Canada At Crossroad, Yukon Speaker States

SOURIS — Approximately 400 people attended the combined rally and annual meeting of Kings County Progressive Conservative Association held at Souris Regional High School over the weekend.

The special guest speaker, Eric Neilsen, Yukon PC candidate, said "Canada is now at a crossroad." The greatest issue facing Canadian people is whether Canada will continue to be one nation or wind up as many petty states."

He continued by saying, "The Pearson government during its term in office, by means of its constitutional amendments, has succeeded in reducing parliament to a rubber stamp, which is sure to bring about the destruction of Confederation."

He repeated Mr. Diefenbaker's statement saying that political and economic equality is the key to national unity.

He said that during his travels throughout the nation he saw many signs of resentment towards the two years of Liberal government.

"Another issue in the campaign is morality," he said. "Without it no confidence can be expected from the people." He expressed his dislike of the political system bred by the Liberals that would allow "such" things to happen.

He referred to the years 1957 to 1963 when the government of John Diefenbaker was honest and strong. He said that the leader held together the country with his own beliefs.

Melvin MacQuaid, PC candidate for Kings in the coming election, pledged an honest government giving the Maritimes, and especially his riding, a fair share of the natonal income. He stated that the Maritime region was never treated as fairly as when the Diefenbaker government was in power in 1957-63.

Others briefly addressing the meeting were: Rod Pratt, Leo Rossiter and Heath Macquarrie.

The new slate of officers elected by the YPC were: president, Charles Campbell; vice-president, Edith Daley; secretary treasurer, Leslie Underhay; district representative, Arthur Peters Jr.; first district representative, Colin Jackson; second district representative, Donnie MacKenzie; third district representative, Raymond MacDonald and George MacDonald.

Resolutions passed by the resolution committee besides the regular ones of expressing loyalty an confidence in their leaders included one urging the completion of "The Road to Resources" program and the building of an all weather road to Souris and Georgetown. They also commended the $100 Old Age Pension Plan and thanked the board of trustees for the use of the school.

The meeting was conducted first by out going president of YPC, George Whiteway and later by the new president, Charles Campbell.
