The officer returned later with four other policemen. They boarded the vessel, and after a battle lasting some minutes succeeded in overpowering the captain. The latter resisted all the way to the police station.—Halifax Herald.

McDonald, for some time editor of the Guardian, is now managing editor of Justice, a weekly paper published at Wilmington, Del. It goes without saying that Justice is vigorously championing the Single Tax and other facts. KILLED A BEAR.—The Summerside correspondent of the Guardian reports that a bear was captured in the woods near Enmore River a few days ago. According to the correspondent, three young men were working in the woods when the attention of one of them was drawn to the fierce barking of a dog a short distance from him. The young man, Samuel Iman by name, walked over to the spot. Arriving there he saw coming from its den, underneath a tree, a large bear. The dog continued to annoy him, but when the bear saw Iman he made for him. Iman made a dive at him with his axe, but bruno snatched it from his hand and threw it beyond his reach. He then, while in the act of climbing a tree, shouted for his companions, who quickly arrived on the spot. A second blow was aimed at him, but as deftly shunned by bruno, the axe being hurled off the same way, but the third so quickly followed that he could not shun it. The axe dealt him a stunning blow, and a few more left him incapable of taking further revenge. LADIES, clean your kid gloves with Josefine Glove Cleaner. FROM ALL POINTS OF THE COMPASS. Cleveland Guarded. HAMILTON, January 13.—In a letter to his mother, a Hamilton young man, living in Washington, D. C., says that Grovet Cleveland is being guarded by special detectives, as he is in danger of being assassinated at the instigation of men who have been financially ruined by the president's war message. Prince Henry of Battenburg. LONDON, January 13.—The war office announces that Prince Henry of Battenburg, husband of Princess Beatrice, who was attached to the Ashanti expedition, has arrived at Frascati. He was taken sick shortly after the expedition left Cape Coast Castle. His condition since has become worse. Great Britain and Venezuela. LONDON, Jan. 13.—The United Press learns upon good authority that Lord Salisbury is endeavoring through a neutral power to resume direct negotiations with Venezuela, proposing the appointment of a joint commission to delimit the disputed frontier. The joint commission failing to reach a complete agreement, the points in dispute are to be referred to a third power. A Defaulter and Absconder. PETERBORO, Ont., Jan. 13.—Cope Clement, collector of customs at Peterboro, son-in-law of James Stevenson, M. P., is a defaulter and absconder. The default was revealed by the visit of Inspector Boulton, of Toronto, who has found that the books are cooked. Clement is in Chicago. A big effort is being made to hush the matter up. Amount of defaultation not yet known. The Anglo-German Situation. LONDON, January 13.—The Daily News comments on Great Britain for seeking friendship of France and Russia. It blames Lord Salisbury for hitherto always obliging Germany and getting nothing in return. Count Van Hatzfeldt, German ambassador to Great Britain, has gone to Brighton, and his departure from London is taken as a sign that the Anglo-German situation is becoming more calm. The Flying Squadron. LONDON, January 13.—The Globe learns that the flying squadron just formed will first go to the Mediterranean, and that the vessels attached to the squadron, which may eventually be ordered to proceed to De-la-gos Bay, Portuguese East Africa, will probably go by way of Suez canal. The whole statement has a doubtful air. Despatches from Portsmouth state that the date of departure of the flying squadron has not yet been fixed, but it is expected that Rear Admiral A. L. Dele, who has been appointed to the command of the squadron, will be at sea by January 18th. The Flying Squadron comprises four first-class and two second class battleships. The Cuban War. NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Special cable despatch to the New York Herald from Havana says, General Gomez reentered Havana province from Pinar del Rio. He encountered the Spanish force under Suarez Valdes, three miles from Barabano and a desperate fight ensued. No official report of the casualties has been given out. Telegraphic communication across the island with the cable line was cut this morning. A Spanish officer who reached Havana tonight says the fight was the most important engagement of the war. Many of the Spanish dead and wounded were left on the field. Gen. Gomez was in personal command of the insurgents. He has continued his march eastward along the southern coast of Havana province. An Imprisoned American. SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., January 13.—Up to a late hour last night Major R. P. Hammond received no further news from Africa about the arrest of his brother by order of President Kruger. Frederick Hammond, a civil engineer, well known in San Francisco and on the Coast, went to South Africa last July. He was mentioned in the press despatches recently as among the prominent Americans in Johannesburg. News of the arrest of Hammond and others will cause anxiety among a home in California. Some of the big mining men in Africa are from this state. There are under Hammond seven Californians as superintendents of mines. Besides these many others have gone to fill subordinate positions. A report which was received to-day that Henry Ashe Tilghman of this city, had been arrested with Hammond and others caused much anxiety to the young man's friends in this city. British Warlike Spirit. BOSTON, January 13.—A special to the Globe from London says: "One of the great factors in the European crisis, which must be reckoned with, is the new-born spirit among the English people. While the flame of patriotism never blazed higher in old England than now, it is a patriotism of that intensely which makes for war. It compels the respect and admiration even of England's enemies, but it is full of danger. Its manifestations are on every hand. It finds spontaneous expression wherever the people congregate. In churches, in theatres at banquets, in the press, and everywhere it bursts out as the inspiring spirit of the hour. In several London churches to-day the national anthem was sung with more than a religious fervor. It is English custom for the orchestra to play a few bars of "God Save the Queen" as the audience is leaving the theatre. Now everybody remains and sings the whole anthem with pent up enthusiasm. There was a wonderful scene at Dalby's theatre Saturday night when Hayden Coffin sang the new patriotic ballad; "Hands Off," by Henry Hamilton. The lines are spirited, beginning, "England to arms, the need is nigh, and the chorus concludes, "England for her own, my boys, its rule Britannia still." There have been some surprising demonstrations of popular feeling by this unrepresentative people of late, but as yet they are like the mad enthusiasm of that crowded house. The spirit which makes women weep and makes men shout till exhausted will not long be content with mere words of defiance. Then at the last when the play finished and the orchestra sounded the familiar national anthem the whole company came upon the stage, pit, gallery and stalls rose up and attempted to sing "God Save the Queen." I say attempted, for those raw, strained throats could not sing. They roared, and the harsh, unusual chorus was more inspiring and more thrilling than any sweeter version of the great anthem ever given. Such a scene as this is more pregnant with meaning than flying squadrons or the messages of presidents and emperors. I should fail to record a most significant feature of the English public sentiment at the present moment if I did not add that hatred or dislike of America seems to have no part in the patriotic outburst. Didn't Know What Was the Matter But you felt weak and spiritless till you took a bottle or two of Wilson's famous Sarsaparilla. And that made a wonderful difference. You felt brighter. You could eat your food with relish. You began to get strong. You felt bright, elastic, hopeful; for it is two things. It is a very fine, old generous wine, with a glow at the heart, with an exquisite bouquet, with a pleasant stimulus in the use, while it is at the same time the best tonic on the market, sharpening the appetite, removing that "all gone" feeling, which is insupportable. Sold by all dealers at $7.50 per case of 12 quart bottles; half case $4.00, or 75 cents per bottle. Thousands use it to their advantage. The Bordeaux Claret Co., 30 Hospital Street, Montreal. 346 S. A. McDonald is responsible for the present low prices in ulsters and overcoats. His $15.00 beaver overcoat is a dandy at the price. j14 2t
