Leaders Hit

The Prime Minister pointed, in reply to tax cuts of 11 per cent that went into effect July 1. The Liberals, he said, will continue to reduce taxes if circumstances warrant.

Mr. St. Laurent declared his government would help in a "sensible and practical" health insurance scheme if satisfactory arrangements could be made with the provincial governments.

Mr. Drew has promised to institute a national health insurance plan, starting it in a special fall session of Parliament, if a Progressive Conservative government is elected.

In the week, campaigning in the West, CCF leader M. J. Goldwell has emphasized his party's plan to nationalize the meat-packing industry. He has had stress on his party's idea of switching the tax burden more to the high-income man.

A CCF government, Mr. Goldwell has said, too, will propose many social benefits including a good kitchen sink and bathroom in every home.

All the leaders are changing ground, geographically, this week. Mr. St. Laurent, in the West for the last week, is moving eastward. Mr. Drew, who has been in the West, will be going through the Maritimes-Newfoundland territory covered by Mr. St. Laurent the week before last.
