

It is More Blessed.

Give as the morning that flows out of Heaven, Give as the waves when their channel is given, Give as the free air and sunshine are given, Lavishly, utterly, carelessly give.

Not the waste drops of thy cup overflowing, Not the faint sparks of thy heart's overflowing, Not the pale bud from the June roses blowing, Give as He gave those who gave thee to live.

Pour out thy love like the rush of a river; Wasting its waters for ever and ever, Thro' the burnt sands that reward not the giver,

Silent or songful thou nearest the sea, Scatter thy life as the summer shower's pouring, What if no blossom look upward adoring,

Look to the life that was lavished for thee, Give, tho' thy heart may be wasted and weary Laid on the altar all ashen and dreary,

Tho' from its pills a faint misereere Beats to thy soul the sad presence of fate, Bind it with cords of unshrinking devotion, Smile at the song of its restless emotion,

'Tis the stern hymn of Eternity's ocean, Here, and in silence, thy future await.

So the wild wind strews its perfumed caresses, Evil and thankful the desert it blesses, Bitter the wave that its soft pines presses, Never it ceaseth to whisper and sing;

What if the hard heart give thorns for thy roses? Sweetest is music with minor key's closes, Fairest the views that on ruins will cling.

Almost the day of thy giving is over; Ere from the grass dies the bee-hunter's clover, Thou wilt have vanished from friend and from lover,

What will thy longing avail in the grave? Give, as the heart gives whose fetters are breaking, Life, love and hope, all thy dreams and thy waking,

Soon Heaven's river, thy soul fever slaking, Thou shalt know God and the gift that He gave.

A Fate She Didn't Escape.

"No, Papa Martyn. I am not going to look at his picture. His name is enough to condemn him—Felix Quinten. I know just how he looks; a slim, French dandy, with a black moustache and very black eyes; and he has a fashion of bowing a great deal and of shrugging his shoulders."

Lois Martyn pushed Felix Quinten's letter, which enclosed Felix Quinten's photograph, across the table to Mr. Martyn who had looked quietly at his daughter's spirited description.

"You hardly do the young man justice Lois."

"You must be prejudiced, papa. I am surprised that you should want me to marry a foreigner, whom I had never seen, and I am surprised at his want of delicacy in planning to visit us just to appraise my good and bad qualities, as if I were a piece of furniture, or—a horse."

Mr. Martyn frowned slightly. "Nonsense, Lois. You are taking an exaggerated view of the matter. Felix Quinten is a young man. He speaks as good English as you do, though he is French by birth. He is coming here to visit at my cordial invitation, and it is the desire of my heart that you should be mutually pleased. I know of no young man that I would so gladly entrust your happiness to; but that rests with you. One thing I shall expect of you as my daughter and the nominal mistress of my house—a courteous and hospitable reception of our guest."

Mr. Martyn pocketed Quinten's letter drew on his overcoat, took his hat, and kissed his willful daughter on one cheek, and went away.

He loved her tenderly—this motherless daughter of his, her wildest pranks had been forgiven or laughed at by him, and since her return from boarding school, a year before, they had been very happy together.

She was just nineteen; a tall, graceful, bright-eyed girl, with scornful red lips, and big hazel eyes, a quantity of nut-brown hair which curled in little soft ringlets over her forehead.

"She was the veriest child in many respects, and after her departure for his office, she pondered desperately over a dozen impracticable plans for evading 'that Frenchman,' as in her mind she termed him; for, with a woman's perversity, she had at once decided that the stranger would prove most disagreeable, and that to stay at home and entertain him for a month was not to be thought of.

Of a sudden, a wild idea flashed through her brain; so wild that her eyes dilated, and she caught her breath with a little gasp at the boldness of it. And then a mischievous smile awoke a ravishing dimple in one cheek, as starting from her chair, she took a reckless pirouette down the long room, ending with a flirt that sent one resettled slipper flying from a dainty foot.

"I'll do it!" she declared with a defiant nod at her reflection in the glass. "My name is Norvall! On the Grampian hill my father feeds his flocks—French flocks at that! But, as for me, give me liberty or give me death! Papa will forgive me after it is all over—he always does."

So it happened that a week later, when Mr. Martyn brought Felix Quinten into the pleasant and luxurious parlor, which seemed so comfortable after the keen night air of the December streets, that the old colored servant, who had been with them for years, met her master with these words:

"Please, sir, Miss Lois went away this morning. She left this note, and said as how it would be all right."

And Aunt Frong courtied and left the room.

Mr. Martyn gave his guest a chair, and opened the note with an ominous frown gathering over his kindly face. As he finished it he strode up to young Quinten and extended the open sheet toward him.

"There, Felix, it is useless for me to endeavor to apologize for my wild girl. Read her note."

And Quinten read as follows:—"Darling Papa—Do forgive me. I have made up my mind to run away from Mr. Felix Quinten, for the thought of playing the agreeable to him for a whole month is perfectly unbearable. You can be as nice to him as you like, and you know Aunt Frong will have everything in good shape. I am off for Uncle David's; so don't worry about me. I'll come home when Mr. Quinten has returned to his native land. Your loving

LOUIS."

Felix Quinten laid his head back in his chair, and laughed out in such a rollicking fashion, that Mr. Martyn laughed in sympathy.

"Who is Uncle David?" queried the young man at last.

"Her dead mother's brother, who keeps a lighthouse on a lonely, rocky headland on the coast of Maine. David and his wife set the world by the girl; but think of her spending a month in that lonely place in the dead of winter, with these old people for company!"

Quinten mused for a moment smilingly, and then said: "Mr. Martyn, I will go after her."

"Yes, Felix?" "You; listen to my plan."

Mr. Martyn drew a chair to that of the young man's and listened with some astonishment and much amusement to his proposition.

"It was a clear, cold, wintry night, and the lonely sea coast looked wild and distant enough in the bright starlight. The light in the tower of Black Head made a bright pathway upon the water, dotted here and there with bright fragments of ice."

(Concluded in our next.)

The Great French Remedy, Dr. LeDuc's Periodical Pills.

For the cure of Leucorrhoea or White's Excessive or painful Menstruation, Green Sickness, Falling of the Womb, Catarrh of the Uterus or Vagina, Hysteria, pain in the Back, or Piles, or for the purpose of invigorating and giving tone to the Generative Organs, two pills should be taken twice daily, or in very enfeebled conditions, one pill three times a day. To effect cures in chronic cases it will be necessary to continue the use of the remedy for some months. A reasonable trial will create sufficient confidence in the remedy to insure its being taken until a permanent cure is effected.

GAS COOKING STOVES.

WE have made arrangements with the best makers of Gas Stoves in the United States, which we will be able to supply the public, at the lowest possible price. We have also agreed with the Gas Company (for the purpose of introducing these stoves), to sell the first fifteen (15) for which we may receive orders.

At their Net Cost, LANDED HERE.

TESTIMONIALS.

The following are a few testimonials from a list of several hundred:—

The capacity of the Stove is surprising. With a No. 8 Stove we cooked for a party of seven, giving them broiled oysters, steak, lamb chops, and baked biscuit, in 45 minutes, at a cost for gas of 4¢ cents. On another occasion we gave a dinner in courses of twenty men, the bill of fare as follows: Broiled shad, beef steak, roast quarter of lamb, baked biscuit and coffee; heating the water for washing the dishes four times, re-setting the table three times. All was accomplished in one hour and forty minutes, at an expense for gas of eleven cents. This work was all done on one No. 8 stove. All were enthusiastic over the manner in which the oysters, fish and meats were cooked; none had experienced any so tender, juicy, and of such full flavor before. We consider the stove a great success, and most complete in all its parts and arrangements.

A. C. WOOD, Supt.

I bought one of your No. 12 Gas Cooking Stoves last September, for use in my restaurant, and have used it ever since for baking, broiling and stewing.

I can say for it that it is always ready and does its work rapidly; that there is no dust, no dirt, no surplus heat, as we are using only that portion that we need, and as soon as the article is cooked the gas is extinguished and there is no waste. I think it will do the same amount of work at less cost than coal, even at the high price of gas. It takes much less room than a coal range that would do the same work. I am perfectly satisfied with it and would not be without one for double the price.

J. T. HARKER.

The Gas Stove you sent me, I am glad to say has proved an entire success. If my testimony is of any value to you, you are at liberty to use it. The decrease in the coal bill more than offsets the increase in the gas bill in its operation. The cooking is excellent and uniform in its operation.

No dirt or dust irritates the careful housewife, and Mrs. S. describes it as a "real treasure."

In my humble opinion, any man who really wants to add to the number of allotted days of his better-half, had better invest in a Gas Stove and save her worry, and himself expense.

W. H. SEYMOUR.

We are perfectly delighted with our Gas Stove. It gives entire satisfaction in every respect.

Mrs. M. PENNINGTON, 2103 Vine St.

Your favor of the 1st inst. was duly received asking my opinion of the Gas Cooking Stove bought last May, and in reply, would state that the satisfaction rendered by the stove was far beyond my expectations, and the work it will accomplish is marvelous, together with the small expense and comfort attending the same.

EDWIN A. GARETT.

Having used one of your No. 7 Gas Cooking Stoves for a considerable time past, it is with pleasure that I bear testimony to its genuine merits.

It boils, bakes, broils, roasts, and in fact, does everything that a first class stove or range can do, and with a saving of time and labor, that can only be appreciated by those who use them.

It has given us the most entire satisfaction, and to use my wife's words, "I would not be without it for ten times the cost."

From statements of our gas meter taken, we find it more economical than coal.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proved its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL, a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me."

HORACE FAIRBROTHER, Rockingham, Nt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

Mrs. EMMA GEDNEY, 159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effective remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried."

A. J. CRANE, Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL."

JOSEPH WALDEN, Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles."

E. BRADGON, Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

Dr. Bennet, Halifax.

DEAR DOCTOR,—Just a few lines as promised by me. I am more than pleased with the "Liver Pad" I got from you when in Charlottetown, and can conscientiously say that it is the best thing I ever saw or heard of. It has done for me what all kinds of medicine and different physicians could not do for me, i. e., removed a very nasty body erupt on, which had given me a great deal of annoyance for more than two years; and, more than that, I have not been troubled with a single headache since I have used it. Before wearing the Pad I was troubled with severe headaches continually; and that very objectionable feeling of sluggishness and dullness has entirely left me—in fact I am a new man, to what I was before wearing it. I am truly thankful to you for what you have done for me, and I hope that you may be long spared to the benefit of the public.

Believe me, Yours sincerely, FRANK ELLIOTT.
