AMONG THE FARMERS

Federation of Agriculture Newsletter

HOW MANY YEARS

Last week we had occasion to call upon a neighbour and noticed what we thought to be a new hay mower in the yard. We mentioned the machine and was told that it was fifteen years old had it received a fresh coat of paint this spring and was to all appearance as good as a new one.

monstration by the representative from the Science Service Division on plant diseases was an interesting one as was the talk at Hunter River on the control of the Turnip Maggot. The two meetings can be termed successful but both were worthy of better attendance and greater interest.

Apparent contradiction exist in two facts that the Maritimes are a deficit area for food and that Prince Edward Island is not producing its agricultural capacity. There is possibly no one answer to this situation and likely it has not proven to be an attractive business proposition or profitable for island farmer to go ahead and produce the beef, eggs, fruit and vegetables that can be sold. Further there has been difficulty in agriculture in obtaining the necessary labour and possibly the scarcity of capital must also be considered.

FEDERATION MEETINGS

The semi-annual meetings at Hunter River and O'Leary are now over and were, we feel, received with approval by those who attended. Numbers present at Hunter River were gratifying and expression of opinion on the quality of the meeting complimentary. The talk on education was well received and designed to provoke interest. The panel discussion on improving farm income was lively and established a number of important points.

Even with these reasons there will exist the possibility that programs and policies are lacking which would acquaint the farmers with these possibilities and there may also be a definite lack of the direction and planning which is required to bring about the necessary expansion. There is little if any actual over-production of any farm product in the Maritimes and certainly not in livestock and there would appear to be considerable room for expansion without any danger of glutting the market. We are inclined to believe that development or lack of development may be tied to the rather indifferent marketing facilities which are available for many farm products.

Recently our attention was attracted to a photograph which portrayed a large hawk and the gunner who had put an end to its career. Our first reaction to the picture was one of regret that a large beautiful bird in the nesting season should have been shot without any trial or that no attempt was made to find out whether it was a species beneficial or otherwise. Even these hawks which take an occasional chicken which include in their diet little animals which may be harmful to the farmer. Very few birds are completely bad and even the crow who is the victim of periodic massacres has much to his credit.

OTTAWA (CP)—A white goat kindled political warfare in the Commons Thursday between two sharp-tongued Quebec members. J. Wilfrid Dufresne (PC-Quebec West) fired the first shot in a running battle over the care and upkeep of the animal mascot of the famed Royal 22nd regiment. The Canadian Army has a goat on the payroll, he declared. It received room and board and a special $1,500 house had been built for it. A corporal and two men looked after it. The whole expense was "ridiculous, absurd and useless." Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L-Portneuf) replied that all upkeep costs come from a regimental fund maintained by the soldiers themselves. The fund financed the house, which cost only $120. A corporal, who volunteered, cared for the goat in addition to his normal duties. "No!" said Mr. Dufresne. "Yes!" said Dr. Gauthier, who said he got his information from the defence department.

Alberta President Mission Societies Addresses W. M. S.

The President of the Alberta Mission Society of the United Church of Canada addressed a meeting at Hampton recently. The July meeting of the Desable-Hampton W.M.S. was held at the home of the President, Mrs. Lorne Ferguson. One new member and several visitors were warmly welcomed. Mrs. James H. Ferguson read the lesson followed by prayer by Mrs. Dixon. Hymn 249 was sung, after which Mrs. George Dunsford and Mrs. Clayton Morrison gave short stories on W.M.S. work. The President then introduced Mrs. G.H. Villett from Edmonton, Alta., President of the Alberta Missionary Societies. Mrs. Villett held the close attention of her listeners as she unfolded, bit by bit, the great amount of Mission work accomplished in Alberta. Her journeyings to the outlying and northerly sections of Alberta, by plane, by boat, over the modern Alaska and Mackenzie's highways as well as over the older roads and trails were full of interest, sprinkled with humor and pathos. The President expressed the appreciation of the members to Mrs. Villett for her interesting and instructive talk.

The business period followed. Minutes were read, roll called, different secretaries gave reports and correspondence was dealt with. Plans were made for Annual Thankoffering in Hampton Church, with Dr. G.H. Villett as guest speaker. Mrs. George Dunsford invited members to her home for August meeting with lunch committee to be Mrs. Edwin Ferguson, Mrs. Homer Provencher, and ports or receive instructions for their future activities. Since the January meeting some marked changes have taken place, grain marketing has become very active, the floor price on butter has been established for two years in advance and there are signs that the surplus dairy situation may be starting to adjust itself. The difficult spring season in Ontario and Quebec will have an effect on livestock production and present prospects are generally for fall markets a little stronger than was the case a year ago.

ATTEND COLLEGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Capt. William J. Newlands of Port Williams, N.S., has been named one of five Canadian Army officers who will study next year at staff colleges in Britain and other Commonwealth countries. Army headquarters announced Wednesday that Capt. Newlands will attend staff college in India. CLOUD SEEDING A group of American weather experts have concluded it is possible to increase rainfall nine to 17 per cent by cloud seeding.

Even if he does it will not be certain the same substance would have an identical effect on humans. What professor Wright and his colleague, Dr. E. L. Wynder of the Sloan Kettering Institute in New York, have discovered is that a concentration of tobacco tar will produce skin cancer in some mice. His machine, a weird contraption, is set up in an unused elevator shaft at the university. The professor doesn't have to foot the bill for the tobacco tarring, about $540 a day. A tobacco company supplies him with all he needs. The machine is composed of three stainless steel containers and a vacuum pump. The pump sucks the smoke from the burning tobacco and filters it through the three containers, where sulphuric acid traps it to condense on the inside of the cans. The deposit is then removed and broken into its component parts. The whole operation proceeds with a belching, roaring and puffing, and produces such extreme heat that the professor and his assistants are forced to work stripped to the waist. So far, professor Wright has produced nothing which will reduce lung cancer in laboratory mice.
