THE SAME FATE AS CRONIN.

According to a late despatch from Chicago, the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Joseph McLaughlin, Mrs. Andrew Foy's brother, is at last solved. He was murdered near Glasgow, about February 1st last, in order to prevent him from appearing as a witness in support of his sister's startling story during the Cronin trial, and the order for the foul deed, it is asserted, was sent from Chicago. A week ago an old man, grey-bearded and respectable looking, called at Mrs. Foy's home in Sedgewick court, and said he had sorrowful news for her. A few days before, he said, an old friend of his in days past in Ireland stopped to see him on his way to the west. He asked about Mrs. Foy, and not desiring to tell the news to her, he asked his old friend to do it. He was in Glasgow last winter, and knew Joe McLaughlin and his family, and had known Mrs. Foy when she lived there. Joe, he said, was murdered about February 1st last, and when his body was found in a stream called "The Cathcart waters," it was almost too much decomposed to be identified. But the identification became positive when a letter with the address of Mrs. Foy was found upon him. At the spot is a bridge with a very low railing, known as the "half-way bridge." Here the old man had been committed sometime before the body was found, for notwithstanding the enquiry that was prosecuted in all parts of the British Empire, no light whatever was thrown upon his sudden and inexplicable disappearance.

THE WAR IN CHINA.

London, Sept. 21.—The Berlin correspondent of the Standard says negotiations are in progress between Germany, England and Russia relative to the war between China and Japan. Identical instructions will probably be sent to the respective ministers at Peking. The Central News has received from Tokio additional details of the naval fight. When the Japanese sighted the Chinese fleet the latter ships were steaming toward Yalu River, in which direction they proceeded, appearing indisposed to fight. The Japanese opened fire, and the Chinese fleet, getting within range, drew the fire of the Chinese flagship. A running fight of two hours' duration preceded the main engagement in the bay, during which the transports entered the river safely. The correspondent of the Central News at Tokio telegraphs that the Mikado has sent special letters to Nolin and his army and Admiral Igo and his fleet, thanking them for their splendid victories at Ping Yang and Yalu respectively. The Standard says it is now impossible to doubt that the Chinese victory at Yalu remains with the Japanese. The Standard says it is difficult to say which of the two, Japan or China, has gained any material advantage, but thinks the position of the reinforcements landed at the mouth of the Yalu must cause extreme anxiety in Peking. The Chronicle says the Japanese are now virtually in command of the sea and will be for a considerable time if the war continues. At the present rate it cannot be long before China will be reduced to the necessity of asking terms. A despatch to the Central News from Shanghai dated 5 p. m., September 21st, says the "commanding officers of four of the Chinese warships were killed in the engagement off the mouth of the Yalu river. Admiral Ting was wounded in the cheek and leg, but in neither case seriously. Five of the transport ships are still missing. Three Chinese transports are reported to have been captured. All the Chinese warships that were not sunk are badly damaged." The Japanese ships are preparing for another attack.

THEY DON'T AGREE.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 21.—The Novice (Vremia and Novosti), in editorial articles on the recent victory of Japan over China say it will not affect in any way Russia's strong resolve not to permit the annexation of Korea. The Novosti advocates intervention of the powers on the ground that war is prejudicial to their several commercial interests. YOKOHAMA, Sept. 21.—The latest statement regarding the losses of Japanese in a battle at Ping Yang on Sept. 15, says that 64 privates killed, 30 officers and 521 privates wounded. A Shanghai despatch says a cable message from Japan states that three Japanese warships were destroyed and 100 badly damaged in the Yalu river engagement. The Times says "Japanese flying columns were in the vicinity of Mouden before victory. As the politicians about the court at Peking are perfectly well aware what consequence of the fall of the sacred city would be, they will yield, it may be assumed, to almost any demand rather than risk disaster."

NEWS NOTES.

The Hungarians are mad because in the maps issued to the Roumanian schools Austria Transylvania is represented as part of Roumania. Some twenty-five years ago a series of maps were issued by the United States whereon Canada was represented as part of the Republic. Canadians smiled then, and when they recall the incident, smile now. The very Huns would do well to imitate their example. It takes more than map makers to alter boundaries. Free beer is a characteristic element in the election campaign now going on in Fall River, Mass. The committee meetings are generally held in saloons, and to all who will the cup that cheers and doth inebriate is offered without price. The papers do not say what soldiers go when they are freshmen; but if the managers are wise in their generation they will avoid pigs' feet. By that combination, it will be remembered, fell the Liberals in London. Sir William P. Howland has been on an extensive trip through Western Canada, speaking to a reporter, said: "The crop in Manitoba has not suffered from frost in the slightest degree so far. In consequence all the wheat is good quality, and the quantity is moderate. As there was no injury to the crop or any portion of it there is more good wheat this year than at any time in the past. The quantity is much better than last year. I should say that the crop in Manitoba alone will yield 16,000,000 bushels of wheat, and also a large quantity of oats. On the whole, I am very much pleased with the outlook on west."
