THE EXHIBITION QUESTION.

SIR,—I was not a little surprised to read the editorial column of the Guardian newspaper, a day or two since, an article under the above heading in which the progressive editor of that paper undertakes to qualify the remarks made by Professor Robertson at one of the meetings recently held in this province, wherein the Professor is said to have expressed "his great appreciation of Provincial Exhibitions—they furnish object lessons, advertise the resources of the country, and create enthusiasm among farmers,"—and added his opinion that "each province should hold at least one Exhibition yearly". The learned editor of the Guardian then magnanimously says that what Professor Robertson thus stated is true, in part. How highly pleased the Professor would be to know that that great authority on agriculture and exhibitions had actually endorsed his remarks, in part.

The learned editor then proceeds to say that careful observers have noted that there is another side to the picture—that there is a monotonous sameness about exhibitions. The biggest turnips, potatoes, mangles, etc. of this year, look wonderfully like those of last year. (Probably they are kept in cold storage). Further on he says that there is a painful monotony in the prize list also, and after making some further very sage remarks, informs his readers that the Guardian is not opposed to exhibitions and will gladly see another at some time in the future, if properly managed.

What an admission for the Editor of the Guardian to make that in a province like this, where agriculture may be said to be almost the only pursuit of the people, he really may indulge the hope that if he lives long enough he may yet see another exhibition here!

I would ask, Mr. Editor, if agriculture and agricultural pursuits are not encouraged by the holding of an annual exhibition, where farmers and people of all classes may meet in friendly rivalry and compete for the prizes offered, what then would a patriotic government encourage? Suppose that even the cost to the country would be several thousands of dollars, is there any other way in which such an expenditure can be made to better advantage in the interests of the public at large? I say emphatically, no—and I make this statement without fear of successful contradiction; and I say further that almost every successful farmer and stock raiser in the province will support my statement. Is it not a fact, sir, that notwithstanding the apparent sameness in the various classes of exhibits that must necessarily be observable each year, these competitions have in the past, been of the very greatest benefit to this province, in inducing exhibitors to endeavor to excel each other in the production of the finest roots, vegetables, fruits and cereals, and in the procuring of stock of the best types in all classes. Where, I would ask, would the successful competitors from this province at the St. John and Halifax exhibitions have been but for the preparation made in past years for our Provincial Exhibitions? I say absolutely nowhere. Is not the reputation which the Island Province is now establishing abroad for first class stock of value to the province far and away beyond the paltry sum that has been spent by the Government for that purpose? Is it not true that the great improvement that has taken place in the agricultural industry of this Province is largely due to the exhibitions of the past years? Any person with any knowledge of the subject, and looking to the future of that industry, must see that the value of it alone cannot be measured by a few thousand dollars.

Is it, then, a sign of progress that these things should now be brought to a standstill and much of the good results of the past allowed to languish? I think not. On the contrary, I contend that a government having the interests of the province at heart will not allow such a backward step to be taken by the refusal to spend a few thousand dollars on an exhibition open to the whole province, or indeed the maritime provinces. That an exhibition should be "properly managed" so as to be an object lesson to those who have sufficient interests and intelligence to profit by it goes without saying. With regard, however to the management of the provincial exhibitions of the past ten years, I think it may be fairly claimed, that it has compared very favorably (as small things may be compared with greater) with the exhibitions of any other province of Canada. To such an extent has this been the case that it has called forth the most complimentary remarks from those who have attended from abroad as well as from the press of the

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH CURED

Promptly and Thoroughly By Using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

No Need to be Frightened at the Symptoms, Though They are Frequently Alarming—Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are a Positive Cure

Are you oppressed after meals by a bloated sensation, a feeling of having eaten a great deal too much?

Is this distressing sensation accompanied by a worn-out listless feeling; by the raising of sour, watery fluid to the mouth; headache; nervousness; foul taste in the mouth; furred tongue; or the formation of gas in the stomach?

If your answer to these questions be "Yes," you have "Catarrh of the Stomach."

Sufferers from this disease not frequently believe they have heart disease, and the belief is not unreasonable, until the real nature of the trouble is known.

neighboring Provinces. I would however say that the "properly managed" remark made by professor Robertson was not intended to cast a reflection upon the management of the Provincial exhibitions held here, but to point out that so called exhibitions, without proper and adequate grounds and buildings and other necessary adjuncts, and such as have been too often seen in some parts of this and other provinces, scattered over a whole village or town, were not such as would afford object lessons or be a benefit to a province—this latter kind he would not encourage.

But, Mr. Editor, the Guardian has another fault to find, He says "frequently a man who has a garden patch captures the prize from a man who has a farm." Would the progressive editor, then, shut out the man who by his superior knowledge and industry, but often without the means to obtain a farm, from competition with his more wealthy brother—the large farm owner? Or on the other hand, does he want to prevent a man from competing because he possesses a little more means than his neighbor and is prepared to spend perhaps a little more money in possessing himself of the higher and better class of exhibits and thereby afford the very best object lesson that can be given? Surely in this enlightened period of the world's history, when the rule of the survivor of the fittest, the editor of the Guardian would not want to introduce a species of class-legislation which in any other sphere he would be the first to condemn. Is it not a fact that in England Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen constantly carries off many of the principal prizes at exhibitions held there with her magnificent animals? Is it not true that the Popes, of Compton, the Cochranes, the Ogilvies, the Greenshields, and numerous others of the wealthy men of Quebec and Ontario are the chief exhibitors at the great exhibitions of Toronto and Sherbrooke? Who ever heard of an enlightened press claiming that because perchance they had greater facilities than ordinary people for procuring or producing the best, should be shut out from competition of this kind.

No, Mr. Editor, let it be hoped that the good work of improvement, so well commenced and so fairly under way, may not be now cut off by a mistaken idea of economy on the part of the Government; but, instead, let a reasonable sum be granted and the door thrown open to competition to our sister provinces, and let a still greater stimulus be given to our people to compete with their bigger brothers; and I have no fear, but that the pluck and enterprise which characterize the sons of Prince Edward Island abroad, will be found in those at home, and that they will ere long be prepared to compete in a larger field than even the Maritime Provinces, to the great credit and substantial advantage of our Province.

AGRICULTURIST.

Although a very busy man, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has found time in which to write a great book of over a thousand pages entitled, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in Plain English, or Medicine Simplified. Few books printed in the English language have reached so great a sale as has this popular work, over 680,000 have been sold at $1.50 each. The profits on this enormous sale having repaid its author for the great amount of labor and money expended on its production he has now decided to give away, absolutely free, 500,000 copies of this valuable book, the recipient only being required to mail to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., of which company he is president, 31 one cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, and the book will be sent postpaid. It is a veritable medical library, complete in one volume. It contains 1008 large pages, and over 300 illustrations, some of them in colors. The Free Edition is precisely the same as that sold at $1.50 except only that the books are bound in strong manilla paper covers, instead of cloth. It is not often that our readers have an opportunity to obtain a valuable book on such generous terms, and we predict that few will miss availing themselves of the unusual and liberal offer to which we have called their attention.

NEAR DEATH'S DOOR.

Mr J. H. Ireland's Narrow Escape

From Untimely Death.

He was Reported Dead but Thanks to

Dodd's Kidney Pills he Still Lives and is Well and Strong, Healthy and Hearty.

Halifax, N. S., March 10.—"Yes! The newspapers reported that I was dead, and buried, but, as you notice, I am very much still alive." So spoke Mr. J. H. Ireland, formerly of this city, but who now resides in Toronto. Mr. Ireland was paying a hurried business trip to his old home and was interviewed by a reporter to whom he made the above statement.

"I was very close to the dark valley, nevertheless," he continued, "and would, beyond a doubt, have 'crossed over' had it not been for Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I had been feeling very unwell for some time, but though the feeling would soon pass away. It did not. On the contrary, it grew worse and worse. Unmistakable symptoms of Kidney Disease made their appearance and I was at length compelled to take to bed.

"My doctor did his best for me, but failed to cure my complaint. My case began to look hopeless indeed.

"Luckily, however, I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and they proved my salvation. Thanks to them, I am to-day hale and hearty, strong and vigorous, and have not a trace of my old complaint. You may believe I cannot say enough in favor of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They saved my life, beyond a doubt, so I feel it my duty to recommend them at every opportunity. Others are suffering now, as I have suffered, and my experience may lead some of them to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and so recover their health and strength."

Dodd's Kidney Pills undoubtedly cure Kidney Disease.
