HARRIS BOUNCED—Although there has been no official announcement, it is now positively known that A. B. Harris, who was appointed traffic manager of the government railways system eight months ago, and who promised to do such remarkable things for the government railway in the way of making it a paying road, and whose administration of the traffic department caused such widespread dissatisfaction and trouble for the government has received his dismissal and is preparing to vacate the office.

What is to be done with the position created for Mr. Harris, or whether it is to be abolished, has not transpired, the officials declining to speak on the matter.

PERSONAL.

Mr. J. Auld, who for a number of years was an engineer on the Government steamer Stanley, is now acting in the same capacity on one of the United States transport steamers between Key West and Cuba—Pictou Advocate.

Rev. E. Bell, so well and favorably known throughout the N. B. and P. E. I. Methodist Conference, has returned from attending Harvard University, where he has just completed a special course of study. At the coming Conference Mr. Bell will be again appointed to a circuit—Summerside Pioneer.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. R. Nutting Taylor, formerly of this city has completed a very successful four year course in the manufacture and fitting of eye glasses including several months with a prominent eye specialist of Boston. We understand he intends coming to Charlottetown early next month on a visit to his home where he will practice his profession for a few weeks prior to settling in another locality, and we feel sure that this will afford those requiring glasses an excellent opportunity to procure them after having their eyes tested by modern methods.

ANCIENT TIMEPIECES.

Various Methods of Measuring Time Prior to the Invention of Clocks.

We need do no more than allude to the habit after the reformation, and especially in Scotland, of preachers measuring their discourses by the hour-glass in the pulpit. These marked an hour exactly. Those first made in Charlemagne's day ran for 12 hours. Alfred the Great hit upon a method of measuring time, which shows that there was no Saxon one, though very probably some of the monasteries (then the only homes of knowledge) were acquainted with water clocks and hour-glasses, if not by practical knowledge at any rate by hearsay.

However, the kingdom in general followed Alfred's plan, which, though ingenious, necessarily lacked anything like the accuracy of the other inventions. Yet the king's idea was hailed as a wonderful effort of genius, which, for such an era by comparison with the general ignorance, it was. As every schoolboy (in this case literally) knows, Alfred marked time by rushlights. A long existence, by the way, has the rush light enjoyed, seeing that middle aged people still remember its use in the nursery at night and the reflection of the circular holes in the tall metal shades on the ceiling.

Alfred, says an ancient authority, "that he might properly know how the hours passed, made use of burning tapers which were marked with lines and fixed in lanterns, an expedient invented by himself." So, by the way, were in 893 the lanterns of scraped horn which still some old fashioned rustics prefer to glass. But tapers, however, were then very expensive. The king might himself use these, but probably the rushlight was used by people in general.—London Standard.

A business man is not the most patient creature in the world. He cannot wait to hear any long-drawn-out story of the cause of his ailment. He doesn't care two straws about a fine spin theory of how he should treat himself. He may be predisposed to scrofula, or consumption. "That," he will tell you "has nothing to do with the case." He wants to be well. If he can be cured, write out a prescription and send in your bill. So, here's the first part of the proposition.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a microbe hunter and killer. Many persons of scrofulous blood, encourage the breaking out of unsightly sores, to prevent the disease going to the lungs. There is no need of this state of dread and discomfort. Purify the blood. It can be done. "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure 98 per cent. of all consumptive cases, also of all other lingering bronchial, throat and lung diseases.

The Wonderful Cheap Men

I have been frequently told that "Dry Goodmen" try to persuade buyers from inspecting my goods. It is easy to guess why they do this—and I sincerely hope they will continue in that course, for it only tends to make the shrewd buyer so much eager to know what I am selling at low prices. I employ no salesmen, sell only to gilt edge buyers, and my only terms are cash. Housekeepers will find it to their advantage to inspect my waists and skirts. See the widely known "King Diamond Skirts" at such a low figure. Buyers will save shoe walking and money by trading with me.
