Defence Committee Critical Of Frigates Cancellation

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons defence committee indirectly criticized Defence Minister Hellyer for cancelling the previous Conservative government's program to build eight frigates for the navy.

It said in a report tabled in the Commons that the navy needs new anti - submarine ships and that it has little air defence capability. The frigates were to have been equipped with anti-aircraft missiles.

The committee called for an early government decision on a naval construction program and gave first priority to a transport vessel capable of carrying troops and supplies for United Nations peace - keeping operations.

It recommended studies of nuclear propulsion for ships and said intensive research and development of more effective anti-submarine weapons should be undertaken without delay.

The committee, under the chairmanship of David Hahn, Liberal MP for Toronto Broadview, complained that emergency civil defence measures have been seriously impaired by lack of liaison between the federal provincial and municipal governments.

PROGRAMS FAILED

Programs to induce Canadians to build personal fallout shelters had failed and should be abandoned. The recent accidental triggering of the siren alarm system in Ottawa had revealed several weaknesses in communications procedures and administration which "must be rectified."

The committee said the militia will be unable to fulfil its assigned roles if it is cut to 30,000 personnel from 45,000 as announced by Mr. Hellyer.

The committee recommended that the National Defence Act be amended to provide for call-out of reservists for active duty for limited periods.

The committee said there is considerable doubt about the serviceability of the navy's 3.7-inch guns. During exercises off Bermuda, witnessed by the committee, there had been "several failures" of the gun.

It said housing for naval personnel in the Halifax area is "grossly inadequate."

Defence Dept. Sees Need For Tactical Jet Aircraft

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department believes the armed forces need a tactical jet plane and it is prepared to spend up to $300,000,000 on such a program.

But will the defence department or the needs of the Canadian aircraft industry dictate what type of plane will be acquired and where it will be built?

This is the crux of the major defence problem now facing the government, officials said Wednesday.

Specifically, the question boils down to whether Canadair Limited, Montreal, a wholly-owned subsidiary of General Dynamics Corporation of New York, should be awarded another multi - million - dollar aircraft contract.

Officials said production of an American - designed jet plane, mainly for support of the army in the field, would cost more than purchase of the plane in the United States because of royalties, costs of tooling and the like.

JOBS AT STAKE

On the other hand, the jobs of several thousand workers probably would be affected in a city which is represented by four cabinet ministers, including C. M. Drury, minister of industry and defence production.

Canadair is said to be in favor of the McDonnell Phantom which would cost about $2,500,000 each.

The defence department, however, now appears more inclined toward production of the Northrup F-5, a version of the plane which the previous Conservative government rejected in 1961 but which costs only $800,000.

Officials said bluntly in the past the needs of the Canadian defence industry rather than defence policy have sometimes determined equipment procurement programs.

Since 1942, Canadair has produced 369 Canso amphibian planes, 71 North Star transports, 1,815 Sabre Jet fighters, 656 T-33 jet trainers, 33 Argus maritime patrol planes, 29 CL - 44 transports, 13 CL - 66 transports, 340 CF-104 low-level jet bombers and 180 CL-41 jet trainers. Canadair for years has been the major defence contractor in Canada.

MERGE INDIA'S AVIATION

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The government announced Wednesday the merger of all of India's aircraft manufacturing units into one single government-owned organization. The new company, to be known as Hindustan aeronautics India Limited, will build Russian MiG supersonic fighters as well as British Gnats, Indian-designed HF-24 fighters and British Avro 748 medium transports.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	2 ♣	Dble	2 ♥
Pass	Pass	4 ♠

Opening lead—king of hearts.

Most hands are relatively easy to bid and play, but there are still quite a few where it is easy to go wrong.

Here is one such deal. Let a first see what actually happened before discussing what should have happened. South got to four spades on the bidding shown and West led the king of hearts.

West then had a problem of what to lead next and finally decided to continue with the deuce of hearts. Dummy played the jack, East ruffed low, and South overruffed. Declarer then led a trump and made exactly ten tricks after East took the ace of clubs.

If East had ruffed the heart return with the ace, and then played the ace and another club, the contract would have gone down one. The question is whether East should have been smart enough to ruff with the ace.

Granting that this would be a difficult play for anyone to make, it was still a completely logical play. The circumstances strongly indicated that West had eight hearts even though he had bid the suit only once.

If West had had six or seven hearts, he would presumably have continued with the ace rather than the deuce, since he would be afraid that the seven of hearts might be the beginning of a high- low signal. The failure to play the ace showed an eight-card suit.

East can also tell from the bidding that South, who doubled two clubs, has four clubs and that West therefore has none. This assumption is strongly confirmed by West's failure to lead a club at trick two.

East should therefore play safe—even if he misses the inference that West has eight hearts— by trumping the heart at trick two with the ace. He can reasonably count on winning the first four tricks for the defense by ruffing high and playing the ace and another club. Defeating the contract should be his first consideration.
