WEDNESDAY

The pounding storm tide at North Rustico returned to normal yesterday after causing between $10,000 and $12,000 damage to the breakwater and flooding several homes.

The damage estimate was obtained last night from an official of the Federal Department of Public Works. 134 feet of the 850 foot breakwater will have to be rebuilt as a result of Sunday night's storm.

In all about 273 feet of the breakwater was badly battered. Approximately 140 feet of this section will be repaired as soon as possible.

Residents of the five homes evacuated are expected to return to their houses today. Yesterday these people spent the day drying out the first floors of their dwellings which were covered with water Monday afternoon.

The rebuilding work on the breakwater will not commence until next summer as it would be impossible to start construction at this time of year.

The Red Cross are planning to organize a disaster committee to aid the village residents in the event of another damaging storm.

A true bill against William Weeks, 42, of Charlottetown, charged with murder in connection with the death of James J. Mullins, 80, Charlottetown, on December 4, was found by the Grand Jury yesterday during the first day's proceedings of the January Assizes of the Supreme Court in Queen's County. The deceased was found dead from head injuries in the kitchen of his Douglas Street home by police on the morning of December 5.

The accused will be arraigned at the reopening of the court at 11 A. M. on Thursday.

Justice Mark M. MacGuigan presided at yesterday's session, and in his charge to the Grand Jury briefly reviewed the evidence given at the preliminary hearings of the case against Weeks. He stated that it was one of the duties of citizenship to serve in this manner, and the sole purpose of the Grand Jury was to decide if the Crown had sufficient evidence to proceed with the case against the accused.

Justice MacGuigan then explained the use of the word 'murder' and how culpable homicide is determined. He suggested the Grand Jurors should have little difficulty arriving at a conclusion in the case before them, and then named the witnesses who had been called previously to give evidence.

The pulp-wood industry has developed into one of the busiest phases of business in the Province during the past month and has now reached the stage where buyers are practically tripping over one another in an attempt to procure the wood.

Farmers are cutting in the majority of available woodlots, a well informed source told The Guardian yesterday, and are practically no longer into the woods than they are confronted with buyers waiting for the first cord to be cut.

With all the stiff purchasing competition the farmer has benefited considerably to date. Wood which was selling for $6.00 a cord last fall is now selling at around $13.00 a cord. Some dealers were quoting $18.50 yesterday and others may have gone higher.

Dr. John T. Croteau of the Department of Economics of the Catholic University of America, and formerly Professor of Economics and Sociology at Prince of Wales College and St. Dunstan's University, and managing director of the F. S. I. Credit League, has published another interesting booklet on the co-operative system of banks.

Dr. Croteau has chosen the "Caisse Populaire Desjardins" of Quebec as his subject, and tells fully of the life of Alphonse Desjardins, the originator of this particular institution.

The booklet tells that Desjardins was particularly affected by a story which he heard delivered in the House of Commons by a member from Prince Edward Island. It was at that time that Desjardins, who was founded in 1882 by a priest from France who had come to take charge of a country parish of poor Acadian farmers. This bank had operated successfully for 30 years until in 1892 it was forced to dissolve in order to comply with the new Canadian banking laws. This was one of the earliest people's banks in North America and was a major factor in re-establishing the Acadian farmers on the land. This bank seems to have impressed Desjardins with the possibilities of action in the field of people's banks.

Referring to the Desjardins institution, Dr. Croteau states that since 1933 the membership has increased from 50,000 to 529,000, and the assets from $10,000,000 to $197,000,000.

Delegates, directors and members attending the Federation of Agriculture meeting in Charlottetown yesterday unanimously asked that a quota system of marketing potatoes be put into effect as soon as possible and that a system of grower registration be instituted to aid this action.

Mr. D. A. MacDonald, Chairman of the Provincial Potato Marketing Board stated that the board members would immediately try to think of ways and means of putting the quota scheme into effect next year.

This resolution was one of the most lively discussed during the afternoon and night sessions and was passed after several farmers had asked for some means of controlling the potato business so that growers and professional men would be curtailed in planting operations.

Quota System Explained

The quota system as it worked in other Provinces was explained by Mr. Lincoln Dewar, Secretary of the Provincial Federation. In some sections the quota of the crop depends upon his number of acres of land and in others the size of the crop he has planted or sowed.

The registration of the grower will eliminate all undesirable parties in the production of potatoes, it was explained. The first qualification is that the applicant must be a bona fide farmer.

Mr. Roland MacDonald, Southport stated that it would be to the farmers advantage if they never received a support price this year. "If we have to take the potatoes down to the wharf and dump them and get the gamblers out of the business we would be a lot better off," he stated.

Messrs. D. A. MacDonald, Glenfinnan and E. D. Reid, Chairman and Manager of the Potato Marketing Board respectively reviewed the work of the board to date and outlined policies for the betterment of the industry.

The meeting commended the efforts of the Potato Marketing Board and urged that they continue their representations to the authorities concerned for the satisfactory solution of the potato problem.
