out They felt sure that their movement thus far had not been discovered by any of the tories, and they were yet very cautious until they had got clear of the village. They took their way down the narrow, pebbly cape which lies between the North River and the sea, for the schooner was not anchored far from its point. The distance was over four miles, the night was dark, and the travelling was difficult. But the adventurers pushed on and before nine o'clock they were upon the southern point of the cape. The schooner was not over a mile distant, and in a southerly direction, being further in shore. Her top-hamper could be plainly seen against the snow-capped hills, and even her low, black hull was visible. There were three large boats close at hand, which had been brought there since dark from the opposite side of the river, and these were at once prepared for pushing off.

'Now what's the plan?' asked one of the Plymouth men.

'Just as simple as can be,' returned Matthew Clyne. 'We'll most of us lay low in the boats, and push right ahead. Of course the schooner 'll hail us, and I'll pretend we're coming in with a load of fish. They wont see only those that are on the thwarts, and I don't fear that they'll suspect anything till we rise on 'em. Ye see we wont pull right for her when we come within sight, but we'll make as though we was goin' around ahead of her, and then we'll take the tide and drop alongside in a jiffy.

This was perfectly satisfactory, and ere long the men were all in the boats. The oars were muffled and at the word they pushed off. Over thirty of the men were either lying beneath the thwarts, or so crouched away that they could not be seen at any distance, leaving only five men to each boat in sight. The tide was setting down from the river, and the wind was from the north west, cold and bleak. But they noticed not the cold—they cared little for the biting frost—for their hearts beat quick and warm, and their blood flowed freely through their veins. They spoke with each other in low tones, and their words were full of cheer and hope.

CHAPTER V.

The British schooner Asp was a splendid little naval craft, and on account of her fleetness General Gage sent her out when there messages to be carried. She was built after the model of the Portsmouth yachts, carried six brass guns—twelve pounders—and had at present a complement of fifty men, though she had accommodations for more. Her deck was flush fore and aft, and highly ornamented. One of her boats was on shore, the captain and lieutenant being on a visit to General Ruggles, and a passed midshipman named Rodney had the deck. There were some dozen men beside the officer on deck, six of whom were stationed as lookouts, and the others were stowed away under the lee of the bulwarks forward. The wind was keen and cutting, and even the men upon the lookout kept their faces shielded behind the collars of their pea jackets, and ever and anon they would jump down and dance around to keep their blood from freezing up.

The officer paced up and down the starboard side of the quarter deck with short, quick steps, sometimes slapping his hands, and then, again, stamping his feet. In fact, some one was either clapping or stamping about all the time, but the men were cold, and this was pardonable, for the only danger which was apprehended from it was keeping the men awake below. Mr Rodney had just finished a clapping of his hands more energetic than usual, when he was suddenly started by the sound of oars not a great distance off. He sprang over upon the larboard side and gazed towards the town, for the first thought was, that the captain was returning. But he could see nothing, and when he next heard the sound he knew that it came from the opposite direction, and just as he was starting back, one of the lookouts reported to him that boats were approaching.

'Where are they?' the officer asked, leaning over the rail, and gazing out upon the dark sea.

'There. Don't you see? Right off here to the northward an eastward.'

'There are two of them,' said the officer after gazing a moment.

'As many as that' added the man.

'Ay—there are three,' Rodney resumed, after gazing a few moments more. 'By the kingdom, Marlton, there's mischief here, I'm afraid. Have the tompions taken from the guns on this side, and get up a match.'

This order was obeyed, and by the time the match was lighted the boats could be plainly distinguished—three of them—moving along towards the town.

'They are going across our bows,' said Marlton, as he noticed that the boats were steering clear of the schooner.

'So they are; but then you can't tell much by the movements of these infernal Yankees. They are cross-eyed, every mother's son of 'em, and look you right in the face when you don't know it. But I'll hail 'em.'

'Wouldn't you call all hands, sir?' suggested Marlton.'

'For what?'

'Why in case of danger.'

'Danger?' What—from three fisher boats? No, sir. But you may have all the watch up, every man of 'em."

Marlin went down to see that all the watch were on deck, while the officers went forward to hail the boats, which were now on the starboard bow, having not yet crossed, and not over a cable's length distant.

'Boats ahoy!' shouted Rodney, in a strong clear voice.

'Hello-o-o!' came back, in a tone full as strong.

'what boats are those?'

'Sam Doolittle's boats. Naow who be yeou?'

'His majesty's schooner of-war, Asp.'

'Jerewsalem! When 'd ye cum in here? We thought ye was 'Squire Little's fishin' schooner.'

The Yankees had stopped rowing, and the tide was consequently setting them fast towards the Englishman.

"Rather honest, aren't they?' uttered Marlton, as he heard this last answer.

'Bloody green, at any rate, was Rodney.

'What ye got aboard?' the officer next asked.

'Co-odfish.'

'But you haven't been catching cod-fish this kind of weather.'

'We sartin have. Been gone three hull days, an' got pooty well filled up. I tell ye. Bite like nippers jest off the island here.'

'Wont you bring us a few alongside?'

'No yer don't. I know ye. Ye'll steal every blasted one 'em if ye get yer hands onto 'em, I've hearn tell 'baout yeou Britishers.'

'Well, you'll sell us some in the morning, wont you?'

'Sartin. But say; when d'ye cum daown here?'

'Never mind. Poke along now and mind your own business.'

'Wal, that ere's perlite, ennyheow. I swow ef 'taint.'

By this time the boats were within thirty fathoms of the schooner, and as the last response was made, the fishermen dropped their oars into the water and gave one or two pulls ahead. That brought them directly under the Englishman's fore-foot, and then they changed their course.

'Why, the lubbers are coming this way?' uttered Marlton, as he noticed the movement.

'So they are. Boat ahoy!'

'Hello-o-o!'

'What you after? Keep away, or I'll fire into you.'

'We was goin' to let ye have some fish, seein' as ye wanted 'em so bad.'

'We want none of them; so keep off. Keep off, I say, or I'll fire into you. Bless their impudent souls, uttered Rodney. 'Why don't they mind?'

'Very likely they don't know the difference between an English man-of-war and one of their own fishing smacks. They are most emphatically the greatest set of clowns that I ever came—'

The quarter-master was cut short in his speech by a very strange movement on the part of the Yankee boats. All of a sudden they had shot alongside like rockets, and the concussion made the schooner tremble.

'Avast there!' shouted the midshipman, springing first to the mainmast and seizing a

French Language and Literature

TAUGHT BY

PROF. LEON DE MONTIER, FROM FRANCE.

Graduated in the Academic de Paris Universite de France. Late Professor in the French Language and Literature in the McGill University and High School of Montreal, C. E.

PROFESSOR LEON DE MONTIER begs leave to say that, having taken Rooms at MRS. RAMSAY'S, Prince Street, next door to the Ferry Grocery Store, he is prepared to give Lessons in the above important branch of modern education. Classes may be formed at his residence by ladies or gentlemen desirous of acquiring a thorough knowledge and the fluent speaking of the French Language.

Professor L. de M.'s method of teaching French will smooth in a great part the difficulties of beginners, whilst to more advanced pupils he will impart a proficiency of speaking, together with the pure Parisian accent, so deservedly esteemed by all well educated people.

Nothing shall be wanting on the part of Prof. L. de M. to enable his pupils to make the most rapid progress, and by his exertions to speak the French language in the shortest time.

Terms made known on application.

THE ROAD TO HEALTH AND LONG LIFE

SECURED BY

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

Impurities of the Blood.

In selecting the most appropriate medicine for a particular ailment there may be some difficulty unless one can be found to purify, regulate, and improve the quality of the blood. These Pills possess and exert these three qualifications in an extraordinary degree. They enable the stomach to digest any ordinary food, increase the secretory powers of the liver, cleanse and purify the blood, expel all morbid matter, and throw into the circulation the purest elements for sustaining and repairing the frame.

Weakness and Debility.

How many persons suffer from debility without knowing the causes why they are feeble! In many cases the stomach is the aggressor. Holloway's Pills have long been famed for regulating a disordered stomach, and restoring its healthy digestion; they are, therefore, confidently recommended as a never-failing remedy in all cases where the constitution, from any cause, has become impaired or weakened.

Disease of the Head and Heart.

These formidable diseases are, unfortunately, frequent occurrence; for the most part they creep on gradually, but may be prevented by proper precautions. Holloway's Pills are the surest preservatives against all derangements of the brain, and are the speediest correctors of irregular circulation. It may be taken without delay, when tingling in the limbs, drowsiness, or giddiness comes on, the effect will be marvellous.

Females of all Ages and Classes.

The fame of these Pills is partly based upon the beneficial effects they have upon the constitutions of females. From the domestic servant to the peeress universal favor is accorded to them for their invigorating and purifying properties, which render them so safe and invaluable in all disorders peculiar to the sex. Obstructions of every kind, either in young persons entering into womanhood or approaching the turn of life—the most critical period—may be radically removed by recourse to those Pills.

All Disorders affecting the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.

Whenever the stomach, liver or bowels are disordered by high living, climate, over indulgence, undue exertion or other causes, these fine regulating Pills will soon rectify the evil, and speedily bring back energy, strength and cheerfulness to the frame where previously all was lassitude, gloom and dejection.

Despondency, Low Spirits.

The misery occasioned by a disordered digestion is, unfortunately, felt by most. These famous Pills should be taken in appropriate doses to adjust the disturbed functions. They dispel headache, biliousness, nausea, lowness of spirits, and all similar ailments. A course of these invaluable purifying Pills never fails in removing the cause of such morbid affections, without subjecting the sufferer to any inconvenience.

Influenza, Diptheria Bronchitis, Coughs and Colds.

In our changeable climate few persons escape without colds, sore throats influenza, diptheria, or bronchitis, for all of which these famous corrective Pills may be taken with the certainty of effecting a cure. While the Pills are expelling all impurities from the body generally, Holloway's Ointment should be well rubbed upon the chest and throat it will penetrate the skin, reduce inflammation and restore lasting soundness.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known in the world for the following diseases.

Ague	Female Irregularities	Scrofula, or King's Evil
Asthma	Fevers of all kinds	Sore Throat
Bilious Complaints	Fits	Stone & Gravel
Blotches on the Skin	Gout	Secondary Symptoms
Bowel Complaints	Headaches	TicDouloureaux
Colics	Indigestion	Tumours
Constipation of the Bowels	Inflammation	Ulcers
Consumption	Jaundice	Venereal Affections
Debility	Liver Compl'nts	Worms of all kinds
Dropsy	Lumbago	Weakness from whatever cause &c. &c.
Dysentery	Rheumatism
Erysipelas	Retention of Urine

RING'S

Vegetable Ambrosia,

FOR

GRAY HAIR.

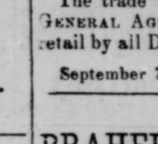
This is the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Cure that lay
In the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Man who was bald and gray,
Who now has raven locks, they say.
He used the Cure that lay
In the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Maiden, handsome and gay,
Who married the man once bald and gray,
Who now has raven locks, they say.
He used the AMBROSIA that Ring made.

This is the Parson, who, by the way,
Married the maiden, handsome and gay,
To the man once bald and gray,
But who now has raven locks, they say,
Because he used the Cure that lay
In the AMBROSIA that Ring made.



This is the Bell that rings away
To arouse the people sad and gay
Unto this fact, which here does lay—
If you would not be bald or gray,
Use the AMBROSIA that Ring made.
