Inspiring Service At Marie Church

St. John's United Church in Marie was the scene of an interesting and inspiring service of worship on Sunday evening, May 10th. An overflow congregation gathered from Dundas, Forest Hill, Greenwich, St. Peter's Marie, Bristol and Mount Stewart to hear Mr. Wilfred Ramkerrysingh, of Trinidad. Mr. Ramkerrysingh, principal of a co-educational school which is supported by the United Church of Canada, is a member of the team of leaders travelling with the Exposition, which is currently visiting the Presbytery of Prince Edward Island. The service was conducted by Rev. R. A. MacLeod, minister of St. John's Church, assisted by Rev. W. N. Byers of St. John's United Church, Mount Stewart, who led the congregation in prayer. The congregation sang the hymns "Jesus Shall Reign," "Come, Thou Almighty King," and "Take my life," and the Mount Stewart choir sang as special numbers "O, My Saviour Crucified" and "Follow Me." The choir of about 30 members drawn from several of the worshipping congregations. After the worship service Mr. Ramkerrysingh was introduced by Mr. MacLeod, and he gave a challenging message based on the tenth chapter of Luke's gospel, the story of the sending out of the seventy. Beginning with a brief description of the educational achievements of the church in its 85 years of work in Trinidad, Mr. Ramkerrysingh sought to make three main emphases. He stressed the importance of the laymen of the Church. He referred to them as the "ground crew" of the work, whose patient, faithful and unheralded labours are the power which will bring the story of the kingdom. Although most of them are obscure challenge and unknown beyond their immediate circle of friends, their names are written in the Book of life. He then paid a tribute, which was timely and fitting, to the members in the Church who had borne sons and daughters in every age to carry on and advance the work of the gospel and kingdom of Jesus Christ. He concluded by issuing a challenge to the young people of the Church, to take up the task of building a better world out of the doubt, uncertainty and mistrust which have followed in the wake of war. He said "This world is ours to take, this world is ours to make" and youth is the tool by which it is to be made. At the conclusion of the service, Mr. Ramkerrysingh and the ministers were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Jay, of Morell, where some ladies of the congregation served a delicious luncheon.

The CAHA balked. Al Pickard of Regina, a past president of the CAHA, was called in by the CAHA. What was said to Pickard or what he did was not known.

New Application

But Monday a new statement of application went before the resolutions committee.

The Quebec branch application for reinstatement of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association realized an improper course was followed in permitting Atwell to play in defiance of the ruling of the executive of the CAHA and regrets this action.

"We want Quebec back, of course," said secretary-manager George Dudley of the CAHA. "But we want assurance that this thing isn't going to happen again. No one wants to deliver a punitive blow at Quebec or any other branch. At the same time we can't treat such things as a light matter and then let branch members come back and say they are sorry for what they did."

At a press conference Dudley said that a number of Quebec teams from the CAHA plydovans had no effect on benefits to the clubs.

"We paid out larger bonuses to them this year than last year," said Dudley. "The total amount was about $10,000. Last year we had a net of about $15,000 from the major series."

Did Well In West

In the West we did exceptionally well this year. There was steady competition.

There will be a resolution before the meeting this year to do away with the major series — now between Quebec and the Maritimes. I proposed the major series a few years ago because the competition was becoming unbalanced. I think the major series has a set-up along the lines we proposed, but not on the basis of ultimatums handed us by the Quebec Senior Hockey League."

In Montreal last week, president George Slater of the OSHI, informed The Canadian Press of assurances he would want if the league were to remain amateur. They dealt with a better money return, consideration of the league's make-off dates before starting a new season, a draft system applicable to lower leagues and some assurance that "one man" will not have full say in CAHA operations.

back into the sawing. "The mill is sorely needed here now.

"Friends of Mr. M. P. Donovan will be pleased to learn he is improving in health after a very serious illness. He has rallied and is reported as better now. Well along in the application of life, Mr. Donovan has been a hard worker.

Mr. Arthur Blaxland has reported for duty on the dredge at Montague where he was employed in the summer. It is understood this dredge has been condemned and gone to Picou, N.S., where the machinery will be removed and put aboard another hull for operation.

The funeral of Mrs. Willie Phalen was held from her old home on Thursday morning at the Church of St. Laurence. Burial was beside her husband who died a number of years ago. Services at the church and grave were conducted by the pastor, Rev. P. McKenna.

The dance in the Community Hall on Thursday night, April 23rd under direction of the Morell and Bristol C.Y.O. was a big success as the hall was packed to the door despite the stormy evening early, but it cleared later. Don Messer's band from the City supplied the music and was the big drawing card, as many had never seen or heard this famous band in personal appearance.

Friends here will be sorry to learn of the grave illness of Mr. Earl Jay, in the P.E.I. Hospital. Mr. Jay attended the bowling league presentations in the hall here on Wednesday night, April 22nd and took ill very suddenly in the car enroute to his home in Mount Stewart. At the time of this writing his condition is very grave.

Mr. William McDonald had an unwelcome visitor on Sunday night, April 19th. Setting out some traps for a skunk that was around the house he paid the bitter way as Mr. Skunk got his leg in a trap near the house in the night and digging in, got under the house, finding himself trapped. Mr. Cyrus Lapierre, the village executioner was called and after a few tries with a long handled rake Mr. Skunk was hauled out and shot, but his odor almost caused the family to leave the house for a few days.

Montague Council Discusses Street Paving Program

"A continuation of last year's street paving program may possibly be undertaken again this year, it was learned last night at the regular meeting of the Montague Town Council held in the presence of Mayor E.H. Yeo presiding. It was proposed that the street to the new school might be paved, together with other plans to be considered at a later meeting.

Following routine business, correspondence was read during which a letter from T. J. Kichham, M.P., indicated that the Higginbotham property had been purchased, and that that property would be included in the site already purchased for the new "eral building at Montague. He also indicated that he was urging finalizing of the plans so that work might be undertaken.

On motion it was decided to pay a two months electric light bill carried over for some time.

Councillor Hessian presented his report of his negotiations with the Maritime Electric re taxation, and he stated that an amount of $300.00 would be paid the town provided it met with the approval of the council.

Following further discussion of the street paving project, the meeting adjourned.

Reviews Early

nursing experience, Bishop McIntyre asked the Bishop of Quebec if a number of Sisters from that hospital would come to this Province to staff the then new Charlottetown Hospital.

Early Difficulties

"It is difficult for us to realize today, just 74 years later, these few nursing sisters coming to Prince Edward Island, unfamiliar with our language, to staff a hospital of 12 beds in a Province which had, at that time, the largest population in its history, — approximately 108 thousand persons.

"With the construction of that one 12-bed hospital there were then one bed for every 9,000 persons. Today, Prince Edward Island can boast of one hospital bed for about every 160 persons.

"With this greatly expanded provision for our hospital sick, the message sent by Bishop McIntyre requesting nurses for hospital service, is as applicable in our Province today as it was 74 years ago.

"As I mentioned previously, medical and nursing care, in our hospitals today, has now become an integral part of our life, which in fact, that is where life now starts for most of us.

"This hospital provision alone, maternity services, with the nursing care which it involves, is now, very definitely, taken as a matter of course.

"Seventy four years ago these facilities were just not available and that is, perhaps, one of the reasons why one baby in every five died before he could walk or talk. Was it possible that in urging hospitalization Bishop McIntyre was aware, as we are today, that infant mortality, is the most sensitive index, of social welfare?"

"At that time, however, not only was Prince Edward Island at the threshold of a new era, by virtue of her embarking on the nursing of her sick in hospitals, but the whole world was to learn, in the next few years, many things, which would not only influence greatly, the future of nursing, but the future of medicine generally.

"Just one year later, 1880, a scientist by the name of Eberth first saw the organism which causes typhoid fever.

"Two years later, Dr. Kock in Germany first isolated the organism of tuberculosis. And the following year, 1883, two men, Keils and Loeffler published their papers describing the causative organism of diphtheria.

"Also, at that very time, a young man from this Province was contemplating going away to a University to study medicine. I refer to our respected Dr. Roderick MacDonald of St. Peter's Bay.

"Just a short while before those momentous years, Florence Nightingale had had the experience of the Crimean War behind her and was now in the process of placing the new science of nursing on a firm footing. In fact, in the year 1860, just 19 years before Bishop McIntyre's hospital opened in Charlottetown, Florence Nightingale founded the first training school for nurses at St. Thomas Hospital, in London, England.

Tremendous Progress

"What tremendous progress has been made in nursing since those few nursing sisters came to Charlottetown from Quebec in 1879.

"Today, those several diseases which I mentioned previously, the ravages of which, no doubt, stimulated hospitalization and nursing in all their detail by what are grading tonight.

"In fact, due to advance in modern medicine these particular diseases are fast disappearing in our country. Not so in less fortunate countries.

"Not only must the nurse of today be familiar with these earlier diseases, as basic stepping-stones in her training, but she must be familiar with a greatly expanded textbook of many so-called newer diseases. She must know the contents of a medicine cabinet containing numerous drugs, many of which have been introduced since the close of the last war. That is one of the reasons why an individual, born in Bishop McIntyre's day, just 74 years ago, had a life expectancy of about 47 years, today babies, and whom you nurses have assisted in bringing into this world, have an even break to live almost their allotted span of three score years and ten.

"Again, when Bishop McIntyre's hospital was training his first patient, Lord Lister was explaining to his associates, in a London hospital, that everything used in an operating room must be scrupulously clean, in fact, sterile.

"This development, just one of several, in the field of surgery has made absolutely necessary, that nurses, must be highly trained, in these demanding techniques, in order that they may properly assist in the conduct of modern surgery and in the after-care of the surgical patient."
