is indicated by little kernels in the neck. Sometimes they swell, become painful, soften, and end in a scar. Watch carefully, and just as soon as the kernels appear give Scott's Emulsion. The swellings will grow less and less until they disappear entirely. Continue the Emulsion until the child has good solid flesh and a healthy color.

ADVICE FOR THE YOUNG.

REV. J. M. MCLEOD'S ADDRESS TO THE C. B. C. STUDENTS.

Some time ago Rev. J. M. McLeod, of Vancouver, paid Charlottetown a visit, and during his stay delivered an able and instructive address before the students of the Charlottetown Business College. He said:

YOUNG LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—It affords me much pleasure to appear before you to-night and to see so many intelligent faces before me—all sitting at the fountain of learning. I hope you will all drink deeply. You know what the poet says:

"A little learning is a dangerous thing, Drink deep or taste not the perian spring

There shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,

But drinking largely sobers it again."

You all drink deeply if in after years you wish to be useful men and women in the world. I remember when I was a student at College, our professor in giving his inaugural address, said: "Young men, (there were no young ladies there) 'the first lesson you have to learn is to learn that you know nothing.' It is a very hard lesson to learn, but it is a very important one. There are lots of things veiled almost entirely in mystery, and of which we know almost nothing. Take, for instance, the Supreme Being. Our knowledge of Him is very limited. What do we know concerning ourselves? Take the eye for instance. It gathers in in an instant all the beauties of nature, gathers in at a glance a great variety of objects, and yet we cannot tell how it is done. Take again the ear—so delicately formed. We understand not how it is, but the faintest sounds—even to the difference in the chirp of a flock of birds, is discernable. Again, look at the perpetual system of telegraphy that is going on between the external world and the mind of man. We cannot explain it. Look at the bones and muscles of the human system. What a study in themselves. Take the heart, expanding and contracting 4,000 times every hour and sending through the veins and arteries 250 pounds of blood every minute. We may say we know almost nothing of the human system. Take whatever field of science you like—take that of astronomy—certainly one of the most interesting of studies. You look up at the blue vault of heaven and behold the sun in all his glory—you gaze at the starry firmament and there behold the moon, illumining the earth with her light, and innumerable stars—and of all those are known but little of. The very thing, we wish to know something about we know but very little. We want to know what makes the sun shine, the stars twinkle. We want to know if those plants we see are inhabited. There breathes not the man who can help us to solve those perplexing questions.

Thoroughness is one thing to be aimed at by you. If you wish to be successful, be thorough. Take a resolution to master everything you undertake. Another thing which tends to success is punctuality. You cannot overestimate its value. The men who have succeeded in the world have been those who have been punctual. When you go out into the world and take positions your employes will look to you to be punctual, you will be expected to be at your work on time. Be particular about the most minute matters; though it be but a cent in your accounts, you must not pass on until you have accounted for it. I've known bank clerks to spend hours in looking through their accounts, counting their notes silver and gold, in order to trace a single cent. The way to be successful is to begin now and be particular about small things. There is another matter I wish to speak to you about. I need not address myself to the young ladies, and I trust, in fact I'm sure the young men have no need of this warning; but it is better to be forewarned than forearmed. When you go out into the world to search for work, and the merchant or the banker or whoever it may be, smells the least taint of intoxicating liquor on your breath—they do not want you. Even the liquor dealer himself will not employ a man who drinks. Young men never touch, taste, nor handle the accursed stuff, if you want to succeed in the world. It has been the cause of failure in many a young man. It has invaded the bench, the bar and even the sacred precincts of the pulpit. It will debar you from securing a position. Remember I do not speak to you in this way because I think you need it. You can receive instruction in this institution that will fit you for any business position—that will enable you to gain an independent livelihood each one for himself or herself. I do not know whether you know it or not, but young men and young women who leave this College are eagerly sought after by those who need help. It has not been in existence for 25 years for no purpose. Students who go from this institution readily secure good positions. I could point out to you persons who sat in this college, as you sit now, and who to-day are holding responsible positions not only in our own country but in other places as well, men who are earning from two to ten thousand dollars a year. If those people have risen to those positions what is to hinder you from doing the same. Be thorough in your work, when you start to learn typewriting and shorthand—when you start in to master the science of accounts make up your mind that you are going to master them, make up your mind to fit yourselves for the best positions in the land. If you aim at this you will no doubt succeed. I'm pleased to see before me so many young people fitting themselves for business. We often hear the remark 'where will they all get positions?' The same is said about our doctors, that the supply is greater than the demand, yet we find them all making a comfortable living and many saving money. Positions are to be had if you are able to fill them. I know of young people in the city where I live, who, earn 60, 70, 80, and up to 100 dollars a month, doing shorthand and typewriting work. There is no doubt but that positions will open up to you as you are ready to take them. I wish you all success. I wish this institution success, during the time it has been in existence it has sent out students who have been a credit to it and to its teacher. I wish you all good night.

The Boer animosity to President Kruger grows on account of the fact that he and his officials are persuading the people that South African Republic paper money is as good as Bank of England notes because it is based on inalienable state securities, even though the state should be conquered. As the English have not recognized this contention many burghers have been ruined and unutterable misery prevails. The wives and children of the poorer Boers are almost starving. General Botha's force is kept together by extraordinary inventions. This correspondent has seen an official circular asserting that Lord Roberts was forced to retreat south of the Vaal and that Lady Roberts escaped in a balloon.

A leader of a Pretoria commando has been captured by the British east of Derdepoort. He tried to escape, but was covered by six rifles at close quarters, whereupon he threw down his arms. He was on the opposite side of the river from those who held him under the guns, and it was impossible for the latter to cross over and get him. They held him however, until a sergeant of Robert's Horse, who knew a drift further down, came along. The sergeant did not use the lower drift, but wimming his horse across the river, brought the prisoner back with him.

Later it was found that the Boers were holding the lower drift in force.

Advices have been received at Kingston, Jamaica, from Martinique to the effect that a large number of Martiniquans have memorialized the President of the French Republic, M. Loubet, asking him to furnish arms and passage to enable them to proceed to South Africa to help the Boers. The anti-British feeling is strong in the French Antilles.
