable. I know not what the learned Doctor's idea of religion may be; but if it is such that he believes its effective inculcation in our schools will produce "wild uproar" in the Province, I beg to remind him that the vast majority of Christians the world over believe that the efficacy of religion is to make men quiet, and not uproarious. The really religious individual, man or boy, is never the first to provoke a quarrel. Besides, our denominational Colleges, and what is more to the point, our "distinct Churches" dotted over the land, do not invoke the spirit of social disunion. If "Distinct Schools" would do so, it would be because religion is taught in them; for in no other practical aspect do they differ from "Common Schools;" and our own Churches, Colleges and experience go to shew that religion is not taught half as well as it ought for the peace of the community.

2nd. The Doctor urges that "in a financial point of view this new measure will be contemplated with the greatest dissatisfaction. * * * Every 'Distinct' School will require a 'distinct' schoolhouse, and a 'distinct' teacher. * * * The rate-payers of the several sections will be called on to provide these additional schoolhouses, &c." That such an objection is that which I have italicized should be urged will amaze anybody who ever read the Bill. No person shall be obliged to contribute to the erection of a "Distinct School house," but those who have petitioned for the privilege. So provides the Bill. As to the payment of Teachers, it is at present partially secured from the provincial and county funds, and partially by a sum voted in meeting by the section. "Distinct Schools" do not require the provincial allowance or the county tax to be increased, nor exact of sections to add to the annual vote. Therefore, the burden on sections is not changed; it is merely disbursed in a different manner. Or if I admit the Doctor's objection, then I am constrained to say that the burden will fall more heavily on minorities than it does at present. If they are willing to bear it, there is no hardship, for it is of their own deliberate choosing.

3rd. "The proposed arrangement is totally unnecessary," argues the Doctor. To this I reply, no arrangements is ever unnecessary if it be the only arrangement by which liberty of conscience is preserved from violation. I have demonstrated beyond cavil, that the present law does not furnish safeguards for individual conscience, and that "the proposed arrangement" does. The Doctor, in conceding that, "conscientious objections are no doubt to be treated with respectful regard," concedes the whole question. When he further says that the remedy, in case the objections are too strong, is "a separate school supported by the separating 'party,'" he admits the necessity of the Bill; for that is precisely what it asks. The Bill does not introduce a new tax; therefore it does not increase taxes. It merely asks that taxes now paid be disbursed for the benefit of contributors. I pay a dollar into the fund, I ask that a dollar be given to a school which I can conscientiously patronize. It is surely not necessary that the dollar be identical in its physical elements, as well as in its conventional value, to render my claim to it defensible.

4th "If the Roman Catholics are indulged in this matter, other denominations may be expected to present their claims," says the Doctor, and so "the plan will be ruinous" Why ruinous? Every denomination is interested in education, and will have it for the youth. Every parent has, at least, as ardent a desire to educate his children as the Rev. Doctor has to educate all the children in the Province. Parents will watch that schools be accessible to their children. "Distinct Schools" are under the Bill a matter of choice and nothing more. Their institution will not lessen the school tax, or render parents careless; and if other denominations ask to avail themselves of the Hon. Mr. Flynn's Bill, let them do so. It is their right; and I would not ask for myself what I would not concede to others. The Doctor assumes, in this objection, that people generally are willing to pay taxes for nothing; the Bill innocently assumes that people are willing to pay taxes for something,—that's the difference.

6th. "The unfairness connected with the practical working of the new method of operation," is the sixth objection the learned Doctor urges. When I remark that this "unfairness," on the Doctor's own showing, falls on the supporters of "Distinct Schools" alone, and that they choose to submit to it, I presume, that I have answered the difficulty. They say "give us the permission to have a distinct school," the Doctor cries: "Oh gracious, no! it is unfair to you, it will injure you and your children, and locate schoolhouses ever so far from you." The reply is, if it would do so, we would not ask permission; and if it will do so, we will not avail ourselves of it We ask it only where there can be no unfairness, and as a pledge of our good faith, we ask it only where the Board of School Commissioners and the Council of Public Institution will decide there is none. What can be fairer than this?

7th. The Doctor urges that "the new Bill is inconsistent with the present law." This is his first objection in a new phrase. It is already refuted But he adds that under the proposed measure "the Roman Catholic will be taxed for the dissemination of Protestantism, and the Protestant for the dissemination of Popery," &c. I would in other circumstances remind the Doctor, that there are epithets which wise men rarely use, and gentlemen never; but, at present, I accept the title "Popery," not as an impertinent phrase, but meaning the same, where I find it, as "R. Catholic Religion" would in the letter of a well bred writer. It simply is true, that the consequence the Doctor urges would follow. The educational fund belongs to the people of Nova Scotia and can be disbursed only for their benefit. Every man who contributes to it, has a claim to his portion. The Roman Catholic, therefore, would teach his religion with his own money, not with that of others; so to would the Protestant. I have already alluded to the identity of the money paid in form of taxes, and distributed in form of a general fund, and need say no more on the matter.

This letter has grown so bulky that I defer till another opportunity the few and brief remarks which the Doctor's eighth objection seems to demand.

Yours truly,

J. CAMERON, D. D.

Arichat, Dec. 21st, 1868.

OUR NEW POSTMASTER GENERAL.

The Queen's Printer takes advantage of the appointment of John Andrew McDonald, Esq, as Postmaster General, to give us a back-hand slap on the face, and hopes that we will say no more about the Government's being adverse to Catholic claims for office. To make his article more savory he mixes therewith the feces of the oysters which were devoured more than two months ago at the notorious supper. We never wrote much about the claims of Catholics to office; even the Patriot exposed the ingratitude of the Government more than we did. As long as there is anything like a fair distribution of patronage we are not very particular. We wish a man who is appointed to a responsible office to be honest, and competent to discharge his duties, no matter what his religion may be. The most of the offices at the disposal of the Government are not very remunerative, and whatever independence a person possesses before taking office, it is not always increased by a taste of Government "pap." Our allusion is not personal. The Queen's Printer was "on the fence" for some time past; but we think the weather has of late been rather cold for such a position, and he has betaken himself to more comfortable quarters. As long as he will retain his office, Catholics can have nothing to complain of, as far as offices are concerned, for he is a legion in himself. We question very much, however, the policy of making Mr. McDonald's appointment the occasion of snubbing ourselves. When the Government was formed two years ago, an application was made by influential supporters of the Liberal Party to have an Irish Catholic gentleman appointed Postmaster General. They visited the leading members of the Executive, who all admitted that the gentleman recommended for the office was all that could be desired for the position—that he was popular with Protestants and Catholics, with Liberals and Conservatives—that he was urbane in his manners, obliging in his disposition, and honest in his transactions. One member of the Executive, however, objected that he failed in his own business, and observed that a man who could not conduct his own affairs well, could not be expected to conduct the business of the public any better. This Catholic gentleman was, of course, not appointed to the office. We received this information two years ago from a reliable source. Now, after two years experience in navigating the ship of State, the Government have appointed Mr. McDonald to the Post Office. Since Her Majesty's Printer has taken up the question with such zeal, perhaps he will be kind enough to explain the inconsistency of the Government. We question the good taste of blazoning forth the Catholicity of Mr. McDonald. We don't know much about the religion of the new official; but we trust that it is more sincere and practical than that of his namesake, John Sandfield, of Ontario, who was called, in a recent number of a Summerside paper, a "good Catholic," but who, we understand, goes to Mass only on the eve of a General Election! Mr J. A. McDonald received his appointment, we believe, in consequence of the active part which he took in Mr McMillan's election, and against the claims of Catholics for a grant to their College and Convent Schools. If we are incorrect the Queen's Printer will please put us right. It was not our intention to make any comments on the new appointment, but, since the Herald has provoked discussion on the subject, we could not be altogether dumb.

The Hon. Francis Kelly has been shamefully and most ungratefully treated in this affair. If any Catholic had claims to the office he certainly was the man. He is the respected representative of a large constituency, and he is an honest man. He applied, we understand, for this office; but his application was rejected. The Queen's Printer, evidently with the design of making things smooth, says that the Government think too much of the valuable life of Mr. Kelly to place him in the Post Office, even at his own request. The gentlemen of the Executive are very considerate, they are becoming very scrupulous, very! The Herald pays a doubtful compliment to the value of the life of Mr. McDonald, who may well exclaim, "Save me from my friends!"

We have seldom seen a finer display of Ladies Dress Materials than that exhibited by our friend Robert Young They consist of an almost endless variety of Fancy Dresses, from 10½d per yard upwards Coburgs in almost every shade and quality. Winceys, good and heavy, from 11d per yard. French Merinoes, in all the leading colors, very cheap Prints from 8d per yard very good, and nice Ginghams from 9d. Ladies would do well to make a note of this.

On the 11th instant, a man in the employ of Manoah Rowe, Esquire, of Montague Bridge, was in the woods cutting rails. Hearing a noise, which he supposed to be made by a Bear, he proceeded to Mr. Rowe, who, in company with Pierce Gaul, Esq., fully armed, went in search of Bruin and succeeded in capturing him.

On Thursday the 14th inst., Mr John Kearney, of Sturgeon, lost a fine Cow in the following manner—While in the Act of reaching for hay from a Barrack, her fore foot slipped, and her lower jaw coming in contact with a piece of timber, cutting off about three inches of her tongue. The animal had to be killed at once.

SUPREME COURT.

In the case of the Queen vs John Smith, charged with threatened assault on Robert Harris, the Jury brought in a verdict of not guilty.

The case of the Queen vs George Dowey, for Murder occupied the Court the whole of Tuesday and Wednesday last. About 10 o'clock, p. m., on Wednesday the jury returned into the Court with a verdict of Wilful Murder.

The trial of George Lund on the charge of shooting a horse, the property of James Taylor, of St Peter's Island, took place on Thursday, and resulted in an acquittal

On Saturday Mr. Justice Peters sentenced Edward Gay, for shooting at William Bourke, to two year's imprisonment with hard labor

When the prisoner, George Dowey, was brought up to receive sentence, the Counsel for the defence applied for a new trial on the grounds that one of the Grand Jury was Foreman of the Jury on the Coroner's Inquest. The case was argued all day, and in the evening the prisoner was remanded back to jail until to-day (Monday.)

At 12 o'clock, noon, to day the prisoner, George Dowey, was brought to Court, when, after being asked by the Judge what he had to say why the sentence of the law should not be passed upon him, he confessed to the murder of Cullen. After addressing the prisoner for some time, which moved many in the Court to tears, the Judge then sentenced him to be hung on Tuesday the 30th March next.

Full particulars will be given in our next week's issue.

THE EXAMINER.

We have lately received many kind and encouraging letters from friends in all parts of the country, but the pressure on our space prevents us from inserting them. We feel very grateful, and our efforts shall continue to be directed to secure a continuance of the good wishes of our friends. The Examiner is second to no Week'y Paper on the Island, and we hope that all our Subscribers will assist us, by their punctuality in paying up the amount of their subscriptions, to keep up the high character which it has once more gained for itself. Many friends are urging us to make it a semi-weekly. We are not now prepared for that; but we hope in the meantime to be able to give every satisfaction to those who are giving us such warm encouragement.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Our Travelling Agent, MR. DANIEL CAREY, will call upon our patrons to the East-ward, during the present month. We trust they, one and all, will cheerfully pay him the amount due us.
