A daring smash and grab theft on Water Street. The theft, which took place before ten o'clock last night, was apparently made by breaking a wing section of the plate glass window with a pop bottle.

Several cars were parked nearby when the break was discovered about five minutes to ten by Roy Turner of the Guardian-Patriot staff.

Stolen in the theft, which is being investigated by Summerside police were four Bulova, one Mido and one Wittnauer watch.

He was supplied by the Canadian Red Cross, Charlottetown Division of Red Cross Water Safety Program. It seems early in the season to be thinking of swimming but that is just what the members of the Tignish Home and School group are doing, and not only talking, they are making plans, for the summer when the usual swimming program is carried out, and has been for the past number of years. Tignish is indeed grateful to the Red Cross for this Water Safety Program, from which the Tignish people have benefited greatly.

Due to the train accident at Emerald Jct. on Monday evening, citizens of Tignish did not receive their mail until late on Tuesday, and patrons on the rural routes received no mail at all.

Oyster Fishermen Seek Some 4,500 Barrels For Planting

Prince County's many oyster fishermen were on the move yesterday in their initial effort to harvest 4,500 barrels of sub-standard oysters. These are for transplanting in depleted areas in N.B. and N.S.

The fisheries patrol boat "Cynos" will transport them to mainland waters to help re-habilitate the various beds where oysters were killed by disease.

This re-stocking program was begun last year when 1,500 barrels of sub-standard oysters were successfully transplanted.

A good survival was reported and hence the number has been increased threefold this year.

These sub-standard oysters make excellent seed for re-stocking purposes but are not what is termed marketable oysters.

Mr. H. R. Found, director of the Biological Station at Ellerslie is supervising the transplanting operation.

Two Alberton Fishing Crews Report Rough Return Trip

The crews of two Alberton lobster boats report battling unusually high seas and strong winds on their return journey from the fishing grounds last Friday.

Skippers of the boats Mont Hutt, and his brother Cecil, said it was the toughest trip in their many years of fishing out of Alberton harbour. Although the weather was fine when they set out in the early morning for the fishing area about fifteen miles southeast of Alberton, strong gusts rolled up heavy seas about noon.

Deciding to head for home they found a normal cruising rate of speed brought heavy seas crashing into the boats. Lower speeds rendered the self-balers inoperative and crew members were kept busy bailing water with the hand pumps. On Cecil's craft a rotary pump was rigged to handle the water. Four hours were required to reach port, normally a forty-five minute run, with a danger of running out of gasoline.

Fortunately the two boats are among the largest and best equipped at Alberton and both carry cabins.

Although the men made light of their experience, veteran fishermen considered a fair degree of seamanship had been required to bring the boats safely into port.

Wyman Milligan and Ivan Smith fish with Mont Hutt. Eldred Hardy and Ralph Gallant are crew members on Cecil's boat.
