The Scotiabank Scholarships at Dalhousie University reflect the commitment of The Bank of Nova Scotia to promoting growth within Canada and in the Caribbean, and to fostering the development of young business professionals. The Dalhousie School of Business Administration offers a first-rate graduate program, preparing students for careers in a variety of fields.

While neither the program structure nor the terms of the Scotiabank Scholarships require that a specialization be declared, candidates may wish to consider Dalhousie's particular strengths in such areas as Finance and International Business. The School's Courseware Development Project places it in the forefront of North American universities in the area of computer applications in business education.

Elvis Returned?

Mass Hallucination Reported. Students Run 'Like Scared Chickens' Says Resident.

A strange and rather frightening-looking object was observed by several dozen students Sunday. Said one student, "It was round and had big windows all around the outside and it glowed and buzzed the tops of the university buildings". Another student claimed to have been abducted by the object, which, he said, was piloted by Elvis Presley.

Experts in the field of UFOlogy have positively identified the object as what is called, in the terminology of the professionals, an Unidentified Flying Object. Said a representative (who did not wish to be identified) "It happens all the time. What you people at UPEI probably experienced was a group of teenage Elvis aliens out on a weekend's fun."

The event is being taken seriously by authorities, who stated in a press release issued Monday: "We are taking steps to ensure that this sort of thing doesn't happen in the future. People have just got to realize that Elvis is dead. The big fat goof is dead. get it?"
