Rankin-Gill Wedding

As the rays of the setting sun shone in the western windows on a setting of apple blossoms, a pretty spring wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, June 10, at 7 p. m., at the home of the bride, Annie Isabel, daughter of Mrs. John Gill, Union Road, and the late John Gill, who became the bride of Norman William Woodrow, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Rankin, Bethel.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. T. Irwin of Charlottetown. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Walter W. Gill, chose for her wedding a white ballerina dress with nylon bodice and bouffant skirt of nylon net over taffeta. She carried a nosegay of red roses and wore a bandeau of red rosebuds.

The bride's twin sister, Miss Mary Gill was maid of honor and wore an aqua green ballerina dress. She carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations. The groom was attended by Mr. Errol Lund, Mount Herbert.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and supper was served to nearly 40 guests. The bride's table was prettily decorated with bouquets of apple blossoms and centered with a two-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The cake was cut in the traditional manner by the bride and groom.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. J. T. Irwin and the groom responded. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Milton Vessey, Miss Grace MacLean, Miss Louise Gillis, Mrs. Walter Gill and Miss Margaret Gill.

For the wedding the bride's mother wore a dress of navy crepe. Her corsage was of dark pink carnations. The groom's mother wore a dress of printed jersey. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Malcolm MacLean, Charlottetown, later assisted by Miss Grace MacLean, Mr. Malcolm MacLean and Mr. Errol Lund, who entertained during the reception.

The happy couple left for a brief honeymoon. The bride wore a powder blue suit of gabardine with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Upon return, they have taken up residence at Bethel, previous to her marriage the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower at her home at Union Road, and also in Charlottetown when the hostesses were Mrs. Malcolm MacLean and Miss Grace MacLean.

Mr. and Mrs. Rankin were the recipients of many wedding gifts as well as a congratulatory telegram from Wales and the best wishes of a host of friends.

Miss Ann Worthy left Thursday on return to Toronto following a visit with her mother, Mrs. H. L. Worthy.

Mrs. Frank Andrew, Upper Prince Street, gave a children's party Wednesday afternoon. The guests of honour were Laura Jeanne, Michelle and Simonne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Arsenault.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Arsenault and family leave this week-end to take up residence in Montreal.

She Has Good Job And Is Pondering Marriage, But Obstacle Arises

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm an unmarried lady of 36, good-looking, earning a good salary and with, of course, a problem. In the past I have had my share of dates, and marriage proposals, none of which interested me enough. Now I find my circle of potential daters dwindling, leaving me with many lonesome evenings. I have one friend my own age, and though I enjoy his company, I'm not sure I love him. I honestly believe his companionship is the important factor to me. He is very good company and we enjoy the same things.

We have discussed marriage, but he refuses to consider living with my parents, which we would have to do, and I don't think he's the responsible domestic type. He likes to go where he wishes, when he wishes. Though I don't think I'd like to marry him, I hate the thought of giving up my friendship. He, however, won't continue seeing me unless I agree to marriage on his terms. Please don't say I'm silly because to me this situation is serious.

ANSWER: Contrary to considering you silly, I think you are very wise and sensible. Too many unhappy marriages result from a need for companionship that isn't satisfied after the wedding. Men who insist that marriage be on their terms are certainly exhibiting. Continued on page 16

That Body Of Yours

MORE ABOUT PROLAPSE OF LINING OF STOMACH

What many of us forget is that while the stomach when full can hold three pints, when empty it becomes so much smaller that the lining, the mucous membrane, wrinkles into folds. So loose is this lining that often when the stomach movements squeeze on the food in the stomach or squeeze when the stomach is empty, some of this lining gets squeezed out of the stomach and into the first part of the small intestine. This condition is spoken of as prolapse of the gastric mucosa (stomach lining).

When some of the stomach lining is pushed down out of the stomach into the first part of the small intestine, it naturally causes symptoms — pain, fullness, nausea and vomiting.

In Georgia Medical Association, Atlanta, Dr. M. Johnson states that when some of this loose lining enters the intestine, there is a tendency for the symptoms to be maniacal in nature. So loose is often vomiting without much nausea. Sometimes food causes so much pressure that the lining bleeds and the physicians may suspect ulcer. Fortunately there is no evidence that prolapse of stomach lining predisposes to cancer.

Dr. Johnson lists 224 cases of prolapsed stomach lining collected from the literature on the subject. Of a total of 1,593 X-ray examinations of stomach disturbances observed by himself, 117 were found who had prolapsing stomach lining.

What about symptoms of prolapsing stomach lining? While the X-ray shows up the condition, the symptoms do not follow exactly the amount of prolapsed lining, being sometimes light in apparently severe cases and extensive with small prolapse.

Fortunately, the treatment is the same as the treatment for ulcer and as most cases of ulcer of the stomach and small intestine (peptic ulcer) are now successfully treated by medicines and alkalies, Dr. Johnson suggests that ulcer treatment should be tried as long as possible before surgery is used. Surgery for mucosal prolapse should be limited to some form of. Continued on page 3

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife. What elements, think we, must enter into that aggregate of items which altogether make up a happy life? What shall we choose to make our hours happy from these summer days which now pleasantly warm, unfold smilingly the farmlands? Sunshine we would take — from the abundance which jewels the millstream and lights with touches of gold the pasturals of pasturing flock and herd... and grants ideal days for Mr. D. and his helpers to shape the foundation of the new barn; to fashion stout sills of concrete and a rear wall of the same to a height to provide cozy first-floor quarters to house Rob's stock.

"We are apt to look with a certain condensation on the smallish barns of the past," we overheard James remark to a visiting farmer this evening as together they took stock of this first phase of the building. "But when we stop to consider it, many a fine animal came out of them... there'll never come such handsome and valuable horses out of these new ones! The old folks didn't sleep away their days at all — no indeed; let's not allow that notion to linger in our heads."

For our happiness a bit of the light summer breeze we should add to our mixture, scented with a distillation of warmed earth, new leaves, fern-spice, blossoms and herbs, and all the exquisite remembered fragrances of past years — and to preserve it, salt of a sea-wind. We should reach for a pinch of white cloud — not measuring frugally for though we took much with which to foster dreams, we should mix in loving thoughts of the air folk — those who know us well and love us despite our faults; of children too, and friends who reach out warm hands in greeting; laughs we should select with care, choosing only those merry and kind... And it is likely the brine of a tear. Oh yes, for how could we appreciate happiness if we had never known a sadness? A prayer too — a simple little petition from the heart, such as the lady might offer, for it is written if we remember, "unless ye become as little children ye shall in no wise..."

A rosy dawn we should add for color; and a bit of the veil of dusk so beautiful these summer evenings as in a gentle benediction at day's end it floods into this valley bringing peace and rest to the farm-folk... Other things we should need too, we are sure, items of the spirit such as Queen Margaret of Navarre wrote in her recipe for a happy life in the historic and long gone yesterdays and quite as applicable now as then... and we doubt not while time lasts.

For Tomorrow ENJOY your surroundings to their fullest extent on Sunday, and do not bother seeking the unusual in entertainment or make any effort to meet new friends. This day's astral influences augur so well for harmonious relationships with family and old friends and are so beneficent where home surroundings are concerned, that there is no point in going afar in search of happiness.

For the Birthday If tomorrow is your birthday, the year ahead promises much in the way of satisfactory fulfillment of long-cherished desires. You may have to work rather industriously, but the rewards will be well worth the effort and you should gain much through the appreciation of someone in authority. Personal relationships are under particularly beneficent aspect.

There may be a short period of domestic tension right now, but it is a temporary situation which you can solve with your innate diplomacy and tact. Avoid yielding to an urge to be extravagant. Your financial situation will be much better later in the year.

A child born on this day will be. Continued on page 16

How Can I!!!

By Anna Ashley. Q. How can I keep candles firm in their holders? A. Melt some paraffin, pour into the sockets of the candlesticks, and while hot, set the candles into the holders.

Q. How can I easily remove tea and coffee stains from the inside of china cups? A. They are easily removed if rubbed with a damp cloth dipped in baking soda.

Q. How can I restore the color to pink underwear? A. The color of pink underwear may be restored by adding a few drops of mercurchrome to the rinse water.

Cook's Corner

SAUSAGE ROLLS WITH TOMATO SAUCE. Either freshly mixed hot mustard or bottled mustard may be used to touch the sausages before they are wrapped in thin bread for baking. They can be served with a quick tomato sauce and a green vegetable — a very good main course for an informal meal. For use as hors d'oeuvres, cut the sausage rolls in half before baking and just serve them plain. Yield—allow three rolls per serving.

1. Roll up each sausage. Fry the sausages in a pan until cooked through. Cut the same number of bread slices as sausages; trim off crusts. If using prepared mustard, spread bread slices lightly with it, then place a sausage at one end of each slice. If using hot mustard blended smooth with cold water, arrange a sausage at one end of each bread slice and dot sausages with the mustard.

2. Roll up each sausage and secure with wooden picks. Arrange on a greased baking sheet and brush with melted butter or margarine. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, until golden—10 to 12 minutes. Serve piping hot, with the tomato sauce. Make the sauce while the sausage rolls are baking. Turn the tomato soup into a saucepan and stir in the onion, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine and horseradish; heat thoroughly, stirring often.

at least, but they should rejoice the heart. Then of love's magic drops a few—but use them sparingly, for they bring a flame which naught but tears will drown. Grind the whole and mix therewith of merriment an ounce to even. Yet all this may not bring happiness save in your orisons you lift your voice to Him who holds the gift of heaven. Until Monday — — — Diary — — — Good-night... .

Household Scrapbook

By Roberta Lee. Stained Ticking. The stains on bed ticking can be removed by applying a paste of raw starch and water to the stained portions and allowing it to dry on, then brushing thoroughly. Doughnuts. There will be no waste of sugar when sugaring doughnuts, if a cupful of powdered sugar is poured into a paper bag, and when the doughnuts are cool, put a few at a time into the bag and shake them. Whisk Broom. If the whisk broom is half worn and no longer satisfactory for its original purpose, use it for a scrubbing brush for enameled ware. Trim it to a stub, scald with soapy water, then with clear water, and finally rinse with cold water.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee. Q. Is it considered proper to leave the table in the middle of a meal? A. If absolutely necessary, one may do so quietly after saying "Excuse me, please." No explanation need be given. Q. If a young man sends a girl a box of candy or flowers, but she is not in the least interested in him, is it necessary for her to write and thank him? A. If she wishes to show good-breeding, she will write. But she should try tactfully to discourage his attentions. Q. Should one address one's dentist as "Mr. Black," or should it be "Dr. Black"? A. The dental surgeon is perfectly entitled to be addressed as "doctor," and it would be a lack of courtesy to address him otherwise.
