General Motors
And Vimy
Pilgrimage

OSHAWA, Ont., May 20.—When the boys' embark for Vimy this summer, the mighty pilgrimage will include four happy Great War veterans who have been in the service of General Motors of Canada, Limited for seven years or more. Last Friday night, three of these boys were among the great throngs of employees and their families who eagerly watched two brilliantly-illuminated glass barrels rotate on the stage of the General Motors auditorium. In these barrels were envelopes containing the names of employees who had qualified to enter the draw which assured winners of a trip with all expenses paid and a minimum salary of $25 per week while they are away.

After President R. S. McLaughlin and Mrs. McLaughlin had drawn the envelopes from the barrels, announcement was made that Lady Luck had favored the following: William Herbert Gamble and Andrew Anderson, drawn from Ottawa plant entries, and Edwin Wilson Crome from the barrel containing names of those in the St. Catharines plant and in the field force. They will sail about July 14 along with Charles S. Smith, winner of the draw made at Walkerville recently.

Mr. Gamble, who is 41 years of age, enlisted in the 90th Battalion as a private and was transferred to the 72nd Battalion Vancouver Highlanders and went to France with them. In 1918 he suffered a shrapnel wound in the right hand and served subsequently in Britain with General Motors who has been working on the assembly lines at Oshawa. He is married and has one child.

Mr. Anderson saw service in France with the 90th Field Company Royal Engineers, 22nd Imperial Division, and like Mr. Gamble, served in the Somme area for a lengthy period, after which he was transferred to the Balkans. He is married, has two children, and has been with General Motors since 1922. Mr. Anderson is now 54 years old, and works in the paint shop at the Oshawa plant.

A native of Newfoundland, Mr. Crome joined the 3rd Battalion, was transferred to the First Machine Gun Battalion in France and was wounded near the close of the war. He held the rank of corporal. Mr. Crome was with Hialop Brothers, Toronto, for nearly eight years before the firm was taken over by General Motors, and has served under the latter regime for nearly nine years. He is married and has one girl of 13.

Charles S. Smith, of Walkerville, was a lance-corporal in the 20th Battalion 2nd Division during the war and suffered shrapnel wounds. He saw considerable fighting in the Ypres sector.

His eyes twinkling as he stepped up to make the draw, Mr. McLaughlin remarked: "The winners are going to think I'm a wonderful chap but the o. hers—(laughter)—But," he said, "I know those who offend their all to go to France are all good sports. I know the winners are going to be congratulated by those not in the trip across to see that marvelous memorial—the finest in the world—in memory of the finest soldiers the world produced."

Among those taking part in the draw were Colonel Frank Chappell, Industrial Relations Manager; C. McArthur, General Sales Manager; W. J. Smith, Comptroller;

The Clothes Moth

One great advantage of cheap clothing is to be found in the fact that there isn't the same tendency to store it in drawers for a long time where it is exposed to the danger of moths. During what is called the Victorian age, when clothing had often to last a lifetime, the ravages of this little pest were immense. Clothes moths love the dark. In spring they do emerge for a very brief period and flit about the rooms but they soon settle, deposit their eggs and then die. From the eggs tiny caterpillars or maggots are born and it is these maggots and not the moths which do the damage.

There are hundreds of species of moth which may be classed as clothes moths although they are not dainty in their food. Most of them can live equally well on cloth, on furs, on feathers, and on the many things that are so likely to be kept in storage in dark places. Some of them are found on rugs and carpets, from which the "vacuum" cannot dislodge them; in fact, it may be said in passing that the annual beating and sunnings on the back green which old-fashioned folks yet give to the household carpets is a much better way of getting rid of moths than any other.

Some of the clothes moths are extremely small and most of them are so small that when flying about a room they appear to be mere flickers in the ether rather than living creatures. The maggots which breed from their eggs are probably smaller still, hence it is almost hopeless trying to pick them out. They eat voraciously; they do not seem to require moisture in the ordinary sense and in some cases they clothe themselves in woven tubes of the material to hand.

To keep moths from clothes and such like things the articles have to be kept in a case of some kind which is practically airtight. The use of insecticides is helpful in keeping them away and though by fumigation in airtight closets with some very poisonous gas, but naphthalene are probably the best preventives easily available. To get rid of moths already present in clothes, furs, etc., the articles can be fumigated in airtight closets with some very poisonous gas, but for the housewife the easiest plan is simply to hang up the article in the fresh air, exposed to a bright sun and then to give it a beating.

This homey method dislodges all moths if it is carefully done. Of course, to prevent reinfestation it is necessary to tie up the article at once in a package into which moths cannot enter.

Plants Hit Hard By Late Frosts

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., May 20.—(C.P.)—Two-thirds of the early strawberry bloom and half of the later bloom has been destroyed by late frosts. C. Frank Kitney, past president of the Ontario Vegetable Growers Association, reported to the Department of Agriculture today.

"Millions of small plants such as radish, beets, etc., have simply disappeared. Late cauliflower and cabbage beds are destroyed although there is a possibility that early cabbage will recover," Mr. Kitney states.

An Object Lesson in Crime—Six Sentenced to Die

Here is an object lesson in crime. These six young men, who range in age from 18 to 36, are shown here as they were sentenced to death in the electric chair for the murder of a New York subway cashier. The young bandits robbed the cashier of $250 in nickels. The penalty of their crime is death, and the mass electrocution will be the greatest in the history of New York State. The men are, from LEFT to RIGHT, Salvatore Scata, 18; Joseph Bologna, 23; Theodore di Donne, 30; Dominick Rizzo, 35; Sam Kimmel, 25, and Eugene Bruno, 31.
