New Canadian Navy Ships Are Part Of Readiness Plan

By FRANK SULLIVAN

HALIFAX (CP) — Vice-admiral H. S. Rayner, chief of naval staff in Ottawa, said here addition of eight new frigates and three submarines to Canada's naval fleet is part of the navy's readiness to "defend Canada against attack from the sea."

The frigates, to be built in Canada, would carry guided missiles and would obviate duties now handled by jet Banshee aircraft.

The submarines, to be built in England, would be employed as "anti - submarine submarines," the admiral told a press conference.

There were no plans to send three Royal Navy submarines, on training duties here with the Royal Canadian Navy, back to Britain. An American sub, the Grilse, was to remain on the west coast for five years.

This would mean the submarine strength would be increased to seven ships.

END NEAR

An operational squadron of 12 Banshees at nearby Shearwater naval air station is to be "paid off" about the end of this year, Admiral Rayner said.

Their pilots would be able to find flying duty with various other types of aircraft in five other squadrons in this area or with small reserve squadrons in Victoria, B.C. and Toronto or a small tracker and helicopter squadron on the west coast.

The Banshee was the only Canadian aircraft equipped to carry the deadly sidewinder missile. The new frigates are to carry a similar type of guided missile.

Whether Canada became involved in a conventional "brush-fire" war or full-scale nuclear war, the navy is ready defensively, Admiral Rayner said.

Defence Minister Harkness announced in the Commons Wednesday the new frigates and submarines would be built, but he did not give an estimate of the cost.

REPLACE DESTROYERS

The frigates are part of a program to replace the navy's present destroyers.

Admiral Rayner told the press conference that Canada's fighting forces function basically in a defensive rather than an offensive capacity and are pledged in this capacity to NATO.

The navy's role generally is to defend the country against surprise attack from the sea, but this did not necessarily mean such an attack was expected more from the sea than by air, he said.

The chief of staff was here to observe naval operations in the Atlantic area.

PLAN SPECIAL STAMPEDE

CALGARY (CP) — The Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Limited, which this year will stage its 50th annual stampede, plans to celebrate the anniversary with special presentations to all surviving competitors in the 1912 event. But so many persons are claiming they participated in the 1912 stampede that officials announced Monday they will pay $25 to the first person who produces a copy of the official list of 1912 contestants.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	6 ♥

Opening lead—ten of spades.

The outcome of many hands played by declarer depends upon how he gauges the distribution of the opponents' cards. When he has no clues to guide him, either because the defenders did not bid at all or because their plays are not self-revealing, declarer cannot do better than depend on probabilities, that is, follow the line of play that would be most likely to succeed in the long run.

Examine this hand. South is in six hearts and West leads a spade. Every suit is under control except clubs. Here there is a danger of losing two tricks.

South knows that against certain combinations of cards held by East-West he can hold himself to one club loser if he plays correctly, and that against others he will have to lose two club tricks regardless of what he does.

South does not waste time devoting his thoughts to hands he cannot possibly make, but concentrates instead only on those where a favorable distribution of the cards will permit him to make the contract if he chooses the right line of play.

Accordingly, he wins the spade with the ace, plays a round of trump, cashes the king of spades and ace of diamonds, and ruffs a diamond in dummy. Then, after playing a heart to his hand, he leads a club, West producing the nine.

Now comes the crucial decision. If declarer plays the jack he is defeated because East wins and returns a club. But if he plays the ace he makes the contract. That is because, if East plays low on the ace, a club return forces East to yield a ruff and discard, while if East plays the queen on the ace, South can return to his hand with a trump and lead a club towards dummy.

The ace is the right play. For practical purposes, the jack play wins only when West has the K-Q. The ace play is successful whenever East has K-x-x, Q-x-x, K-x, Q-x, K or Q, and these possibilities outnumber those where West has the K-Q.
