Fashions For Brides Displayed In Montreal

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP) — Fashions for this year's Canadian brides—in simple, elegant and "convertible" - styles — were featured in a showing sponsored by a Montreal bridal salon, Bridal Modes Limited.

The return to the severe, high-necked look was evident in a series of creations ranging from delicate chapel gowns to full-length cathedral gowns, with traditional trains in rich fabrics and the dramatic use of lace and encrusted jewels.

Gowns were shown in synthetic fabrics as well as silk and satin.

The "little girl" look, with a touch of sophistication, was especially emphasized in the increasingly popular short, bell-shaped chapel gowns, with high or Sabrina necklines and long sleeves. White embroidery on white, and white lace trim graced these youthful editions, which would double as graduation dresses. Some came with slightly dropped waistlines.

SHOW TWO-WAY GOWNS

Convertible gowns for after-wedding wear will be popular this year. These full-length creations were shown with detachable skirt panels or floor-length "wing" cloak panels from the shoulder.

Lace boleros slipped off to reveal sophisticated formal gowns with shoestring straps.

One gown with detachable billowing skirt panels became a sleek oriental sheath with a deep mandarin slit for dancing.

Both long and short dresses were shown in nylon trimmed with white, or in one case, pink, lace.

Lace was also used dramatically around the waist, for boleros over satin bodices and as skirt panelling. One especially evident change this year is the switch from traditional long sleeves on full length gowns to short and three-quarter lengths.

Move Made To Put Zip Into British Economy

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Treasury Chief Reginald Maudling, in his third surprise move in less than two months to put more zip into the British economy, has cut the bank rate to four from 4½ per cent.

And speculation was that the chancellor of the exchequer would follow up with yet another plum—an increase in old-age pensions and unemployment benefits.

Thursday's bank rate announcement was greeted with cheers on the floor of the stock exchange. It was believed that one of the major immediate effects would be a reduction in home loan interest rates.

The Building Societies Association, meeting a week from today, was expected to recommend a rate of six per cent instead of the present 6½ per cent.

Since succeeding Selwyn Lloyd — the sacked chancellor whose name was linked with the unpopular pay freeze, increased sales taxes and other austerity measures — Maudling has brought forth one measure after another to cushion the effects of such difficulties as growing unemployment and the housing shortage.

POUND STRONGER

Financial observers took Thursday's announcement as an indication of the growing strength of the pound and Maudling's determination to stimulate the nation's economy.

At the time the announcement was being made, Prime Minister Macmillan was in session with several cabinet ministers and it was reported that the meeting dealt mainly with home-front issues.

This new sense of urgency on domestic affairs lends weight to the view of most observers that the government, painfully aware of its waning popularity, is embarking on a campaign to pacify the voters before the next general election sometime within the next 22 months.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT

Opening lead—queen of diamonds.

Many decisions that the declarer makes are based on the plays made by his opponents. He has a right to assume that the play of certain cards, or the failure to play certain cards, is indicative of the distribution of the adverse hands.

Here is a simple case. West leads the queen of diamonds on which East plays the king. East then returns the jack of hearts.

Right here, at trick two, South can reasonably draw certain valid conclusions. One is that East has a singleton diamond, since otherwise he would surely have returned a diamond.

Another is that East does not have the king of hearts. It would be too dangerous for East to lead away from the king, especially knowing that South bid a notrump and probably has the queen as part of his strength.

So declarer plays low from his own hand and dummy's on the jack of hearts. When East continues with the ten, South plays low again, but naturally, when West produces the king, he takes it with the ace.

Declarer now takes a spade finesse which succeeds, then enters dummy with a club and takes another spade finesse. With nine tricks already certain, South makes his bid for a tenth trick by leading a low diamond towards the nine. He is planning to establish a squeeze position and must give up a diamond trick to attain it.

West takes the diamond and, let's say, continues the suit. South wins with the ace and cashes the queen of hearts and A-K of clubs in that order.

This last play squeezes East because he has to choose a discard, holding the K-10 of spades and the nine of hearts.

Dummy's last two cards, before East discards, are the nine of spades and seven of hearts, while South's last two cards at this point are the A-4 of spades. Regardless of what East plays, declarer wins the rest of the tricks. East cannot discard successfully and South makes four notrump.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three Ls, X for the two Os, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
