"During the past few years our export trade "with Great Britain has undergone great ex- "pansion, and particularly in the products of "the farm. Our total trade with that country "has increased from $67,288,848 in 1879, to "an average of $101,011,304 during the past "five years; while the annual export of farm "products alone has increased from $32,028, "611 to $50,106,898 in the same period."—SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

MAY 20, 1896.

TRUE CITIZENSHIP.

THE President of the Toronto Board of Trade, on concluding a report in which he deplored the late widespread commercial depression, and expressed his confidence in the approach of a better order of things, said:

"What is particularly wanted now is confidence in the future of our country, and belief in its naturally great resources, and determination to develop every legitimate industry to the fullest possible extent."

It must be remembered that this is not the declaration of a sinful politician, but of a practical business man, with his eyes open to the wants and requirements of his fellow-citizens, as well as of himself; expressed not before an excited political gathering, but before an assemblage of the business men of Toronto, chosen irrespective of creed and politics. If we accept it as a standard in the selection of the leaders our country needs at present, shall we not, as certainly, include in the list of her necessary statesmen the man who closed his manifesto to the electors of Canada with the following sentences, as we shall exclude him whose sentiments are voiced farther down in this article,—

"It has been charged as a reproach against me that I have had too much confidence in the possibilities and the destiny of my country, and that I have been guilty of looking too often on the bright side of things. I do not deny the allegation. I have always cherished the deepest faith in the future of this great confederation, and have given the best years of my life to the realization of those hopes, and now, at the allotted span of life, I return to the struggle, strong in the belief that you will help me to carry on the work of making Canada the home of a great, a prosperous and a happy people."

The ring of pride and triumph' pervading Sir Charles Tupper's utterance from beginning to end, as he looked back upon the battles fought and the victories, won, as he turned his eyes upon the bustling activity and the multitudinous industries sprung, as it were, full-grown from the National Policy with all that is good in which, as Principal Grant says, "the name of Tupper must be identified," found appropriate ceasing in the memorable words which we have quoted.

Equally emphatic would be our voice in denying political respectability to Mr. L. H. Davies when we apply the test set up by the President of the Board of Trade; for in his speech at North River on the 12th of May last the Patriot states that he said:

"With farmers products selling for the prices they now are, Mr. Davies saw no hope in the future, unless the taxes were reduced and the people permitted to buy the cheap goods of the world."

That farmers products are selling at the price they really are is due to the National Policy. We learn from a private letter written by a lady residing in a country district of South Dakota that oats have been selling there within the past month for 10 cents a bushel, and corn from 12 to 17 cents. Were the farmer here not protected he would have to bear the brunt of American competition—a very serious thing when farm produce is so cheap in the States. It is to be remembered that free trade in Canada does not mean that the duty against Canadian products entering the United States is going to be removed. Free trade in Canada does not imply free trade in America. Hence the prices received would not be increased. All the articles, too, the farmer requires to buy for ordinary use are free from duty under the present system. The reduction of the taxes the Hon. Edward Blake, Mr. Davies' late leader, proclaimed to be the one impossibility that rendered free trade impracticable for Canada; the amount of the taxes must be great per capita to adequately develop the country, and they must be levied in the lightest manner possible; therefore free trade, with its attendant direct taxation, is not feasible. Such was Mr. Blake's argument, and its conclusion places Mr. Davies in the list of our most confirmed pessimists. Far from allowing him to be eligible for leadership his despair in the future of Canada should of itself, independently of his treacherous desertion of the interests of his native Isle in order to please his leaders in the upper provinces, exclude him from the number of our desirable politicians.

—The Patriot says that Mr. Laurier did not ask Sir Oliver Mowat to resign his Premiership and run for the Commons. Sir Oliver Mowat says he was asked to resign and become a candidate for the Commons. Who is right?

FISHING TACKLE—JOHNSON & JOHNSON.

A CONTRAST.

THE courage and confidence displayed by Messrs. Angers, Taillon and Desjardins are in striking contrast with the shrewd and selfish timidity of Sir Oliver Mowat and our Mr. L. H. Davies. Sir Oliver, asked to take part as a candidate in the contest, gives Mr. Laurier his good wishes and decides to take a seat in the Senate,—if Mr. Laurier should succeed! Mr. L. H. Davies, having the choice of what he considers a safe constituency and a constituency in which he would have to fight for his election, chooses the former and forces out of the field the Hon. David Laird. Angers, Taillon and Desjardins enter the contest in counties formerly held by the Opposition, and are determined to win them for the Government. Yes! the contrast is strong.

THE GUARDIAN'S COMPLAINT

THE Guardian states that THE EXAMINER's conclusion that its correspondent was either a mythical personage or that he lies under a mistake was a "rude insinuation." We greatly regret that it was the only conclusion that could possibly be drawn from the facts. If "Western Merchant' is not mythical, he certainly lies under a mistake. Granted that "there is another telegraph company doing a large business in the Maritime Provinces," it is yet true that its rules require "no night messages to be accepted for points off the lines of this company or its connections."

A company in the service of the public is, of course, open to public criticism. But the criticism ought to be true, and fair, and above board. While the Anglo American Company have not met the expectations of all persons, we believe that it will be generally admitted that they have done, and are doing, as well as can be expected under all the circumstances her existing. Their officials here have, at all events, earned the respect of the community, and we believe that the attacks of the Guardian and its correspondents are not supported by public opinion. To obtain a night service the Guardian ought not to ask the company to give up its small profit of 2 per cent. on the capital invested or the public at large to make up the expense. It ought to guarantee to the company so much additional business that the company will be justified in affording a night service.

MEETING AT WINSLOE.

A joint meeting of the candidates for East Queen's was held in Winsloe Hall last night. The meeting was fairly well attended. The first speaker was Mr. Welsh, the Liberal candidate, and it was given in his usual style. If he could see the point in his speech he was the only one in the Hall that could. He again referred to the great good he had done the country by defeating the Chignecto Ship Railway bill, but did not state that his colleague, Mr. L. H. Davies, had at the same time voted for the bill. This he should have done, as with Mr. Davies' great power in the House of Commons used against him, Mr. Welsh's task must have been all the harder. He also boasted that on two occasions he had been offered the office of Minister of Marine and Fisheries, but had refused on both occasions to accept that office. He was asked to name the Minister who made him the offers, but refused to do so.

Mr. Martin then addressed the meeting in a clear and lucid manner. Although he was suffering from a severe cold, he kept the attention of the meeting for over an hour. He scored point after point against Mr. Welsh. He pointed out that while the Grit party had many policies, and were coining new ones every day, the Liberal-Conservative party had one—the National Policy—which was upheld by every speaker in the party, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He stated that the policy of the Conservative party and of the Government was to construct the branch railways in this Province and that the ridicule cast upon the railway extension would have no effect, as the people knew the Government was in earnest. At the close he was loudly applauded.

He was followed by Mr. F. Peters, who at the outset objected to defeated candidates speaking on the Conservative side at the meetings. This was rather good coming from him—a man who, in 1882 and again in 1886, was badly defeated in Charlottetown, his native place, where he was best known.

Mr. A. A. McLean having been called upon by the chairman and a number in the meeting, went to the platform, and in answer to Mr. Peters' assertion that the Liberal and Patron platforms were similar in all respects, especially in regard to purity in politics, charged the Liberal party in the local administration of this and other provinces with corruption, and said that men of such a type should not be entrusted with the charge of affairs in the Dominion.

At this point Mr. Welsh jumped on the platform followed by Mr. Peters and objected to any comparison between the parties in Local and Dominion affairs.

One thing can be said in favor of the Liberal-Conservative speaker, Mr. McLean, viz., that he did not speak until pressed to do so by the chairman and audience. The same cannot be said of Mr. Peters, who was neither called upon by the chairman nor audience. He seemed to think he had a right to speak as leaders of one man Governments generally do.

A lady may have colors, but she thinks her wardrobe incomplete without a black gown. And it must be a Priestley's black gown. That is, in a word, incomparable. Priestley's black dress fabrics have a richness of surface, and a fineness of texture, coupled with a presence (and this is essential), beside which all else seems poor. The Priestley's are not afraid to surpass themselves, for they have now put on the market a new creation in "Eudora," which for lustre, for fitting and dust shedding quality and distinction, appears to bear away the palm from their celebrated Henrietta. Wrapped on "The Varnished Board," and the name, Priestley, stamped on every five yards. 36

—A meeting of liberals of the county of Compton was held at Lake Megantic, Que., on Wednesday night to consider the advisability of choosing a candidate for the coming election. The pros and cons of the object of the meeting were discussed in all their aspects. No liberal candidate was nominated, and it was decided to endorse the candidature of the Patron, Mr. Willard.

THE BISHOPS' PASTORAL.

After setting forth in general "the inherent principles in the constitution of the Church," the Bishops say:—

"We had hopes, dearly beloved brethren, that the last session of the Federal Parliament would bring to a termination the school difficulties which so widely divide men's minds; we have been deceived in these hopes. History itself will judge of the causes which impeded the long-expected solution.

As for us who have in view only the triumph of the eternal principles of religion and justice confided to our care, we, whom no defeat will ever be able to dishearten or turn aside from the accomplishment of the divine mission which was that of the Apostles themselves, feel, in the presence of the electoral struggle about to take place, that an imperative duty is incumbent on us; this duty is to indicate to all the faithful under our jurisdiction, and whose consciences we have to direct, the only line of conduct to be followed in the present elections.

ADVICE FOR ALL.

Should we, first of all, remind you, dearly beloved brethren, how noble and important is the right bestowed upon you by the Constitution in designating for office the depositaries of public power? Every citizen worthy of the name, every Canadian who loves his country, who wishes it to be great, peaceful and prosperous, should interest himself in its government.

Now; the government of our country, of a people still young, but capable of occupying a distinguished place among the nations, will be what you will make it yourselves by your choice and by your votes.

That is to say, dearly beloved brethren, as a general rule, and save rare exceptions it is a duty of conscience for every citizen to vote; a duty all the more grave and pressing as the questions disputed are important and may exercise over your destinies an influence more or less decisive.

That is to say again, you should vote as honest, wise, enlightened and intelligent Christians.

Avoid, then, dearly beloved brethren, the deplorable excesses against which we frequently warned you; perjury, intemperance, lying, calumny, violence and party spirit, which warp the judgment and produce a kind of voluntary obstinate blindness.

Do not sell your vote. To vote is a duty, and a duty is not sold. Give not your vote to the first comer, but to him whom in conscience you judge the best qualified by his mental powers, firmness of character and his moral principles to fill the noble office of legislator.

And that this judgment may be surer, and more enlightened, fear not the criticisms of a newspaper or the opinions of a friend who would hamper your mind; consult when necessary before voting persons who by their instruction, their rank or their social standing are best qualified to judge of the questions that are agitated, and to appreciate the relative value of the candidates who ask your suffrage.

These are, dearly beloved brethren, general principles of wisdom and Christian prudence that apply to all times and to all elections in which the laws of the country permit you to take part.

AN APPEAL TO PROTESTANTS.

But, in the present circumstances, the duty of Canadian electors, principally Catholic electors, is invested with a character of special importance, to whose gravity we desire to call your attention in a special manner. A grave injustice was committed against the Catholic minority in Manitoba.

They were deprived of their Catholic separate schools and forced to send their children to schools that their consciences condemn. The Privy Council of England recognized the justice of the Catholic claim and the right of the Federal authorities to interfere, in order that justice be done to the oppressed. It is a question, then, for the Catholics of our country, and well meaning Protestants to unite their strength and their suffrages, to secure a final victory for religious liberty and the triumph of the rights secured by the constitution. The means to secure this end is to elect, as representatives of the people, only men sincerely resolved to favor with all their influence and to sustain in Parliament a measure to remedy the evils from which the Manitoba minority suffer. In speaking to you thus, dearly beloved brethren, our intention is not to bind ourselves to any of the parties that are combating in the political arena; on the contrary we desire to preserve our liberty. The Manitoba school question being, before all a religious question, intimately allied to the dearest interests of the Catholic faith in this country, to the natural rights of parents and also to the respect due to the Constitution of the country and to the British crown, we would regard it as betraying a sacred cause, of which we are, and ought to be, the defenders if we did not use our authority to secure its success.

DOUBLE DEALING CONDEMNED.

Remark, dearly beloved brethren, that a Catholic is not permitted, in whatever position he may be,—a journalist, an elector, a candidate or a representative, to have two lines of conduct in religious questions, one for private, and the other for public life, to trample under foot, in the exercise of his social duties, the obligations imposed on him as a submissive child of the church. This is why our Holy Father, Pope Leo XIII. in his encyclical libertas prestantissimum condemns those who pretend that in all that concerns the government of human society, its institutions, moral laws, public functions, the instruction of youth, no more attention is to be paid to the church than if she did not exist. For the same reason, he says elsewhere (Encyclical Immortale Dei): "Before all, it is necessary that all Catholics, worthy of the name, determine to be, and show themselves devoted sons of the church; that they repulse, without hesitation, all that would be incompatible with this profession; that they make use of public institutions as far as they can in consequence, for the furtherance of truth and justice.

Therefore, dearly beloved brethern, all Catholics should support only those candidates who bind themselves formally and solemnly to vote, in Parliament, in favor of legislation which will restore to the Catholic minority of Manitoba the school rights to which they are entitled by the decision of the Hon. Privy Council of England. This grave duty is incumbent on every good Catholic, and you would not be justified, either before your spiritual guides, nor before God himself, by neglecting this obligation.

Until now we could congratulate ourselves on having the sympathetic support of a great number of our separated brethern who understood that, in a country such as ours, having different religions, it is necessary for the general good to make use of this broadness of view which respects liberty of concience and acquired right. We appeal again to their spirit of justice and patriotism, so that joining their influence to that of Catholics they may aid them to redress the grievances of which our co-religionists so justly complain.

WHAT IS DESIRED.

What we want is the triumph of right and justice, the re-establishment of the rights and privileges of our Manitoba brethren, the Roman Catholic minority, in educational matters, so as to shelter them from arbitrary and unjust legislation.

We rely in this matter, dearly beloved brethren, on your spirit of faith and obedience.

We are convinced that, submissive in mind and heart to the teaching of your chief pastors, you will know how, if called upon to place above your personal opinions and feelings the interests of a cause which excels all others—that of justice, order and harmony in the different classes which compose the great Canadian family.

Dated and signed at Montreal, on the sixth day of May, one thousand, eight hundred and ninety six.

The pastoral bears the names of all the Bishops of the Province of Quebec.

THE Provincial W. C. T. U. convention will meet in the Baptist Church, in this city, on Thursday and Friday, 21st and 22nd inst. A cordial welcome is extended to visitors. 1&3
