Outlook For Wheat Sales Is Described As Optimistic

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian wheat exports in the current crop year may range from about 305,000,000 bushels as high as 360,000,000.

This appraisal by informants here takes account of various uncertainties that bear on the world market.

Canada probably could sell more wheat on credit than she now is doing but is unwilling to match the lavish credit terms that France has employed to rid itself of a 200,000,000-bushel surplus.

Sales were made to Poland and China on terms superior to those Canada grants to customers.

If all possibilities were realized, sales could touch about 360,000,000 bushels for the year ending next July 31, it is believed.

However, most expert opinion anticipates sales of some 320,000,000 bushels compared with 358,000,000 in 1961-62.

Sales to China will be down about 22,000,000 bushels. The most recent deal was for 34,000,000 bushels which brings to 145,000,000 bushels the total consigned so far under the 2½-year agreement expiring next December.

It is taken for granted that Canada cannot expect a renewal on comparable amounts. For one thing, the agricultural situation in China has improved.

Another reason is that Chinese hopes of boosting sales to Canada have faltered. Substantial pressure was imposed to have Canada accept textiles and other commodities.

Better credit terms also were sought as the life of the agreement became extended and an extra three months—to a full year—was granted in the last contract. However, negotiations on this contract twice broke down and were concluded only with difficulty.

The Canadian Wheat Board would be well satisfied in future if sales to China continued at some 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels annually.

LOOK TO OTHER SALES

On the optimistic side, periodic sales are anticipated — perhaps under longer - term agreements—with various iron curtain countries. Customers in the past have included Poland, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. Romania, East Germany and Hungary show interest from time to time.

A new three-year trade agreement is being prepared with Russia. Wheat has been one of the largest components in these agreements although the last sales to Russia were in 1961.

Sales to Britain, still Canada's largest customer, continue despite the cloud of uncertainty cast by her continuing efforts to join the European Common Market.

Ontario Woman Complains Husband Is Given Raw Deal

TORONTO (CP)—The woman emerged from the Ontario workmen's compensation board building here and sobbed:

"It's unfair . . . unfair. I miss him and we need him . . . he isn't insane."

Mrs. Lena Peterson, reduced to hopelessness after a brief and discouraging session with officials of the board, left Toronto Thursday with three of her six children for their home in Kirkland Lake. The other three children had remained at home.

She came here because she wanted a medical examination for her husband, victim of a mine explosion three years ago, and who she says was admitted to a mental hospital in North Bay without her knowledge.

Three years ago, Marshall Peterson, then 29, was working underground at the Sylvanite gold mine near Kirkland Lake when some sticks of dynamite exploded hurling him against the wall of a tunnel.

The compensation board subsequently granted him $925 "in full payment for permanent disability."

OUT OF WORK

Marshall has been out of work since, except for brief unsuccessful attempts to hold a job.

In a letter to the board, Mrs. Peterson said:

"Right after the accident, my husband was allowed to walk home, a distance of two miles, with his ears bleeding, while he should have been given an examination or taken to a doctor immediately."

She said no doctor treated her husband until the next day and no x-rays were taken. Now he was partially deaf, had frequent depressions and is incapable of holding a job.

But, she added, "my husband is not insane. He was in such a state that I guess he hitch-hiked to North Bay because he was determined to get medical care which Kirkland Lake doctors neglected to give him."

Compensation board officials listened to her story Thursday but said later the woman would have trouble proving her husband's condition is attributable to the accident.

"This poor woman doesn't know what is going on," said J. F. MacDonald of the claims department.

Firms Accused Of Inaccuracy In TV Ratings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission has accused three firms measuring television and radio audiences of misrepresenting their accuracy and using techniques leading to bias or error. It said each has agreed to stop such practices.

The commission announced that A. C. Nielsen Company of Chicago, C-E-I-R of Washington, D.C., and The Pulse of New York reached agreement on the consent orders with FTC lawyers.

"The agreements are for settlement purposes only and do not constitute admissions by the respondents that they have violated the law," the commission said.

Each company was charged with claiming its ratings were accurate and achieved by techniques barring error. Actually, FTC charged, such ratings are estimates.

Among other things the commission said Nielsen and C-E-I-R failed to disclose the number or percentage in an audience sampling that refuses or is unwilling to co-operate.

Among other alleged shortcomings, Pulse was said to use reports containing the general preference of a person interviewed as against what he actually heard or viewed.

The accused would be liable to maximum fines of $5,000 a day if they refused to consent and were found guilty in court.

GREEN REGRETS MANY WEEPERS

VANCOUVER (CP) — External Affairs Minister Howard Green says Canadians are becoming a nation of weepers and wailers who threaten to ruin the reputation of their own country.

In a speech to his Vancouver - Quadra constituents Thursday night, the veteran parliamentarian said: "Canada seems to be a nation continually weeping and wailing about her terrible condition and how guilty we are of everything."

It has got to stop, said Mr. Green, adding:

"Canada is a leading middle-class power with an important role to play in world affairs. But before she can play her role to the full and grow, Canadians must take a more sensible and optimistic view.

"We need a return to our old pioneering spirit."

Opening lead—four of hearts.

This was the opening deal in the match between France and the United States, played in Buenos Aires in 1961.

The American South opened third hand with a notrump. North responded two diamonds, a game-forcing artificial bid asking South to name a four-card major suit if he had one. When South bid two spades, North jumped to four.

The French West led a heart. Declarer played low from dummy and lost to the singleton king. Back came a low diamond and South was faced with a difficult guess. He couldn't tell whether East had led away from the queen or ace.

After much thought he played the king and lost to the ace. West returned a diamond to the queen and declarer later lost a spade to the ace to go down one. Actually, West could have defeated the contract another trick if he had led a heart at trick three instead of a diamond.

When the hand was played at the second table, the French South also opened with one notrump. North responded three spades at this table and South raised to four.

East was on lead and opened the king of hearts. He was hoping to obtain a heart ruff later. North won with the ace and played a trump. East took the ace immediately and led back a club. Declarer won, drew trumps, guessed the diamond situation correctly, and wound up making five for a score of 450 points. So France made a net gain on the deal of 500 points.

East might have beaten the contract if he had led a low diamond at trick three instead of a club. Declarer would have had to play the jack from dummy to make the hand.

The American team eventually won the 144-board match against France despite the bad start, though they lagged behind for most of the match. They proved to be stronger in the stretch.
