WATCHES

THE watch trade has been rather fluctuating of late, first the price went up, after a long period of low prices, now the prices have dropped again, whether because of war or greater variety of production we cannot say, but the fact remains that you can buy from us a reliable timekeeper cheaper than ever before, in fact that there is no need to buy shoddy goods at all.

If you want a good and also the cheapest watch for the money, we recommend a good movement in a nickel case instead of a poor one in a fine looking colored case that will only wear a very short time.

Soliciting a share of your patronage, we remain, Yours respectfully,

E. W. TAYLOR,

COURAGE.

It is not they that never knew Weakness or fear who are the brave—Those are the proud, the knightly few Whose joy is still to serve and save— But they who in the weary night Amid the darkness and the stress Have struggled with disease and blight With pitiful world weariness, They who have yearned to stand among The free and mighty of the earth, Whose sad, aspiring souls are wrung With starless hope and hollow mirth, Who die with every day, yet live Through merciless, unrighteous years, Whose sweetest right is to forgive And smile divinely through their tears. They are the noble, they the strong, They are the tried, the trusted ones, And though their way is hard and long, Straight to the plying God it runs. —Harper's Weekly.

SMITH'S CAKE.

It Was Something of a Surprise When Served at Dinner.

"Madam, you don't know how to make cake!" exclaimed Mr. Smith, (throwing a lump of half cooked dough across the room at the cat. "You never knew how to make cake. I'd rather eat wet sawdust. You ought to have seen the cake my mother made. That was cake!"

"Your mother again—always your mother!" retorted Mrs. Smith. "Pity she didn't teach you something!"

"What do you mean, madam? I'll warrant I'll make better cake myself than you any day."

"Why don't you try? You'll find everything in the kitchen."

"Well, I can."

"Well, why don't you? You are all talk!"

Smith found himself cornered, and felt very uncomfortable, as he had either to surrender unconditionally or to make good his boast. He had never made a cake in his life, had no idea how cakes were compounded, but thought he knew what was in them.

"I'll make the cake," he said.

"Well, come into the kitchen and make it," proposed his wife.

"What, now?"

"Yes, now. I'll get the things for you."

Smith took off his coat, his collar and necktie and rolled up his shirt sleeves. They walked to the kitchen together, and Smith said:

"What shall I mix it in?"

"Oh, you're doing it," Mrs. Smith replied.

"Ah, this will do," he said, taking up a bowl. "Now bring me some water, now some raisins and currants, sugar and ginger and allspice. There, that will do." He put them all into the bowl and mixed them with a spoon.

"They don't seem to stick together," he said. "Looks more like a thick soup than anything else. Fancy I've got too much water." Smith drained off some of the water and was about to put the cake into a pan, when his wife said:

"Didn't your mother use flour?"

"Oh, yes—yes—ah, yes—flour, of course." Then he mixed in flour until it was so stiff that he could hardly knead it. "Now," said he, "I'll take this cake round to the baker's and have it baked properly." He started off, and when he reached the baker's he said:

"Will you just throw this stuff away and put in its place one of your best plum cakes?"

That night at supper Mrs. Smith had her mother and sister with her. She had told them of the cake, and they were expecting great fun at Smith's expense. The cake did not come until supper time. Smith took it from the boy and said:

"This is my cake—something like a cake." He carried in the cake and placed it on the table.

"Here's a note in the paper," said Mrs. Smith. "I'll read it:

"DEAR SIR—I am sorry we are all out of plum cake, so I send you a pound cake instead. Yours obediently, S. Brown, Baker."

—New York Ledger.

Too Much Culture.

"Aunt Penelope Wiggins," as everybody called her, was visited one summer by a niece from the east, a Vassar college graduate. Aunt Penelope was one of the most hospitable souls alive, but she was not greatly impressed by the superior learning of her young relative, and one day she freed her mind about her thus:

Talk to me about what a college education does for a girl! What do you suppose Matilda said to me the first day she came? She said:

"I'm so glad to meet you, aunty! You accent your name on the Aunty Penultimate, don't you?"

Did you ever hear such nonsense? I had to tell her my name wasn't Aunty Penultimate, but Aunty Penelope, and I thought she would die a-laughing!—Youth's Companion.

Making Sandwiches. Ninety-nine women in a hundred making sandwiches for company expected in the evening, and wanting them crustless, will cut the crust off after slicing the bread. Take a whole loaf of bread, cut the sides and top crust off, leaving the bottom crust on. Then, having squared off one end, spread on your deviled ham, sardine paste or whatever and cut a thin slice back to the bottom crust. Release the slice by running your knife down just inside the bottom crust. Then neither the bread nor your temper is crumpled.—New York Tribune.

Of Another Sort. Flo—Do you love me, sweet? Will—Dearly. Flo—Would you die for me? Will—No, my precious girl. Mine is an undying love.—Philadelphia Call.

A Clever Advertiser. The Kansas City Journal says: "A flour merchant at Edgar let the story get out that while he was stooping over his flour bin a $150 diamond ring had slipped off his finger into the flour. He appeared to be greatly exercised over the loss, got a notice in the local paper, but finally announced with a sigh that he would have to give it up; that the ring was in the flour somewhere; that he supposed it would turn up in a sack of flour, but he had no idea what one. Well, you ought to have seen the boom that guileless man had in the flour trade. For the next week he had to hire extra help to fill sacks out of that bin. One man who never bought a sack from him before came in and laid in a winter's supply. And the smooth merchant whistled softly as he filled the sacks and winked his other eye."

Not a Miracle Worker. Mother—Well, professor, do you think you will be able to make a musician of my daughter? Professor—Alas, madam, I fear not. Mother—Why do you say that, professor? Professor—Threescore and ten is man's allotted number of years, and I am now 55 years old. The time is too short, madam.—Chicago News.
