THE LATE MR. JOHN BALL.

More than ever, lately, we are being reminded of the uncertainty of life, and the certainty of death. The ordinary observer would have supposed that Mr. John Ball was a man in the prime of life and in perfect health. Ignorant of the fact that he was upwards of sixty and under treatment for heart disease for some time past, the community was greatly shocked this morning, as well as deeply grieved, upon learning that he expired suddenly at a quarter to eight o'clock last evening. He performed the exacting duties of his office as Clerk of the Legislative Assembly with his customary ability, and has, since the prorogation of the Legislature, continued to transact business, though all the while unwell. He was out on Saturday, but did not leave his residence on Sunday. In the afternoon he sent his servant to ask his medical adviser to come to see him. When the Doctor arrived, Mr. Ball was in his room dressed, his wife being the only other person in the house. He was standing in his room and complained of a pain at his heart. The physician advised him to sit down. He did so and died almostly instantly.

Mr. Ball was a son of the late Hon. Joseph Ball. He was born on the 6th of March, 1833, and was, consequently, in his sixty-second year. Educated at the Central Academy, he adopted the profession of his father, which he prosecuted with efficiency until the end. The first offices held by him under the Government were those of Road Correspondent and Assistant Clerk of the Executive and Legislative Councils. In 1867 he was appointed to the office of Clerk of the Legislative Council. This office he held until the amalgamation of that body with the House of Assembly. At the beginning of last session he was elected Chief Clerk of the Legislature. As an official, he was ever, in a high degree, efficient and courteous.

He married, early in life, Ellen, the eldest daughter of the Honorable George Coles, and leaves a widow and three children. Mr. Plaw Ball, his son, resides in a town near Chicago; Miss Maud Ball is at present in Montreal, and Miss Merci Ball is residing at home. Mrs. Ball and her family have the heartfelt sympathy of the community in their sudden and great affliction.

CAPTAIN RODERICK CAMERON.

The death of Captain Roderick Cameron, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, removes another man of marked individuality and great popularity. "We shall not look upon his like again." He was large of stature, and large of brain and heart.

MR. JUSTICE FITZGERALD.

As we go to press, we learn that a telegram from Senator Macdonald conveys the intelligence that Mr. R. R. Fitzgerald, Q. C., has been appointed Judge of the Supreme Court and Vice-Chancellor, in the room of the late Honorable Joseph Hensley. This confirms the rumor of the street. We hasten to congratulate Mr. Justice Fitzgerald. In appointing him, we have no doubt that the Government had regard particularly to his excellent record as Stipendiary Magistrate of Charlottetown.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—Sir Charles Tupper has written a letter in approval of the model of the memorial statue of Sir John Macdonald executed by Mr. Wade for the city of Montreal.

—Harper's Weekly connects sensational journalism and asylums for the insane. Whether the reference is to the editors or the readers of sensational newspapers is not stated.

—Since 1881 the export of cheese from the United States has dropped from $16,381,000 to $7,624,000 In the same time the export of Canadian cheese has gone up from five and a half to thirteen and a half millions.

—"Down in Nova Scotia," said Archbishop O'Brien to a reporter of the Ottawa Journal, a few days ago, "Protestants and Catholics recognize each other's rights and try to live in peace and harmony. They agree to differ, and as a result things go on very nicely. The people up this way, however, seem to be, religiously speaking, just where we in Nova Scotia were 90 years. To my mind there is no necessity for religious strife."

—In the course of a speech at Birmingham on the 24th inst., Lord Rosebery said that he hoped the Liberal conference in Leeds would speak emphatically in favor of a great limitation of the powers and prerogatives of the House of Lords. This, he said would be in the interest, not only of the constitution and liberal legislation but also in the interest of the Lords themselves. Referring to the threatened desertion of the Welsh members of Parliament, Lord Rosebery said the Welsh Disestablishment bill would be passed before the government's appeal to the country. If the discontented Welshmen did not believe in the government's honesty and honor the sooner they carried their threats into effect the better. He never would consent to be a minister on suffrance.

—The main planks in the platform of the Opposition in Ontario are as follows:

To keep the expenditure of the province within the limits of the revenue.

To give the poor voter the protection of an absolutely secret ballot.

To take the control of education and the schools out of politics.

To destroy the power of Government appointees to collect campaign funds from liquor license holders.

To put the public lands on the same basis as the other assets of the province so that they may not be disposed of without the assent of the representatives of the public in the Legislature.

To take measures to conserve and maintain the forest wealth of the province.

To promote the development of its mineral wealth.

To reduce expenditure by abolishing Government House.

To hold only biennial sessions of the Legislature.

TRIBUTES TO THE LATE JUDGE HENSLEY.

The following address, signed by a committee of the Bar Society, was presented to Mrs Hensley on:

Dear Madam,—It was with feelings of the deepest regret that the members of the Law Society of P. E. Island learned of the death of your husband, the late Mr. Justice Hensley.

They wish to tender you their earnest sympathy in the great trial to which God, in His wisdom, has seen fit to subject you; and they desire to express the high opinion entertained by the Bar of this Province for the distinguished Judge who has passed away. He will long be remembered with affectionate respect by those who practised in the courts over which he presided. A wise and trusted counsellor to those whose experience was not so great as his own, ever ready to give kindly caution or wise advice to younger men to whom his caution and his advice were oftentimes of incalculable benenfit, he will be long mourned as a personal friend by many a member of the profession which he adorned.

For many years before his elevation to the Bench, he was one of the foremost public men of this Island, and held the highest positions in the gift of the people, with honor to himself and to the great benefit to the public whom he so well served. Raised to the Judiciary, he amply fulfilled the expectations of his friends, proving himself to be an upright, able and impartial Judge. More than all, he was a Christian man, and now, having gone to his reward, he leaves to his family, and to those who remain, a name that is revered, an example that may well be followed, a life that may well be imitated.

Trusting that the Divine hand upon which the late Judge would have relied for support may sustain you in this your hour of trial,

We remain, Dear Madam,
Your obedient servants,
Geo. Alley,
R. R. Fitzgerald,
A. B. Warburton,
Committee of the Law Society of P. E. I.

To Mrs. Hensley.

RESOLUTION OF SYMPATHY BY ST. PAUL'S VESTRY.

At the meeting of the Vestry of St. Paul's Church, held on the 14th May, it was on motion of H. J. Cundall, seconded by W. H. Aitken, Esq, unanimously

Resolved, That the Rector, Churchwardens and Vestry of St. Paul's Church desire to place on record their sense of the deep loss the Church and community at large have sustained in the death of the honorable Judge Hensley who, for so many years, has been an active, useful and consistent member of the Church. They desire to express their sincere sympathy with Mrs. Hensley and other members of his family in their recent sad bereavement.

DROWNED IN A WELL.

A Terrible Tragedy Recently Enacted at Upper Economy, N. S.

One of the most distressing affairs ever chronicled took place at Upper Economy, Colchester County, N. S., one day last week, viz., the drowning of two children in a well by their own mother. Mrs. Charles Jackson, the mother of eleven children, who was insane for some time about ten or twelve years ago, had a return of her malady lately, but apparently in a milder form, and was thought to be better. On Wednesday afternoon she was at home with her baby, a little boy about six years old, and a girl a year or two younger. She tore up the cover of the well, which had been nailed down, and threw the little boy and girl both in and left them to drown. She then went to Mrs. Fulton, her nearest neighbor, and told her what she had done. Mrs. Fulton scarcely believed her, but ran to the house and called to some of the nearest neighbors for help, but they arrived only in time to rescue the dead bodies of the children from the well.

An inquest was held and a verdict was returned in accordance with the facts. Mrs. Jackson stated to the jury that she did the deed, as she had been directed to kill the children, but her heart failed her when she came to the baby. Mr. Jackson was from home at the time.

Lord Shrewsbury, who enjoys the distinction of being the premier earl of England, is playing a very prominent part just now in London in connection with the great cab strike, being one of the largest cab-owners in the English metropolis. He has 500 hansoms, which are all models of comfort and style. Lord Shrewsbury has taken a very sensible attitude in the present difficulty, and is gaining the assistance of intermediaries, has insisted on dealing with the disaffected drivers himself, having met them several times for the purpose. He threatens that unless they show themselves ready to meet him half way he will withdraw from the business and sell his cabs. This would be a distinct loss to the public, which is under great obligations to Lord Shrewsbury, who is so wealthy, possessing an income of over $400,000 per annum from land alone, that he runs his cab business rather as a fad than as a speculation, or even investment.

SONS OF ENGLAND PARADE.

The members of Eton Lodge, Sons of England B. S turned out yesterday in full dress to celebrate the Queen's Birthday. Although Eton Lodge has not yet reached its third birthday, still, in spite of the inclemency of the weather, between forty and fifty members assembled at the lodge room to take part in the procession, and thus pay homage to Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria. At ten minutes to eleven the parade, headed by the Artillery Band and marshalled by Mr. Isaac Carter, ignoring the heavy showers of rain, started for St. Paul's Church. Immediately in rear of the Band, which discoursed appropriate music, came the ensign bearing aloft the dear old flag that has braved the battle and the breeze—the symbol of England's prestige and power. The ensign was supported by two guards in full uniform, after whom the other members of Eton Lodge marched two and two. The members were all clothed in their handsome regalia, and each man wore a rose, the emblem of the order, in his button hole. After the procession arrived at the church, and the Union Jack was posted near the pulpit, the band, led by Mr. Worth, played while the congregation sang that glorious old soul-stirring hymn so dear to all true English hearts, "God Save the Queen." After the usual services, the Rev. Mr. Hamlyn preached a very appropriate sermon from the text "Honorable men: Love the Brotherhood, fear God, honor the King." The rev. gentleman spoke in the highest terms of the Order, its motives and success. He attributed the rapid growth of the Sons of England to the fact that the principles inculcated by the order are coincident with with those laid down by the Gospel. He also spoke in very touching terms of the patriotic and beneficent objects of the society, and pictured them as good Samaritans coming in the hours of affliction and distress and assisting and comforting the widows and orphans, as well as tending and helping the sick and wounded. At the close of divine service the procession was re-formed and marched along Richmond Street to Queen, thence to Kent, and along Kent to their lodge room. This was the first appearance in public of Eton Lodge, and the whole affair was conducted in a manner highly creditable to the order.

A BARBER'S COMPLAINT.

Sir,—You have doubtless heard of the stage-struck barber—but that is not what ails me. I'm law-struck. There is an old axiom that custom is stronger than law! It has been the custom, ever since this city was founded, for merchants, artizans, barbers, &c., to utilize the otherwise unoccupied strip of mother earth that lies between the sidewalk and the street by exposing thereon their signs and samples of their wares. In accordance with this well-established custom, a few days ago I erected opposite my place of business a small but handsome barber-pole, in order to assist those who might require my services to find my shop. The said barber-pole is entirely out of the way It is civil and polite and interferes with no one. Teams coming down the street could not run against it without crossing the ditch and climbing the bank at the side of the road; foot passengers, baby carriage engineers, and bicycle tourists, who patronize the sidewalks would have to mow down the line of elegant advertisement-patched, unplaned telephone posts (to say nothing of the ornamental rustic light wire supports) that grace our thoroughfare before they could even complain of any obstructive conduct on the part of my strictly temperate "barber pole."

On Saturday I was served with a notice from the present grit no-impediment-in-the-way-of-trade City Council to remove that "barber pole." Now, sir, is not custom stronger than this grit by-law? If I must remove my inoffensive "barber pole" I would like to ask if there is anything to prevent me from planting a nice ornamental tree on the same spot? If so, might not I assist nature by adorning the said tree with black and white stripes so as to let citizens know that they can find in the vicinity.
