BY SPECIAL APPOINTMENT, SOAP MAKERS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN

If you wish your Linen to be White as Snow, Sunlight Soap will do it.

Why,

Because SUNLIGHT SOAP is perfectly pure, and contains no injurious Chemicals to injure either your clothes or your hands. Greatest care is exercised in its manufacture, and its quality is so appreciated by the public that it has the Largest Sale of any Soap in the World.

How

Can you test this? If you have never tried SUNLIGHT SOAP, ask those who use it what they think of it, then try it for yourself. The result will please you, and your clothes will be washed in far less time, with Less Labour, Greater Comfort, and will be whiter than they have ever been before, when you used ordinary soap.

not the best way to decide the matter? First by enquiring what the experience is of those who already use it. Secondly, by a fair trial yourself. You are not committed in any way to use the soap; all we ask is: Don't Delay, try it the next washing day.

Work Accomplished With Windpower by Western Farmers.

A western farmer in a letter to Country Gentleman urges the importance of windmills for all kinds of work where only a moderate power is required. He writes as follows on the subject:

About five years ago I was in the northeastern part of Iowa, and it was there that I first saw windpower used to a complete success. The majority of the farmers of that part of the state used windpower for grinding their grain and cutting feed of all kinds, and those who had timber on their places used the power for the purpose of cutting their firewood.

I will speak of one place in particular, for it is of this one that I am best acquainted with the workings of the machinery. The farm consists of over 300 acres, and as all of the grain raised on the place is fed out to stock, and in the cut or ground state, it takes a moderately large power to accomplish the grinding of it. The wheel that furnishes the power is 16 feet, and is placed on a strong tower on top of the barn. The wheel itself is probably 45 feet from the ground.

All of the machinery except the sawmill is placed in the second story of the barn, and there is a shaft about 24 feet long which runs through the barn a few feet below the rafters, and on this shaft there are several pulleys attached. Under the shaft is the machinery. First, there is a corn sheller, then a machine to grind corn and oats, then a fanning mill, next is the fodder cutter, and last is a grindstone. All these are so connected with elevators that it does not require a man to be in constant attendance when at work except for the fodder cutter, and this only requires to be fed. There is an elevator which takes the cut feed to the place wanted. I have seen any two of the machines at work at the same time, and that, too, in a moderate wind; have seen them shell corn at the rate of 45 bushels per hour and at the same time cut fodder at the rate of one ton per hour.

Now, what stronger power can a man wish for than this? It is capable of doing even more than I have heard claimed for it. Besides, there is no power which is so cheap as wind after a man is once provided for it, and it is the easiest and cheapest to provide for. I do not believe the outlay for the above mentioned machinery and power and all was over $1,000 all told, and it was there for a lifetime. I knew of a place in Kansas where there is a gristmill that is run by a 54 and 48 foot wheel. Just think of the clear cash a man saves in one year by using wind for power instead of steam.

Sunny Side of Beekeeping.

To keep a few bees for pleasure or profit one should first get a standard work on agriculture, and a bee paper would be of great advantage. They are cheap and very interesting. One should also get a black bobinet bee vail and a bee smoker, and then a good colony of pure Italian bees in a movable beehive, writes a correspondent to The Rural New Yorker. She adds: One colony is enough to begin with, and there will be no more trouble handling them than an old sitting hen, nor as much when one is once used to the little pets.

I start the smoker with some cotton rags, send a few puffs of smoke into the entrance of the hive, gently pry up the top and puff a little smoke on the bees to drive them down. Then I gently lift out a frame, looking for eggs, which are little white specks fastened to the bottom of the cell. If there are eggs, I carefully look over both sides of each frame till I find the queen. She is larger than the other bees and much longer. Then I find out how many frames have eggs and brood, and whether there is plenty of uncapped honey.

A good colony ought to have six or seven frames of eggs and brood when the bees begin to gather honey, and if it is a good season they ought to yield 50 to 80 pounds of surplus honey and another swarm. Or, if there is no swarm, there ought to be from 100 to 150 pounds of surplus honey. One of my colonies has stored 220 pounds of nice surplus comb honey in one season.

Applying Fertilizers.

Nearly all the fertilizers applied for the benefit of the crops at the north are distributed by means of drills which sow the grain You may use the grain drill for this purpose, closing the end tubes and applying the fertilizer in the usual way. This mode will have the advantage of placing the fertilizer an inch or two beneath the surface. Another implement which may be used is the plaster sower, which spreads it on the ground. Both of these modes are intended to go over the whole surface between the rows, as the roots of trees which have grown a few years, being as long as their entire height, occupy the whole space. Any of the many grain drills made in this country which have fertilizer attachments will answer the purpose, says Country Gentleman. There are also patent manure spreaders for the even application of barn manure and other coarse fertilizers.

Care of Meadows.

"Instead of pasturing the land intended for meadows next year, run over it with the mower in August," writes a farmer in Hoard's Dairyman. He says: "Take off the track clearer, set the cutter bar about four inches high and clip off the tops of the young clover and weeds, leaving it on the ground for mulch. If the grass should make a heavy growth in the fall, run over the ground again just before winter. This will leave it in good condition for next year, the mice will not injure it, and a good hay crop the next summer will be the result. It is a custom of many to pasture the meadows in the fall, but often stock is left on too long and injures the grass."

Found a Rich Cold Mine.

LOWER JORDON BAY, N. S., July 3.—Mr. Samuel Locke, of this place, has just discovered a gold mine here that pans out 100 per cent. of pure metal to the ton. It was a rich vein of sound health to which he was restored, by the use of Dodd's kidney pills, and which he would not exchange for any other mine in America. All last winter he suffered from kidney trouble which would not yield to the prescriptions of several doctors. A few months ago Mr. Locke heard of the good work done by Dodd's kidney pills and tried them with the invariable result. To-day he is well and thinks no praise too great for this wonderful remedy. His neighbors are much interested in what they describe as a marvelous cure.

POTATOES.

Breakfast and Luncheon Potatoes In Numerous Styles.

Potatoes left over from another meal have a wide range of usefulness. Maitre d'hotel is prepared by cutting eight potatoes of moderate size into slices a quarter of an inch thick and placing them in a teacupful of boiling cream or milk seasoned with half a teaspoonful of salt, half a saltspoonful of pepper and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Allow the potatoes to simmer, closely covered, for five minutes, remove to a hot dish and squeeze over them a tablespoonful of lemon juice.

For lyonnaise potatoes cut a sufficient quantity of potatoes into dice to make a pint and season with salt and pepper. Then fry a teaspoonful of minced onion in a tablespoonful of butter or salt pork fat until the onion is yellow, after which add a teaspoonful of vinegar and the potatoes. Stir carefully with a fork until the potatoes are a light brown and have taken up all the butter and place them on a hot platter, sprinkle with a teaspoonful of chopped parsley and set them in the oven for two minutes, after which they are ready to be served.

Cold potatoes chopped moderately fine and browned in a little hot sausage gravy, ham fat, poultry drippings or butter are delicious. They should be stirred to make them an even brown, so that they are neither too moist nor too crisp. Judgment must be used in seasoning, because the fat in which they are fried has already been flavored. Cold sweet or white potatoes may be sliced to give the pieces as large a surface as possible and then broiled on both sides to a delicate brown. This should be done on a wire gridiron and must be done quickly to prevent the potatoes hardening. Arrange the slices in an orderly manner upon a warmed platter, put a small bit of butter upon each and sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper.

White potatoes may be fried and served in French fashion thus: Cut them in slices half an inch thick and fry them flat in a hot pan that is covered with the drippings from ham, sausage or salt pork. When the slices are brown on both sides, season with salt or pepper.

Old Mantel Decorations.

A scheme for embellishing an old time mantelpiece, the beauty of which has been destroyed by age, is to place a board about 3 feet high against the wall at the back of the shelf and cover it with cloth or velveteen. The same covering is used for the shelf, and a gimp is held around the edge of the upright board. Against this may be placed small pictures, plaques or medallions or fans and yet have a fine background for mantel ornaments. The shelf may be simply covered or have a long square scarf thrown over it. It depends upon the quality of the mantelpiece whether it is desirable to cover it up.

Baked Omelet.

Heat 3 cupfuls of milk with an ounce of butter. Beat 5 eggs with a tablespoonful of flour and a little salt. Pour this into the hot milk, stirring all the time. Butter a hot spider, pour the mixture into it and bake 20 minutes. Turn into a hot dish and serve at once, as a lukewarm or cold omelet is almost as unappetizing as cold mutton.

Spanish Curls.

Roll puff paste very thin and cut in strips three-quarters of an inch wide. Wind these around sticks three-quarters of an inch in diameter and bake in a hot oven about 10 minutes. Brush over with white of egg slightly beaten, sprinkle with sugar and return to the oven for about three minutes. Remove from the sticks and when cold fill with whipped and sweetened cream. The cream should be thick, sweetened and flavored to the taste and beaten with an egg beater or in a whip churn until stiff enough to hold its shape. Put a lady finger tube in a pastry bag, fill the bag about two-thirds full with the cream and press it into the hollow curls. Cream horns are made in the same way, using cone shaped sticks about 5 inches long and three-quarters of an inch in diameter at the large end.

To Clean Black Dresses.

An old and tried cleaning solution for black dresses is a handful of fig leaves boiled in a quart of water till only a pint is left. Dip a brush or bit of sponge in this and rub the spots and stains. Black cloth that is only dusty and generally grimy may be washed in soap bark water, drying without rinsing.

Make the Home Happy.

Don't shut up your house lest the sun should fade your carpets, nor your hearts lest a merry laugh should shake down some of the musty cobwebs there. If you want to ruin your sons, let them think that all mirth and social enjoyment must be left on the threshold without when they come home.

When once a home is regarded as only a place to eat, drink and sleep in, the work is begun that ends in disappointment. Young people must have fun and relaxation somewhere. If they don't find it at their own hearthstone, it will be sought at other and less profitable places. Therefore let the fire burn brightly at night and make the homestead delightful with all those little arts that parents so perfectly understand.

GERTRUDE MCKERVEY.

Father, Mother, and Daughter cured of Weakness & Distress in the Stomach, Pain across the Back and Limbs, Sick Headache, Dizziness, Vomiting, and habitual Constipation by using Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup.

SAINT JOHN, N. B., December 12, 1892.

GENTLEMEN:—Our daughter, twelve years old, has been almost sick from weakness of the stomach and liver, pain across her back, and general debility have kept her from school. We could not get help for her from the several doctors whom we tried. The medicines we bought gave her no benefit. Her appetite never was good; all she ate was a few mouthfuls of graham bread at a meal. Last summer we had all hope, for we were afraid of her dying of consumption. Six weeks ago she could not walk two hundred yards without getting very tired. Now she can walk to the city, two miles, and back, without the least weariness, her appetite is such, she relishes anything a hearty man would wish to eat. For the first time in her life she knows what health is.

The mother says, For twenty-two years I have had severe sick headaches. Nothing ever eased them until I used which has wrought a permanent cure. No less than six physicians, and medicines without number, have failed to help me.

The father speaks: I have had dyspepsia almost ever since I can remember. Of course I was better sometimes than others, but I have always suffered with vomiting, distress in the stomach and bowels, dizziness, and habitual constipation until I used Groder's Syrup, which has cleared my head, given me a good appetite, and my food does not distress me. Our statements are all true, and I am ready to answer questions concerning them.
