Sieur De Maisonneuve or the Founding of Montreal.

Though rough be the path though at destined to tread.

Let courage and truth be thy stay;

Thy course be straight onward, eye looking ahead,

Doubt not, neither drop by the way.

Who spanned the wide ocean, who narrowed the soil,

With spirits untrammelled of fear;

Have found through the struggle, the snow the toil,

Save help from on high ever near.

He had left his bright home on the terraced hills,

O'er purpled with fruit of the vine;

Where silver waves of the murmuring rills

By the gorgeous rose-bays twine.

The nursing of wealth in a cultured land,

A land of rare science and art,

Where learning's vast treasure to genius lends hand,

And knowledge ennobles the heart.

Aloof with the fire of a heavenly grace

He had sailed for the land of snow;

With soul of set firmness had turned his face

To yet fiercer, more deadly foe.

To the darkening howl of the dusky crew

He would radiate beams of love;

Would labor and bide, with his well-chosen few,

The nation bestowed from above.

They told him of brother who perished before,

Of the tortures of savage hate;—

Vain pleading! it stirred but his courage the more

To conquer, or share in their fate.

Not his to look back with a sigh of regret

To pleasure of life's early day;

Ere the sun of his rosyate boyhood set

In the loved home far away.

Not his to fret faint on the thorniest path,

Or to shrink what'er might betide;

They know not or heed not humanity's wrath

Who are vowed to the Crucified.

He gazed abroad o'er the forest pine

And ayond to the shining blue;

Then, lightened his vision with rapture divine,

The future arose to his view.

"I shall go," he replied, "unto Montreal,

Though each tree were an Iroquois;—

And the God of the dauntless sea ken'd his race.

The God of the martyred saw,

Now the great city miles where the grim forest loomed,

And the red man bowth the knee;

And the cross which was trampled, in glory hath bloomed

From mountain to uttermost sea.

Entertainment and supper.

The brothers and sisters of Rescue Lodge, No. 9, I. O. G. T., held their annual entertainment in Mount Stewart Hall, on Monday, the 8th inst. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather and obtrusiveness and opposition of those opposed to the energetic promoters thereof. The committee appointed to superintend this affair was composed of gentlemen of ability, and their work elicited warm commendations.

The entertainment was opened by Thos. D. Coffin, Esq., who in a brief speech pointed out the grand work performed by the brothers and sisters of the above lodge in suppressing the liquor traffic in the village of Mount Stewart. The programme consisted of readings, recitations, dialogues and vocal music, all given in a most creditable manner. The singing, which was ably rendered by the choir, consisted of temperance and other selections.

After the programme was concluded, the sisters provided an excellent supper, consisting of some eight courses, well cooked and seasoned, and quite a variety of breads.

After supper we had an excellent speech from A. E. Douglas, M. D., of Bradshaw. Dr. Douglas was formerly a member of this lodge, and has yet a warm place in the heart of the members of this lodge.

The entertainment being over at 12.30, all returned to their homes, their hearts merry and their anticipations fully realized.

News Notes.

Sir William Vernon H. re-enters, in a letter denies the reported dissensions in the Liberal party.

E. Hornbostle, a prominent room trader on the New York stock exchange, has suspended.

Dr. John Stewart, of Kingston, is dead, aged 89. He was the founder of the Medical College.

The annual report of the Philadelphia and Reading Hair and Co. shows a deficit of the year of $39,335.

The late Prof. Schliemann bequeathed to Emperor William of Germany some valuable ancient jewellery.

There were received in New York City in 1890 77,702,156 bushels of grain, 30,682,900 bushels of which was delivered by canal.

The New York Times Washington correspondent thinks it probable that an extra session of the United States Congress will be called in the spring.

The New York Sun's correspondent at Berlin says Emperor William and Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, are negotiating a proposition for European disarmament.

Speaking at Stayner Mr. Dalton McCarthy, M. P., stated that the fiscal question would be the one great issue in the coming Dominion election, and that on this question he was in perfect accord with the policy of Sir John Macdonald.

Dyspepticure—is not a palliative, but a cure; it breaks up, then controls, and finally entirely subdues the irritation and inflammation of the stomach that causes indigestion and dyspepsia.

Irish Affairs.

PARNELL OR ASSASSINATION—AN ENGLISH PAPER'S SENSATIONAL ANNOUNCEMENT—MORLEY FAILS TO IMPRESS O'BRIEN.

The Sheffield Telegraph says it has been informed from a secret source that in case Mr. Parnell is thrust from the leadership of the Irish party the extremists will immediately proceed to avenge him; that they will form an assassination club to strike down his enemies; that Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Healy and others have been marked for vengeance; that Mr. Parnell is aware of this and clings to the leadership to avert it; that Mr. O'Brien has also been informed of it, and that is the reason he is so anxious for an amicable settlement.

Arnold Morley, the Liberal whip, went to Paris recently, where he had an interview with Wm. O'Brien. The subject of the differences in the Irish Parliamentary Party and the relations of the party with the English Liberal party were thoroughly discussed, but Mr. Morley found it impossible to bring Mr. O'Brien around to his way of thinking or looking at the situation and the course to be pursued to bridge the existing difficulties between the Irish factions and the Libs. It is said that the McCarthyites expect that John Dillon, on his return from the United States, will signify his adherence to the faction of the Irish party which supports Mr. McCarthy.

The National League at Belfast had a meeting last week. After hours of noisy discussion the committee rescinded the vote of confidence in John McCarthy, adopted some time ago, and adopted a vote of confidence in Parnell, the vote standing 57 to 35.

A despatch from Longford says there has been a split in the branch of the National League there. A division taken upon the question of a vote of confidence in Parnell shows there were 159 Parnellites and 105 McCarthyites present.

The London Times publishes the following despatch from its correspondent:—

"Boulogne, Sunday.—It is known that at the conference here between O'Brien, McCarthy, Sexton and Conlon, the most serious differences arose. I have it from what I consider the very best authority, that Mr. O'Brien was immovable upon the question of Mr. Parnell's retirement. He held out for an amicable settlement, based on the selection of a leader agreeable to both sides, leaving the question of Mr. Parnell's resumption of the leadership to the future development of events. This the McCarthyites refused to entertain. Mr. McCarthy repelled any suggestion that left a loophole for the return of Mr. Parnell at any future time. The position occupied by Mr. O'Brien at this moment is that of mediator. He practically represents the interests of Parnell, and is convinced that unless the party is reunited it is forever doomed. The discussion drifted into such acrimony that the meeting finally adjourned without any results to await the arrival of Mr. Dillon.

A despatch from Boulogne reports: William O'Brien denies the truth of a New York cable despatch published in London, alleging that there had been a dispute between himself and Mr. Dillon. He said: "He and I have been acting in concert all along, and will continue to do so." Mr. O'Brien added that the only thing he was at liberty to say concerning his interview with Messrs. McCarthy and Sexton was that the consultation had strengthened his hope that a satisfactory conclusion would be arrived at. Archbishop Michael Logue, of the diocese of Arona, primate of Ireland, replying to an address of welcome on his return from Rome, declared that the bishops and priests of Ireland would have nothing to do with any compromise in regard to Mr. Parnell's retirement until he married Mrs. O'Shea, and he defied Mr. Parnell and his followers to carry on the agitation against the clergy.

Messrs. Timothy Healy, Arthur O'Connor and Kenny arrived on the 11th of January, at Nenagh, Tipperary county. Their reception in the town was of a mixed character.

The Parnellites were out in force and they hoisted vigorously at Mr. Healy and his companions. Healy was struck on the head with a stick, but received only a trifling injury. Speaking at a meeting Mr. Healy complained that all the sewage of Parnellism was poured out upon him because he insisted upon the question being threshed on the original cause of the demand for Parnell's retirement. Mr. Parnell, he said, was playing Mr. Chamberlain's game in Limerick by declaring that Mr. Gladstone would give nothing that would satisfy Ireland.

The Daily News declares that Mr. Parnell's assertions in his speech at Limerick in regard to the letters sent by him to Cecil Rhodes were incorrect. The letter to Mr. Rhodes, it says, was written in 1882 and therefore forms no proof.

Regarding Mr. O'Shea, the News says: "With the best intentions in the world, he has played Parnell's game. A few more services of the same kind and Mr. O'Brien may return to Ireland without the slightest danger of being arrested."

"Mr. Parnell's concluding offer," adds the News, "is an impudent effort to re-open negotiations already finally closed."

Literary Note.

Bishop John F. Hurst will contribute to the February number of Harper's Magazine an interesting paper on "English Wines in India," embracing notes and anecdotes of Sir Philip Francis, Lord Macaulay, W. M. Thackeray, and other distinguished Englishmen who lived for a time in British India. The paper will be illustrated from old prints and from drawings by Charles Graham and C. Monte.

The fiction in Harper's Magazine for February will include the second part of Charles Egbert Craddock's "In the Ranger People's Country," and short stories by W. Ward Everett Hale and Gertrude Bonner—to which might be added, "The Herold's Adventure of 'M. Boudin'" told by W. M. Thackeray in twelve original drawings, now published for the first time.

The Supplement to Harper's Weekly published January 14th, will contain an interesting article by Henry Louis Nelson, entitled "Between Dicks," describing some of the modern improvements made aboard ships for the comfort of passengers and crew. The article will be fully illustrated from drawings by R. F. Zogbaum.
