ELLEN'S DIARY

Autumn Leaf Is Symbol

This morning a wind of Autumn dropped a scarlet maple leaf at our door. It was a winsome thing, significant of Canada's wide spaces, her known and hidden treasures of earth and forest, of river and sea, and all her beauty and charm. We watched it drift down to lie on the green lawn below. In content it seemed, life's cycle done. Time lived-rose of youth, lushness and later of maturity, and now the serenity of the last. And it came to mind that this was representative of all humans' lives—the various stages and phases are matured by Nature's processes in the years, and we too drift down earthy to earth in quiet rest.

There was for us and many others, to attend, with Sunday's solemnity resting gently on the fields and the farmsteads about the funeral of one of our kin, who thus had drifted away. She was the only sister of mother-to-us, one who all down the years, had maintained the affection and fine friendship they had enjoyed as girls together on the Island farm of their parents.

She was a small kindly lady, gentle-voiced, with a pretty smile, which we suspect unknown to her won her the esteem and affection of many a friend. A little shy she was, modest, and of the old if by the walk and conversation we were to be known. It seemed to us as we paid our last respects to her, in that parlor, lost to us though well remembered through long years, that the serenity which was natural to her in life, had also attended her as he came down alone a quiet river to that storied other side.

It is a long time since we holidayed as a child at her home. Yet how brightly the nice old memories of those days crowded where it seemed her gentle spirit still lingered. She would come, perhaps, in the flesh through this, or that doorway to chat with us, to listen and laugh quietly over something amusing. But the Autumn—leaf had fallen, one which had ever represented to us a fine and rare excellence of earth.

On a drive along distant countryside one Sunday not long ago, the Family suffered us to stop at a churchyard to visit the grave of a paternal aunt, gone from earthly scenes for many a year. She was a big woman, of Highland extraction, blue eyed and attractive, clever too and kindly, with a merry infectious laugh and a heart above every trouble and untoward vicissitude of earth. And we remembered that it is not altogether from the transmitted genes of forbears that folks acquire the various traits they possess. Many come from some regard we gave to kin and friend.

We have gathered from those bits here, a little there from those we most admired. Integrity, patience, kindness, truth, faith itself, laughter...aye, and the not-so-good! how in our turn we should watch well our step and so let our light shine!

"Did you say Ellen you were making me a cup of tea?" James asks coming in now through the cool night from a visit to the house across the lane. "And no sign of it yet! Come now—be a man of your word!"

Until tomorrow — — — Diary Good-night.....

A COUNTRY GARDEN

OCTOBER
October, with a lavish hand, now spills
Her wine of flame and gold upon the hills:
It splashes on the slopes and blends into

Rich colorings of almost every hue
Deep red and russet, orange, yellow,
jade,
Grape-blue, and green, and brown
of every shade;
And in the valley hang, like filmy
mist,
Her veils of opal, blue and amethyst.

Rose-grey and violet, until it seems
All earth is drowsy with the wine of dreams.
I think that somewhere up around the throne
God's cup of glory must have overflowed.

—Challis
The maple trees in our garden are as lovely as any flowering shrub and the fragrant creamy white Clematis is perfuming the garden once more after the division taken last year failed to bloom.
On sunny mornings it is wonderful to be near this lovely vine when working in the garden as fragrance flowers lay the month of October is not very intense. In this respect they are much like another new shrub blooming at this time, heavenly blue Caryop.

Other good shrubs in the garden
are several varieties of Buddelias, with colorful arching sprays.
They are called butterfly shrubs and bloom abundantly the first year they are planted. They are easy to grow and require little or no care. Buddelias make their new growth or show signs of life very late in spring, and you need not be alarmed that they are dead. In

LET'S EAT

Here's Reason You Get Fresh Breakfast Eggs

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"Egg production is a complicated business. But it's based on simple factors: the good health and cleanliness of the birds, good care and a balanced diet. No chicken gets any leftovers that some other chicks won't eat. All our birds are nourished alike."

It was Paul Wirtz speaking, on the Wirtz Brothers big poultry and breeding farm near Alberton, New Jersey. Baby chicks and pedigree older birds are raised here and enormous quantities of fresh Jersey eggs are sold.

"After seeing so many eggs, do you still enjoy eating them?" I asked this interesting expert.

"Yes ma'am," he replied. "Each day starts with a good breakfast, including 3 fresh eggs and 2 slices of bacon. Now, do you like eggs for breakfast?" he chuckled.

"I certainly do." Then I told him about a brunch party I gave Sunday which included: sliced peaches, fresh Jersey eggs cooked to order, coffee, and the Chef's brunch cake.

Brunch-Crunch Table Cake: For topping, combine and mix in a small bowl, 1/2 c. packed brown sugar, 1/4 c. fine graham cracker crumbs, 1 tsp. grated orange rind, 1/2 c. coarse-chopped nuts, 2 tsp. melted butter or margarine and 1 1/2 tsp. cinnamon.

Method: Prepare yellow cake mix as directed on the box, with this exception: Add 1 tsp. fine-grated orange rind.

Meanwhile, preheat a square electric skillet (with cover on) at 300 degrees F. Grease it with unsalted shortening. Spoon in the cake batter. Cover; bake 40 min., or until dry on top, at 300 degrees F. Uncover. Turn the dial to "off." Sprinkle the top evenly with the topping. Cover and finish cooking before your guests. Bake just 10 min. longer at 300 degrees F. Uncover, cut in squares and serve warm.

COOK'S CORNER

FAVOURITE COOKIES

1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup shortening
2 cups brown sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 cup cocoa
2 cups flour
2 cups oatmeal
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. soda
1/2 tsp. salt

Cherries and nuts may also be added. Cream shortening, brown sugar add eggs and beat. Add oatmeal, vanilla, cocoa and soda which has been sifted. Add nut meats and cherries last. Drop by spoon and press with fork and bake about 15 minutes. Oven 350 degrees.

mer savory and thyme and dill from the garden to hang up while the blossoms are purple and blue? The fragrance lingers on clothing and hands, most delightfully as your path leads around the strawberry patch now crimson and bronze in color and very lovely with the shiny river beyond. Pippin apples are gathered for baking and another trip brings baskets of violets and sweet william plants for the borders where the ground has been prepared for them.

Autumn is a season of fulfilment.

The marriage of Heather Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon MacLean, Charlottetown to Mr. Lloyd Wilfred MacLeod, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. MacLeod, Breadalbane, P. E. I. took place on Saturday morning, September 1st, at eleven o'clock in Trinity United Church.

The Rev. A. Frank MacLean, minister of the church officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Lorne A. MacLean was organist and played the wedding music. She also accompanied Miss Maida Rogerson who sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

The church was decorated with baskets of white, yellow and bronze gladioli arranged in an arch above the altar. The guest pews were marked with rosettes of white tulle and gladioli.

The lovely bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ankle-length gown of white Chantilly lace and tulle over slipper satin, fashioned with fitted bodice, dropped waistline, and bouffant skirt. Her chapel length veil was held in place by a coronet headdress trimmed with seed pearls. She wore small pearl ear-rings and carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and tony yellow roses.

The bride's sister, Mrs. John H. Hodgson, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of gold crystallette over satin with off-the-shoulder neckline, fitted waist and bouffant skirt. She carried a W. W. Brown and Mrs. W. C. Mac-basket of white, yellow, bronze and blue crysanthemums.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Frank Currie, Saint John, and Miss Elizabeth Ann Halpeny, Ottawa. They were dressed identically the same as the matron of honor.

Mr. Jack Johnston was best man. The ushers were Mr. Kenneth C. MacLean and Mr. Garth MacLean, brothers of the bride. Mr. Millage MacLeod, brother of the groom, and Mr. Douglas Dennis.

The bride's mother wore a delphinium blue sheath dress with Empire waistline, white cartwheel hat, navy accessories and a corsage of deep pink roses. The groom's mother chose a dress of navy silk faille, navy picture hat and accessories. Her corsage was pale pink roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception for over one hundred guests was held at Oakwood Lodge. Vases of mixed flowers and baskets of gladioli in autumn colors decorated the rooms. The bride's table was arranged with the traditional wedding cake, and a low, silver bowl of white and pink crysanthemums and snapdragons, flanked by white tapers in silver candleabra.

A toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Wilfred C. MacLeod to which the groom responded. Rev. A. F. MacLean asked the blessing. Tea was poured by Mrs. L. M. Slieter and Mrs. I. Stanley. Crosby, aunts of the bride, Mrs. ankle-length skirt. She carried a W. W. Brown and Mrs. W. C. Mac-

Arbing-Christopher Wedding At Basilica

Saint Dunstan's Basilica was the scene of a lovely wedding on Wednesday September 5th at 9 a.m. when Frances Teresa only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Christopher, Tignish, was united in marriage to William Russell Arbing, son of Mrs. Mary Arbing, and the late Samuel Arbing, Charlottetown. Rev. Reginald Phelan performed the double ring ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

The beauty of the sanctuary was further enhanced with tall standards of gladioli, dahlias and baskets of summer flowers interspersed with vigil lights, while the guests' pews were marked with white satin bows and rosettes.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage, to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March. She was gowned in a beautiful floor-length dress of white nylon net over slipper satin, the deep flounce of the widely-flared illusion skirt was studded with sequins. The matching jacket was of Chantilly lace with Peter Pan collar and the long sleeves tapered to points over the hands. Her embroidered finger tip-veil of tulle illusion fell from a coronet headdress of sequins. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and white carnations with rosebuds on white satin streamers.

The maid of honour, Miss Rosita Croken, Kensington, wore a floor-length gown of heavenly blue nylon net and tulle over taffetta with matching lace jacket. Her head-dress was a blue Juliet cap of tulle taffeta. She wore matching lace mitts and carried a nosegay of white mums and blue angel feathers with satin streamers.

The groom was attended by Dr. Derrill I. McGuigan of Charlottetown. The ushers were Mr. Robert Inkpen, Sydney, N. S., friend of the bride and Mr. William Arbing, Bedford, cousin of the groom.

The bride's Mother was unable to attend due to illness. The groom's Mother was dressed in navy blue acetate and visorose and wore a white stole with silver trim. Navy accessories and a corsage of white carnations completed her ensemble.

During the Mass and signing of the register Albert Blanchard, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Joseph Dougan, sang, "Ave Marie," "Panis Angelicus," "On This Day O' Beautiful Mother," and "O Lord I am not Worthy."

A reception was held at Stanhope Beach Hotel where a delicious dinner was served to relatives and friends. The bridal table was attractively decorated for the occasion and centered with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. The cake was cut in the traditional manner by the bridal couple.

The duties of toastmaster were capably performed by Mr. L. O. Kelly, Charlottetown. Rev. Reginald Phelan proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom fittingly replied. The bestman, Dr. Derrill I. McGuigan proposed the toast to the bridesmaids which was responded to by Mr. Robert Inkpen. Brief remarks expressing congratulations and good wishes were made by Rev. O. P. Wood, Mr. John B. Christopher, the bride's father and other guests. Miss Mae MacKinnon was in charge of the guest book.

Mr. Harold Wood at the piano supplied music for dancing and singing in the hotel's spacious reception rooms. After which the Bridal-Party and all the guests left for the newly-weds apartment where refreshments were served. The bride's bouquet was caught by the maid of honour, Miss Rosita Croken.

Mr. and Mrs. Arbing left by car on a wedding trip to various points in the Maritime Provinces. For travelling the bride chose a turquoise blue velvet suit and blue velvet hat with natural accessories. Her corsage was red roses.
