The Security Challenge

The alacrity with which Premier Khrushchev has accepted the West's proposal to hold a summit meeting in the Security Council may be a sign of a better and more reasonable approach to Middle East problems.

What better opportunity could there be of regaining the propaganda ground we have lost in this affair, and of tearing Khrushchev's charges of "Western aggression" in Lebanon and Jordan to shreds?

Having the meeting within the United Nations, as Prime Minister Macmillan shrewdly foresaw, will give it a more judicial status and will tend to keep the debate within relevant bounds.

Under such conditions, should it be so difficult to prove that in forestalling gangsterism the Western powers are acting for the free world and for the Middle East nations who would stay free?

Khrushchev and his accomplices on the one hand and Western and neutralist representatives on the other are no doubt approaching the Council summit with quite different purposes.

The Japanese resolution in the Security Council, the Western powers, on the other hand, will not be satisfied with any arrangement that merely removes American and British forces from the area.

Canada has added three more men to the U.N. Observation Group in Lebanon, making 13 in all. This is a good gesture, of course.

At least one American hasn't digested the recent news. He cancelled a ticket he held for a concert in Beyruth, Germany, because of "reports of fighting in the streets".

Sooner or later, discussions will have to give place to resolutions, if not at the summit, then at a less exalted meeting of the Council.

Everyone knows that the CBC has to meet heavy expenses. It is hard to believe, however, that it cannot get by on $70 1/2 million a year.

There is one thing to be said for the prolonged and wearisome U.N. debates on resolutions and counter resolutions with respect to the trouble in the Middle East.

There are 7 1/2 million white children and 2 1/2 million Negro children in segregated schools in the United States. They are, in the view of Senator Douglas (Democrat, Illinois) being denied their constitutional rights.

The manager of a Loan and Savings Association in Salt Lake City decided to put "hoarhound drops" on sale at 182 prices, 3 cents for a quarter pound.

It is a tribute to Britain's policy in Jordan over the years that when the break came in the Spring of 1956 it was followed by goodwill on both sides and that when the country found itself in danger from the Egyptians and the revolutionaries in Iraq, the first call for help went to Britain. It seems likely that, whatever course present events may take, the old relationship will be revived and made permanent, though perhaps not in the former way.

Puppets And Politicians

Word from the Boston University School of Education is that puppets have proved useful in correcting human speech defects.

"But the puppet," says Miss Kingman, "is only a temporary crutch and gradually is discarded in the course of instruction. Once the student realizes that he unconsciously has corrected his speech problem he quickly can find a permanent solution to the disorder.

So says the expert. But frankly—we say it with respect—we find it hard to believe. Take the average politician, for example.

It's very strange. A military coup in a Middle East country has worldwide repercussions. But when the same thing happens in South America, it scarcely receives any attention at all.

The Liberals are insisting on removal of the 7 1/2 per cent excise tax on automobiles. The best argument they have is that removal of the tax was recommended by the Conservatives when they were in opposition.

Britons Remember The Suez Incident

By M. McINTYRE HOOD, Special London (Eng.) Correspondent for The Guardian

LONDON — Public reaction to the critical situation which has seen the despatch of United States and British Forces to the Lebanon and Jordan must be judged against the background of what happened at Suez in October 1956.

So, as we talked to people this morning in a crowd of some 200 to 300 gathered outside No. 10 Downing Street, the general comment was "Well, the Americans are with us this time and they have jumped in first."

On the other side of the picture, that of Canadian exports to the United Kingdom, we have received a notice from the Board of Trade announcing that imports of bottled apples, and canned apples will be permitted in the 12 months ending June 30th, 1959.

Imports of North American cheese will again be permitted in the 12 months beginning July 1, 1958, to the same value as in the four previous years.

U.K. OPINION

Today Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express published a public opinion poll on the events in the Middle East. In this poll, Britain's action in sending troops to Jordan was approved by 57.9 per cent; 25.6 per cent disapproved and 16.5 per cent had no opinion.

What Price In Terms Of Cash

By Herman N. Bunde, M. D. HOW MUCH are you men worth?

Your bank account won't provide the answer. Nor will your car, your home or your yearly income.

Even your wife and family probably underestimate your true value. I'll bet that if I asked you your wife's true value, she would reply with a smile: "Why, he's worth $1,000,000!"

WOULD UNDERESTIMATE And do you know that she would actually be underestimating your value by a substantial sum?

NOTES BY THE WAY

A Lands and Forests bulletin states that Department officials are carrying on research which they hope will control the mice which eat the seedlings of girdle the bark. And it adds this pertinent advice: "Since foxes, hawks and owls feed on mice it is suggested that leaving these animals alone to prey on the smaller pests would also be useful."

It would perhaps take more than a language interpreter to explain to some foreigners the concern of the British House of Lords on learning that Speaker's Corner in Hyde Park was threatened.

Remember the last time you bought a new car? Remember how you changed and polished it every chance you had and how annoyed you were when it was scratched for the first time?

You really are an important person in this world of ours. So for goodness sake, take care of yourself.

QUESTION AND ANSWER A. R.: My child is recovering from chickenpox. She still has some scabs. Can she go back to school?

ANSWER: Children who have had chickenpox should not be in contact with other children for seven days after the infection starts, whether or not the scabs have disappeared.

THE AGE OLD STORY Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves.

OUR YESTERDAYS (From The Guardian Files) TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO (July 26, 1933) With engines overhauled due to a broken water pump, the Italian seaplane I-Rovi, commanded by Captain Umberto Rovis, left her position in the seventh armad of General Balbo's air armada while flying over Prince Edward Island yesterday morning.

THE HOME OF MR. PETER GOTELLE Mr. Peter Gotelle was considerably damaged by fire early Saturday afternoon. Mr. Gotelle had returned to work and Mrs. Gotelle had retired. Shortly afterwards she heard a cracking noise, and on entering the kitchen found it in flames.

TEEN YEARS AGO (July 26, 1933) The fact that Island farmers have received a cash income this season of at least $50,000 from their strawberry crop indicates the increasing importance of small fruits in the agricultural economy of the province.

THE DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL HEALTH AND WELFARE'S mobile laboratory service motor van in charge of A.D. Tenant and H.T. Coombs, was in Summerside last week. These men, who have been making a survey for oyster production, are now investigating clams in Malpeque Bay.

FLUORIDATION FOR MONTREAL Montreal Star The best news of local consequence to be released in a long time is the news that the fluoridation project has been jiggled off the shelf where it has lain gathering dust for the past two or three years and is going to stay off.

IN TERMS OF HEALTH What this would mean in terms of better health and relief from often heavy bills for dental treatment — treatment often neglected because of the cost — can easily be imagined. It is a significant fact that among the most vigorous advocates of fluoridation are the dentists.

COST COMPARED For what such a comparison is worth, the cost of installing fluoridation equipment in Metropolitan Montreal was estimated at about $225,000.
