An Executive Commissioner for Canada has been appointed, who will have the general charge of the exhibits and the allotment of space, and the several Provincial Governments have been invited to co-operate with the view of making the exhibition as complete and satisfactory as possible.

The Dominion Government will pay the transport of exhibits going and returning, and for the placing of articles sent.

OTTAWA LETTER

Debate on the Redistribution Bill.

(Special Correspondence of The Examiner.)

On Monday the debate was resumed by Mr. Cockburn, who announced himself, in opening, as feeling a deep interest in the political and general welfare and fortunes of the Island of Prince Edward. He was opposed to the disturbance of the county lines, and would support Mr. Davies' amendment.

Mr. Davies repeated, with great earnestness, his protest of the day before.

Mr. Davin seemed to have given the question careful study, and indeed to have acquired information with which previous speakers did not appear to have been supplied. He said, in the course of his speech:

"I am told that Mr. Davies objects greatly to Lot 24 being in East Queen's. He seems to try to impress this House with the view that East Queen's is his constituency, but, Sir, there has not been, up to the present time, nor will there be until the bill has passed, any such constituency as East Queen's. There is the County of Queen's, returning two members to this House, and Mr. Davies is as much a member for what is called West Queen's in this bill as he is for East Queen's. As a matter of fact he lives in Charlottetown, and he is actually more the member for West than East Queen's. I do not want to enter into the reasons why, but a little bird has whispered it to me; one of my colleagues in the representation here who has conversed with Mr. Davies, tells me that one of the reasons he objects to have Lot 24 in East Queen's—and that in fact he would be pretty well satisfied if Township 24 had been taken out of East Queen's and put into West Queen's—is the reason that there is a certain complexion, partly religious and partly political, in Lot 24. Let me ask the hon. member for Bothwell (Mr. Mills), who is so logical, what are himself and his friends doing when they found an argument on the opinions of the people of Lot 24? They are doing the very thing that they say the Minister of Justice and this Government must not do, and which I agree that we should not do. We are told that we should have no regard whatever to the political opinions of the people, but that we should make a redistribution fairly on a broader principle, and not think of taking a party advantage. We are told that we have nothing to do with that; but what does the hon. gentleman opposite do? He says: I am going to analyse the opinions of these people; and in doing that, does he go all over their past history and all over the elections in which they have voted? No, but he goes to some recent election, and because they may have voted in a given way, he says: I am not going to allow you to make a symmetrical division of this Island in order that we may have the principle of representation by population carried out. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, the very gentlemen who denounce in this House the allowing of political or party considerations to weigh with us: these are the very gentlemen who allow political and party considerations to weigh with them. If I admitted for one minute, which I do not, that there is any cogency in the argument of the principle of political opinions being considered, I must remember that if Lot 24 at one end of King's County is brought into Queen's; yet in Lots 61, 63 and 64, in which there is certainly a Catholic vote, it is a stronghold of Orangemen. Lot 61, 63 and 64 have about 3,000 Protestants to 200 Catholics, and I am informed by one who can speak with authority, that the majority of the Protestants belong to the Orange order. What, then, is the hon. member for Queen's so very angry about?

Mr. Yeo followed in a temperate speech against the division.

Mr. Masson had at first been impressed with Mr. Davies' plea for the retention of county boundaries, but having learned that counties on the Island were entirely different from counties in Ontario, that there were no county councils or municipalities, and that the counties were nothing more than judicial districts, and their associations only such as pertain to judicial districts, would support the Bill. Mr. Davies' contention that the division was an attempt to legislate him out of parliament was a man of straw that did not require so great an amount of rhetoric as had been displayed to knock it down.

Mr. Weldon was surprised at Mr. Davies' intemperate language. The proposal to distribute the Island was an intelligent and reasonable one, and on the principle of equalization of population was unobjectionable. Mr. Davies' contentions amounted to nothing. Taking into account the equalization of the districts, and not meddling with the lines of townships, a more equitable, reasonable arrangement could not be made than that proposed by the Bill. But whenever the principle of equalization of population conflicted with the principle of least disturbance of boundaries, he would stand for the latter instead of the former, and would, therefore, support Mr. Davies' amendment.

Mr. Mulock made a lengthy and very irrelevant speech, which was not surprising under the circumstances. He spoke of the rail wagging the dog, and wanted to know if the administration was going to be dictated to and dragooned into a line of action by two of their followers. How did it come that Messrs. Macdonald and McLean had such an influence with the Cabinet? It was not an influence which had been manifested on the floor of the House, but outside the House, and it was time that the House protected itself against influences of that character.

Here Mr. Macdonald invited Mr. Mulock to name the influences he referred to, if he dared, but Mr. Mulock dared not and explained that he referred only to political and party pressure. But it is doubtful if the gentlemen knew what he referred to, or even what he was saying, as he had scarcely recovered from a "strong weakness" which had necessitated his early retirement from the House the previous evening.

Mr. Davies' amendment was then put and lost on a division of 49 yeas to 71 nays. Messrs. Weldon, Cockburn and McLean of York, voted with Mr. Davies. Mr. Weldon's championship of the integrity of county boundaries may be sincere enough, but it is instructive to point out that the County of Albert, N. B., which he represents, has a population of 10,971, and that the County of Westmoreland, N. B., which is also represented by a single member, Mr. Josiah Wood, has over 41,000 inhabitants. Mr. Weldon could hardly be expected, after having pleaded successfully for the preservation of his own little constituency, to vote for breaking the lines of another county. He has no objection though to sit for one of the smallest constituencies in the Dominion, and where the contest is a remarkably easy one. I think if I had been in Mr. Davies' place I would have preferred the opposition rather than the support of such a noodle as Mr. Cockburn—the jackass who displayed such monumental ignorance during the debate on the tunnel question last session.

To the boundaries of the district of East Queen's Mr. Davies objected. Lot 24 had no business there; it had always belonged to the western section of Queen's County and had never voted with the eastern section for either Council or Assembly. Moreover, it had a Conservative majority of 200, and, having taken the three King's County lots with a Conservative majority of 128 into East Queen's, it was unfair to take Lot 24 with its 200 Conservative majority from West Queen's and place it in East Queen's. Surely hon gentlemen opposite did not want to legislate a man out entirely.

Mr. Macdonald said it was rumored that Mr. Davies had been canvassing some Conservative members and seeking sympathy on the ground that Lot 24, which was a township of Catholics, was being dumped in his constituency. Mr. Macdonald wished Mr. Davies to say if the rumor was correct. Mr. Davies said it was not. It was true that he had told several Conservative members that it was an outrage after having imported 128 Conservative majority from the East, to bring in another 200 majority from the West. He had not spoken of a Catholic vote but of a Conservative vote. Mr. Macdonald said if Mr. Davies denied the rumor that was an end of it, but having heard the report he considered it only fair to Mr. Davies to give him an opportunity of denying it. Mr. Macdonald continued: Now let us look for a moment at the proposition of Mr. Davies. He says that we have dumped a large Conservative vote on him. The facts of the case are, that according to the Redistribution Bill, West Queen's shows a majority in favor of the Conservatives of 89 votes. According to Mr. Davies' proposition the taking off of Lot 24 from East Queen's and adding it to West Queen's would leave him still a majority in West Queen's of 227. I ask hon. gentlemen which is the fairer proposition: our small majority of 89 for the Conservatives, or his proposition to take off Lot 24 and leave a large majority in favour of himself and friends. I believe that the proposition of the Government as stated in the bill is as fair as any man could make it taking it from one end of the Island to the other, and as fair as it is possible to do it, having the township lines in view. Now, a great deal has been said about the influence of myself and my colleague being brought to bear on the Government. That statement bears contradiction on the face of it, because if our object was to bring influence on the Government, I suppose that we would bring that influence to bear in favor of ourselves. If we were so inclined to bring to bear influence of that kind and had only our own selfish ends to serve we could very easily have taken a portion of southern Queen's and added it to King's, or we could have taken a portion of northern Queen's and added it to King's and carved out to two very nice constituencies for ourselves. But, I say that we had no such object in view, as making Conservative hives for ourselves or our friends. All we wanted was a fair and square distribution and that is what is contained in the present bill. It is a fair and honest redistribution, and any removal of Lot 24, or any other lot, will leave it in a much more unfair position than it is at present, and will give a party advantage to either one or the other, greater than does the present bill as now constituted. I am glad that Mr. Davies has been able to deny the rumor which has been floating around, for I did not think it was possible that he would be so unfair as to make an assertion of that kind, when there was no reason for it, and when he has got a majority in Queen's County as it is now constituted of about two Protestants to one Catholic. I did not think it was possible that he would make an assertion of that kind, and I am glad to hear him deny it. I might say, however, that the lots that were taken from King's County and put into Queen's had 4,092 Protestants and 847 Catholics. I have these figures before me in order to show that there was no disposition to create any feeling of that kind, and I was sorry indeed to hear that anything of that nature should be spoken of. I repeat again that I am glad to know that Mr. Davies could contradict it.

Mr. Dickey had been opposed to departing from county lines on the Island, but he could not support Mr. Davies' suggestion to remove Lot 24 from East Queen's.

The paragraph of the bill was adopted by a vote of 59 to 39.

Notwithstanding a protest from Mr. Perry against placing Lot 15 in East Prince, the other districts of the Island were passed without division.

After some time spent in supply the House adjourned.

MAKES FLESH AND BLOOD.—When the system is all run down and there seems to be no hope of obtaining nourishment for the body by the ordinary process of food supply and digestion, when the body is sinking fast, then is the time to use Miller's Emulsion of pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil. It always works wonders, because it is a flesh and blood maker and contains all the constituents for nourishment found in wheat, in fact, Miller's Emulsion is a perfect "staff of life," and has saved and cured thousands. In big bottles 50c. and $1 at Charlottetown drug stores.

CURED!

STEPHEN H. WARREN OF ISLESBORO, ME., IS WELL KNOWN IN HIS NATIVE TOWN, AND THE GREATEST CREDENCE CAN BE GIVEN TO HIS STATEMENT. TO A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE SKODA DISCOVERY CO., HE RECENTLY SAID:

"For more than two years I have suffered great misery from what Physicians called Liver and Kidney Troubles. Nearly all the time I would have severe pains in my back and side, with a constant dull pain in the region of my liver. My bowels were constipated. Food distressed me badly, and my Heart would palpitate greatly at times, in fact I was well broken up.

For two months I have been taking SKODA'S DISCOVERY and SKODA'S LITTLE TABLETS, and I AM A NEW MAN. Appetite good. Bowels in good condition. Heart palpitation all gone. No trouble with Liver or Kidneys now. I AM WELL. You certainly have a wonderful remedy in SKODA'S DISCOVERY as I have taken many of the Sarsaparillas, and have been treated by different Physicians without getting permanent benefit."
