CALL AT OUR OFFICE and see the entertaining and finely illustrated McCLURE'S MAGAZINE, which has among its contributors the most famous writers in America and England, including B. L. Stevenson, Rudyard Kipling, A. Conan Doyle, Octave Thanet, William Dean Howells, Bret Harte, Carl Russell, Joel Chandler Harris, Thomas Hardy, J. T. Rowland, Jerome K. Jerome, Frances Hodgson Burnett, Theodore Roosevelt, Joseph Miller, Gilbert Parker, John Burroughs, Hamlin Garland, Prof. E. S. Holden, Prof. C. A. Young, H. H. Boyesen, Robert Barr, Henry M. Stanley, Archibald Forbes, Andrew Lang, and many others.

Each number of McCLURE'S MAGAZINE contains two illustrated interviews with famous people. James Veran, Frances Hodgson Burnett, Tinsellier, the famous French Balloonist, Archdeacon Farrar, Thomas A. Edison, F. Hopkinson Smith, H. H. Boyesen, Alphonse Daudet, Camille Flammarion, Edward Everett Hale, Professor Graham Bell and many others, have furnished material for especially prepared interviews, which will appear fully illustrated in this magazine.

NATURAL HISTORY AND ADVENTURE.—There will be several articles written by Raymond Blathway, who has been called by Mr. W. T. Stead the best interviewer in England, from material furnished him by Carl Hagenback, of Hamburg, the great animal importer and trainer. These articles deal with the Capture of Wild Beasts, the Training of Wild Beasts, the Transportation of Wild Beasts, the Adventures and Escapes of Carl Hagenback. The series will be illustrated by an English artist of great skill in drawing animals.

JOHN BURROUGHS, C. F. HOLDER, DR. C. C. ABBOTT, and other writers famous for their work in this field, will contribute to the Magazine.

Of interest to both Young and Old will be PROF. R. L. GARNER'S AFRICAN EXPEDITION TO THE GORILLAS. Arrangements have been made, in connection with a leading English review, to publish Professor Garner's letters descriptive of his present expedition to Africa. Professor Garner is noted the world over for his curious and interesting investigations he is making in the speech of monkeys. He sailed for Africa last September for the purpose of further pursuing his studies in the native haunts of the gorilla. The illustrations of these articles will be from photographs taken by Prof. Garner in Africa.

McCLURE'S MAGAZINE also contains most interesting articles under the heads: 'The Edge of the Future,' 'Newest Knowledge,' 'Knowledge of Immediate Value,' 'The Present Hour,' 'Stranger than Fiction,' etc.

HEART FAILURE, FAINTNESS, ACUTE DYSPEPSIA

with Complete Nervous Prostration, Cured by Using HAWKER'S NERVE & STOMACH TONIC.

A LADY'S EXPERIENCE.

Mr. Wm. Thompson of Montreal, N. B., writes: 'For 5 years past my wife has suffered with acute dyspepsia, heart failure, and nervous prostration, and a most distressing condition of the system, which has rendered her unable to do any work, and has caused her to lose all her weight, and to become a mere skeleton. In the autumn of 1892, she was advised to use your Nerve and Stomach Tonic, and she has since used it, and she is now able to do all her usual work, and has gained all her weight, and is in the best of health. I can truly say that your Nerve and Stomach Tonic is a most valuable medicine, and has saved my wife from a most distressing and painful condition, and I can truly say that it is a most valuable medicine, and has saved my wife from a most distressing and painful condition, and I can truly say that it is a most valuable medicine, and has saved my wife from a most distressing and painful condition.'

W. H. ROGERS, AMHERST, N. S., May 27, 1893.

THE GROSSER DYSPEPSIA CURE CO. GENTLEMEN—I am 71 years of age. Have been afflicted with sick headache most of my life, which developed into Dyspepsia of a mild type about twenty years ago, and has continued to grow worse until during the past seven or eight years I have not been able to take a drink of cold water or milk, as they would produce severe pains and sometimes vomiting. I have been subject to severe pains in the chest, with dizziness, which have been more frequent during the past three or four years. My mouth was furred up in the mornings, accompanied with bad breath. My case was yearly growing worse. During all this long period I have tried many popular medicines, as well as prescriptions from the regular medical practitioners, but without producing any improvement.

In the fall of '92 I concluded to try a bottle or two of your medicine and such were its effects that I continued it and now I can drink cold water or milk with any inconvenience. Those dizzy pains are all gone and my mouth is as sweet as a baby's. In short, your medicine has cured me and I am sure that all Dyspepsias can be cured by its use. (Signed) W. H. ROGERS, Late Inspector of Fisheries for Nova Scotia.

JUST ABOUT THE GIRLS.

WHY A YOUNG WOMAN NEVER MARRIES HER IDEAL MAN.

An Account of the Vacation Experience of a Person With Nervous—A Pretty Girl Never Fretful Than When in Her Own Den.

A girl never marries her ideal. One reason is that she seldom finds him, and when she does she doesn't like him. Another reason is the material man is so dreadfully unlike the one of her imagination.

A girl is an inconsistent creature, anyway. As sure as she fashions the idol of her mind's eye as a great, fierce, black-moustached, brigand-like-looking individual, she will be a promise to love and obey some meek, freckled, red-haired person who cannot forget his affection for chocolate caramels and football scrimmages.

Most dreadful is the fate of the little woman who admires the jolly man who can laugh at paper-weight biscuits and boiled beefsteak. For she invariably falls head over heels in love with some solemn, stately man whom she admires, and who makes her dumb with silent awe.

Somebody should come to the rescue of us girls by telling us definitely where to draw the line between young manhood and the old-maid period. This is a matter of vital importance, and, as everyone seems to have forgotten the subject, why can't it be settled right now for good and always? Then we should know when to stop telling our age in that naive manner we love so well.

It is quite embarrassing when you remark to a man "I was 20 years old yesterday," but it is dreadful to be so ancient? And he says, "Well, I should say so!" very emphatically, when all the time you expect him to put on an enchanting air of venerable importance and assure you that you are still a mere child.

Let something be done at once. If no other opportunity to settle the question presents itself, why not hold a congress?

"Try not to notice my nervousness, please," said the girl whose face was pale and whose eyes had a haunted look. "I am afraid to be so ancient, where I've been on my vacation. I selected an isolated village, so as to get as far away as possible from noisy cable cars and other things that other persons were struck with the idea at the same time, for when I arrived at my little rustic farmhouse, the housewife escorted me to the parlor—said it was the only vacant room she had—hers her shoulders quivered as if she had a chill.

The house had green shades that were always drawn down to the lowest notch. The furniture was upholstered in that black, scratchy haircloth that makes you think of an undertaker's shop. The family Bible and portraits of deceased grandmothers were the only things that gave the place a gay tone.

"I slept on a folding lounge. That's what the lady called it, but my personal opinion is that it was a pine board with sheet iron. One night I dreamed that I was dead and lying in a morgue. Another night I thought I was buried alive, and I could even smell the damp earth. Every day I had to go around to the pump in order to wash my face. Of course, hair curling was out of the question, much as there wasn't a mirror except one in the kitchen, that the old gentleman called his shaving glass.

"Oh, that room! I know that I'll have to take another vacation so that I can forget it."

All this talk about girls looking like frights when in the seclusion of their own rooms is a base libel. Some persons believe the anxiety and nervousness that curl-papers have actually disappeared, isn't it awful? It shows their ignorance, anyway. A pretty girl never looks sadder or prettier than she does when she is in her little den with its Cologne bottles, powder puffs, hair tonics, and curling irons. Instead of wearing hideous curling papers she lets her hair fall in a wavy mass.

In place of an in-artistic cast-off wrapper, she enfolds herself in a downy gown that is soft and comfortable. Instead of wearing curl-papers she wears a soft, downy gown that is soft and comfortable. Instead of wearing curl-papers she wears a soft, downy gown that is soft and comfortable.

She has sofa cushions till you can't rest. They fill every chair and every corner, and when she laces her shoes she dumps them all in a heap and makes a throne of them. When she is moody, she cries on them, too.

One of the greatest wonders of a girl's existence is why she can't always look as pretty as she does when she is in her own room.—Chicago Record.

Here are some of the men that a girl hates:

The man who thinks women are sweet but brainless creatures.

The man who whispers "sweet nothings" because it's too much of an effort for him to think of sensible things to talk about.

The man who thinks kisses are of less value than bank notes.

The man who carries a parasol without jabbing it into her back hair.

The man who talks business affairs when she is growing gray trying to forget of them.

The man who likes some other girl better than he likes her.

The man who glories in sarcasm. And he is, without doubt, hated more vigorously than any other man on the whole list.—Chicago Record.

A few riddles solved:

Feet have they, but they walk not—stones.

Eyes have they, but they see not—potatoes.

Teeth have they, but they chew not—saws.

Noses have they, but they smell not—teaspoons.

Mouths have they, but they taste not—rivers.

Hands have they, but they handle not—clocks.

Ears have they, but they hear not—combs.

Tongues have they, but they talk not—wagons.—Good Housekeeping.

The Doctor Passed Him.

GRAVENHURST, Sept. 18.—About a year the newspapers contained of the curious case of Sam Murray, a railway brakeman of this place. He was paralyzed, as a consequence of an injury received while coupling cars, and for two years was unable to work. Several doctors, among them some Toronto specialists, pronounced him incurable and his case hopeless. The Grand Trunk Railway Company paid him his full disability claim, and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen was about to pay a similar claim, when Murray astonished everybody by a return to health. It was proven at the time, beyond the possibility of a doubt, that Murray's recovery was due to Dodd's Kidney Pills. A few days ago Murray applied to a life insurance company to take out a policy on his life. Two physicians have just examined him, pronounced him a desirable risk, and recommended the company to issue a policy. That's the kind of work Dodd's Kidney Pills do.
