Aircraft Carrier Gets Big Welcome In Halifax

By JACK BRAYLEY
CANADIAN Press Staff Writer
HALIFAX (CP)—Canada's new aircraft carrier Bonaventure reached her home port for the first time today although Halifax's unpredictable weather did its best to interfere.

Dense fog blanketed the harbor, slowing the 29,000-ton flat-top and delaying her arrival half an hour. The fog was so thick those aboard heard the welcome before they saw it: the crowds ashore saw nothing until the Bonnie came within feet of her dock.

But ships' whistles tooted, bands played and thousands cheered as the navy's pride ended the eight-day maiden voyage from Belfast, Northern Ireland, at 11:30 a.m. A.D.T.

Lieutenant - Governor Alistair Fraser of Nova Scotia, Rear Admiral R. E. S. Bidwell, Atlantic coast flag officer, and Halifax Mayor Leonard A. Kitz had to board the ship from a harbor craft to present the official welcome. They had planned to fly out in a helicopter.

The fog also ruled out a salute by navy aircraft. UNEXCELLED - June 12th, Capt. Harold V. W. Groos, 44, of Victoria and Ottawa, said at a press conference aboard his new command she is "a most comfortable and efficient ship." No ship of her size and type excelled her in any of the modern devices of war.

He said everything went "swimmingly well" in trial flights of her Tracker and Banshee planes. A bit more equipment remained to be installed and this would be done at the time the ship's officers and men had their shore leave.

"Then after that we'll get down to operational flying training. That's the real business and purpose of her existence."

Some of her 1,000-man crew are back in Canada for the first time in three years. Thirty of them married while the Bonnie was in Belfast. Forty babies arrived in the crew's families while they were in Northern Ireland.

Coming off the ship was a big assortment of pets, especially Irish-bred dogs and a collection of bicycles and tricycles of British design.

SERVED WITH MAGGIE - About 325 of the crew served in Canada's old carrier, the Magnificent returned to the British navy earlier this month.

Capt. Groos said the Bonaventure far exceeds the Maggie in modern fighting efficiency; but personally he feels it would have been a perfect arrangement for the Canadian carrier in the operational training program.

He disclosed that the Royal Navy is considering the Maggie for use as a royal marine assault ship to be equipped with personnel-carrying helicopters.

Under gigantic tarpaulin wraps on the Bonnie's flight deck was the KCB experimental hydrofoil launch recently built in England from a prototype developed by the navy research establishment in Halifax.

and made a pleasant break in the business session. Miss Jessie Bingham, Assistant Supervisor, spoke on Institute work, reminding members of their responsibilities to the local branch as well as the provincial organization.

AMONG THE FARMERS

Federation of Agriculture Newsletter

RAINFALL
In April precipitation (rain and snow) amounted to 4.45 inches just slightly less than the same month in 1956 and one and a half inches more than the 48 year average. However, rainfall in May and June is what counts so far as growth in concerned and 1957 stands in a very poor light compared with last year and compared with both last year and the long term average and this is particularly true of June. The figures are as follows for 1957, 1956 and the long term average: May 2.71 1.76 2.97, June 1.19 2.91 2.91.

Temperature has only been slightly cooler than the average. Farmers who are wondering what has happened the hay crop have, at least, a partial explanation in the rainfall figures for May and June. Generally to promote satisfactory growth three inches of rain per month is needed in this province during the growing season.

HAY DIFFICULTIES

Last week this column suggested that prospects for a hay crop were quite indifferent, in anything this situation is worse at the present time, while there are some real good fields and while some areas of the province are better than others, nevertheless, the prospects appear to be for less than half a normal crop. With generally increased cattle holdings this can be quite a serious matter and farmers will be giving thought to taking action necessary for their own protection.

HEATHERDALE

Visitors to Heatherdale at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mack MacPhee were Mr. and Mrs. Turner and Mr. and Mrs. Angus McLean of Dundas; also Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Weatherlie and Mrs. Thos. MacPherson of Charlottetown.

POULTRY ACTIVITIES

At the present time the poultry industry would appear to be receiving considerable attention both provincially and nationally. The Canadian Federation of Agriculture is planning for July 15 in Ottawa a meeting of its National Egg and Poultry Committee. This committee expects to have the opportunity of making, to the government, representations on such matters as price support operation for eggs, on the proposed price support for heavy fowl and on price support for the turkey industry which appears to be facing some marketing difficulties.

their production from an economic standpoint of little importance. Why the difference? Here is a field in which the rural economist and rural sociologist can render a valuable service in analyzing the forces which have produced the difference and in recommending the corrective steps which can be taken.

The Farm Improvement Loans Act was first put into effect in 1945 and no doubt for the first few years did a modest business, slightly over three million the first year, nine million the second and eight million the third, however in 1952 it reached a total of 98 million dollars. Since that time there has generally been a decline in lendings to levels in the 60 millions. During the first ten years of operation there were made in this province over 8,000 loans amounting in total over seven million dollars for an average amount of $910.00. Over the years Saskatchewan and Alberta have been the largest users having borrowed together 60 per cent of the total lendings for Canada.
