First Guided Weapons Regiment Formed In U. K.

LONDON (AP)—Britain today announced the formation of her first guided weapons regiment—the latest step in streamlining and reshaping the armed forces to fit the defence ministry also disclosed that it is studying the post-war world—including those in Libya, Hong Kong and Gibraltar—to fit the atomic age. The new regiment will begin forming next month at Aldershot, 35 miles southwest of London. It will be commanded by Lt. Col. John E. Corringley, 40-year-old veteran of the Second World War and the British occupation army in Germany. The first weapon will be the rocket-powered Corporal—capable of carrying a conventional or atomic warhead—which British soldiers have been learning to use at Fort Bliss, Tex., and at bases in New Mexico and Alabama. Corporal has a range of 75 miles and speeds toward enemy targets at 2,000 miles an hour with the help of radar. ATOM ADMIRAL ALSO Announcement of the formation of the regiment came a few hours after Britain had named Rear Admiral Guy Wilson as "atom admiral" to direct the job of fitting royal naval and merchant ships with nuclear engines. The admiral said it has already done "considerable work" in developing a nuclear power plant for submarines. Libya is Britain's last Mediterranean base in North Africa. Britain has a 20-year treaty with Libya which now is under review. Libya seeks more money, equipment and technical and military advisers to expand her own forces. In Hong Kong, bordering on Red China, Britain has about 10,000 troops. She has 3,500 men in Gibraltar, guarding the western entrance to the Mediterranean.

Post Mortems On U. K. By-Election

By ED SIMON Canadian Press Staff Writer LONDON (CP)—Post-mortems on the defeat of the government candidate in last Thursday's by-election in North Lewisham tend to support the maxim that you can prove anything with statistics. Spokesmen of virtually every shade of opinion say the result reflects the popularity of their views. The Labor party, triumphant over its first by-election since the 1955 election, has been quick to interpret its victory as a blanket indictment of Prime Minister Macmillan's policies at home and abroad. Leslie Greene, the Empire Loyalist candidate whose handful of votes would have been enough to wipe out the Labor candidate's 1,110-vote edge over his Conservative opponent professed encouragement at the support for her strongly empire-minded views. And Conservatives of various persuasions saw the defeat as a vindication of their beliefs. RENTBILL KEY The Daily Express views it as a protest against the government's espousal of European free trade—a development which it considers a serious potential danger to Britain's Commonwealth ties. The Yorkshire Post saw Miss Greene's intervention as a key factor, although others argued that the Conservatives would have lost in any event. The most widely held view is that the government's forthcoming rent bill, easing rent control restrictions throughout Britain, was the key factor. It was a bread-and-butter issue which Labor hit hard in the campaign's closing stages and there were indications that the government will modify the legislation before it is passed. Seven more by-elections five of them in government-held constituencies are due in the next few weeks but the Conservative margin in all five in the 1955 election was sufficiently large to make further Labor gains unlikely.

Ontario MLA's Are Showered By The Town Of Wallaceburg

TORONTO (CP)—The town of Wallaceburg Monday placed gifts worth a total of $3000 on the desks of the 97 members of the Ontario legislature. Mayor J. L. Thompson said the scheme was designed to promote his southwestern Ontario town of 10,000 population and stimulate interest in the town's assets as a site for the provincial government's proposed $10,000,000 school for retarded children. The stunt was organized by town council and the chamber of commerce. The gifts were donated by industries in Wallaceburg. The town's three-ton truck was backed up to the front door of the legislative building and the gifts unloaded. The legislature looked like a grocereteria. On each member's desk were: A shower head, a metal steak platter half a dozen tumblers, five pounds of sugar, a can of beets, a 10-ounce bottle of water from the Syne River and literature describing the town. Some of the gifts were inscribed with slogans asking that the proposed hospital be built in Wallaceburg. On Premier Frost's desk was a pint bottle of red liquid with the inscription: "Wallaceburg people even give their blood."

Hitler "Lapped Up" Idea He Might Be Guest Of The King

LONDON (CP)—Captured German documents, published today by the government, reveal that Hitler "lapped up" the idea he might one day visit Britain as a friend of King George VI. Hitler's aide, Capt. Fritz Weidemann, recorded a 1938 conversation in which then foreign secretary Lord Halifax told him: "Give the Fuehrer my greetings and say that I, as English foreign minister, aim to get so far in my lifetime that one day the Fuehrer will be seen entering Buckingham Palace at the side of the King of England." When Hitler received the message, Weidemann added, "he just lapped it up."

Double Service High Speed Vehicle For The Northland

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—The first vehicle in Canada equipped to travel at high speed on either highways or railway tracks has just been put into service by the Ontario Northland Railway, for use as an ambulance and inspection car. The 1956-model station wagon, fitted with extra steel wheels and loaded with first-aid supplies, will be used mainly in the rugged country north of Cochrane to Moosonee, the line's northern terminus near the entrance to James Bay.

Special flanged wheels installed at front and rear can be raised or lowered hydraulically, for transfer from highway to railway track. Most of the car's weight is carried by the normal rubber tires. The railway wheels merely guide the car when it is travelling on the railway track. WELL EQUIPPED The provincially-operated railway has 1,400 employees in the sparsely-settled northern area, and the new car will be able to take medical aid quickly to injured persons, or transport them to the nearest hospital. In the past such cases were usually transported by truck or rail speeders. Besides first-aid equipment, the vehicle is equipped with two-way radio, high-powered horns for crossings, market lights, flagging kits, red flashers and other safety accessories.

The ONR, with 625 miles of track from its head office here, also expects the car to be a big help on inspection trips. When certain sections of track are plugged with freight cars, for instance, the inspectors by raising the wheels can switch to the highway until they reach the next open stretch.
