BEAUTIFUL THINGS.

Beautiful faces are those that wear... Beautiful eyes are those that show... Beautiful hands are those that do...

THANATOPSIS.

To him who in the love of Nature holds communion with her visible forms, she speaks... A various language: for his gayer hours...

Yet not to this eternal resting-place shalt thou retire alone... Come a still voice.—Yet a few days, and the all-ubiquitous sun shall see no more...

LITERATURE.

PEACE.

Alice Heath stood beside the window and looked out... "Oh, mamma," she cried running up to Alice, and seizing her hand in an eager excited way...

But she gave no sign of having heard. She was ice and stone.

God bless you and keep you my darling, and give you a better and happier life than he has given me," he said, kissing her as he kissed her dead, and then he unclasped the clinging arms from about his neck...

And still the woman at the window never stirred. She heard his steps going down the hall, then the closing of the door, and she saw him going down the road...

Peace stirred uneasily, opened her pensive eyes and looked up. "I dreamed such a beautiful dream, mamma," she said, "I thought papa was here. Oh, papa, papa! I want him so much!"

She closed her eyes and her face was full of a feverish color, and her eyes had a vague far off look in them. "She will die," Alice said to the neighbor who had come to sit a little while with her.

Peace slept most of the time a restless, broken, unnatural sleep. Often she talked in a babbling way. More than once Alice heard her speak her father's name.

The next day she was no better. Alice wrote a few lines and sent them to the telegraph office as soon as morning broke. It was a message to her husband telling him Peace was very ill, and telling him to come immediately.

"I have sent for your papa," she told Alice Peace when she awoke up from one of her strange slumbers. "A great gladness came into the poor little face! After that, whenever she opened her eyes she asked if papa had come."

Two days went by, and Peace grew weaker every hour. The end was not far away Alice knew. A great fear seized her. What if he was too late?

It was sunset of the second day. She held Peace in her arms beside the open western window. The robins were singing on the cherry tree by the gate as blithely as if there was no such thing as death in the world.

"Hark!" Peace said suddenly. Papa is coming! Alice heard a step in the hall. The door opened, and she looked that way, blind with sudden tears.

"Alice," he said brokenly, "is Peace—and then he stopped, as if he feared to go on and complete the question. "Oh, papa!" cried the child stretching out her hands towards him. You've been gone—so long! Take me, papa!"

He caught her in his arms and kissed her over and over again, with his tears falling on her face. He knew from the first glance of her hollow cheek that life was almost gone. "Oh, Alice must be?" he asked, as if he thought there might be something done to keep death away.

For answer she dropped her head upon his shoulder and cried softly. "I am going to die, papa," Peace said, presently. "Mamma 'll be lonesome when I'm gone, and you must go away."

That broke down the last bar of pride in the woman's heart. "Oh, Leonard love me, and forgive me, and stay with me," she cried, "I was cruel and wicked, and I made you life wretched, but I will try to be a better woman if you will let me."

"Don't!" he said, lifting up her face to kiss it. "It was I who was to blame. It is you who must forgive. If God is willing we'll begin our lives over again, and perhaps the past will help us to do better in the future."

"I am glad you won't go away," Peace said, by-and-by. "When I am gone I'll think that you and mamma love each other, and I'll know you won't be so lonesome because I am dead. You'll never go away again, papa?"

"I'll never go away again, Peace," he said, and the child was content. The next day she died. They put pansies and white lilies in her hands as she lay in the rosewood casket, but she was the fairest blossom of them all.

There was no step for earth, Alice said, kissing the dead lips, that gave back no answering caress as they used to do. "We have no one left but each other now," her husband answered. "Peace is an angel; but he peace between us to the end."

LATEST NEWS SUMMARY.

CANADIAN.

Since January 1st there have been 203 failures in Nova Scotia. It is estimated that 32,000 persons visited the Provincial Exhibition at Ottawa on the 23rd ult.

Mr. Brown, of Medford, reports having grown two and a half acres of barley which averaged seventy-four bushels to the acre. Launched from the shipyard of Geo. Campbell, Esq., on Tuesday the 14th ult., a very handsome model barkentine, named the Nuekha, 450 tons register, to class A. 1. seven years at Lloyd's.

Post Office Accommodations.—We are glad to hear that the Post Office Department at Ottawa has granted a tri-weekly mail between Vernon River, Orillia, Wood Islands and Little Sande, and between Montserrat, Prince and Murray Harbor South—Patrol.

A despatch to the St. John Telegraph announces that Chief Justice Richards and Judge Strong from Ontario, Hon. Mr. Fouriey (now Postmaster General) and Justice Macpherson from Quebec, Chief Justice Ritchie from New Brunswick, and Hon. Mr. Henry from Nova Scotia, are to constitute the Supreme Court, Mr. Moss and Mr. Harrison going on the Ontario Bench. It is a matter for surprise that Judge Dorion has not gone to the Upper Court. As has been well known for some time Judge Allen will accompany the Ontario Bench to Quebec, of this city, will take Judge Allen's place.

Another successful P. E. Islander.—We have much pleasure in noting the literary success at McGill, Montreal, of Mr. D. C. Ross, of Uxbridge, who had been a student at the Prince of Wales College here. His matriculating examination was so satisfactory that he not only won a scholarship worth $125, but was admitted and entered as a student of the second year's class, exempted from the payment of all tuition fees. This is very creditable to our friend, to the Island and Mata, and to a section of the Island that has turned out a large number of clever and talented boys. We wish Mr. Ross every success.—Patrol.

UNITED STATES. Ohio farms average 111 acres each. A secret political party, pledged to oppose sectarian appropriation of money to the public schools, has been ordered at New Bedford, Mass.

Another trotting wonder has made an appearance in San Francisco. It is a mare belonging to Mr. Stark, and is accredited with trotting a mile in 2 1/4, trotting the last three quarters of the distance at the rate of 2 1/4.

Henry Ward Beecher was introduced to a Shaker at the White Mountains the other day, and said to him, "I understand your belief deprives you of some of the pleasures of life," whereupon the other replied, "It shields us from some of its temptations also."

The cost of the construction of the Providence water works has been $4,104,033, and the total amount received for water $403,841. While about 118 miles of pipe have been laid, 6,476 applications have been made for water, and about 2,500,000 gallons of water daily consumed.

Forests and Rainfalls.—It has generally been believed that the removal of forests results in a diminution of the annual rainfall. This opinion is now controverted, and Prof. Draper gives testimony to the effect that the meteorological records prove that the average rainfall over the United States, taken year for year during the last fifty years, has neither increased nor diminished, though the removal of timber has been rapid and constant.

A New Horse Disease.—New York is again afflicted with a disease which during the past week has attacked a large number of horses, but which fortunately is not so serious in its effects as the epizoot which was so fatal three years since. The symptoms are a mild cough accompanied by inflammation of the throat, frequent sneezing, and occasionally a discharge at the nose. It is said that nearly every horse in the city has been attacked with it, but it quickly passes away, seldom being fatal, anything morose than extreme debility.

Ireland's acreage available for cultivation is about 25,000 square miles. The London market gardeners pay $200 per acre yearly rent for the land they cultivate and their average profits amount to $500 per acre.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have given $500 to the French innumeration relief fund. About $100,000 for this purpose has been received at the Mansion House, London.

The Prince of Wales' baggage was embarked on board H. M. S. Scarpia, at Portsmouth, on the 23rd ult. His Royal Highness will take the ship on her arrival at Brindisi, Italy.

The publication of a balance sheet by the treasurer of Messrs. Moody and Sankey's London Mission, shows that the expense incurred by the operations of those gentlemen in the Metropolis was £28,396.

A telegram from Carrick-on-Suir, Ireland, says that an epidemic of violent cholera has broken out amongst the pigs of the neighborhood. It is of a type wholly unknown, and does not affect heavy bacon pigs.

A riot has occurred at Lurgan, Ireland, on the return of a procession carrying banners with unbecomingly large and other national emblems, after attending a Home Rule meeting. Some of the green sashes were torn from them, and drums taken. Houses were wrecked and several persons assaulted in the melee.

A costly stained glass window, the gift of the Crown Prince and Princess of Germany, in acknowledgment of the excellent arrangements made by the inhabitants for the comfort and happiness of the Imperial party during their stay last year at Sandown, is to be placed in the Sandown Parish Church, Isle of Wight, recently.

The death is announced at Swanhouse, Bucks, under very melancholy circumstances, of Lady Cottleslow, who accidentally swallowed a portion of poisonous lotion, which she had been directed to apply externally for the cure of an attack of rheumatism. Her ladyship was the daughter of Field Marshal Sir George Nugent, and married Lord Cottleslow, then Sir Thomas Pakenham, in 1824.
