CHINATOWN'S PHYSICIANS.

Burned Paper and Ginseng Root, which bring him Fancy Prices.

One of the queerest shops in Chinatown is that of a Chinese doctor, who wears large diamond rings and prescribes sharks' fins, birds' nests and snakes' tongues for his patients. For prescriptions for indigestion it is his custom to charge his patient $1.

When that sum has been paid, he writes Chinese characters on a long strip of paper. This he burns, uttering incantations. The ashes he permits to fall into a glass of water which is given to the patient to drink. This cure is said to work every time, but a New York physician who has examined it consists of nothing more or less than the administration of charcoal, long known to practitioners as a cure for dyspepsia.

A much more expensive prescription which this New York Chinese doctor puts up for his patients is ginseng. There are some species of this peculiar plant for which the Chinatown doctor charges as much as $100 per pound.

Ginseng is supposed to infuse new life into him who takes it. To the devout Chinamen ginseng represents the fountain of youth, and for a small part of its precious wood he will often spend his last cent.

There are only three countries in the whole world where ginseng is found—China, Korea and the United States. Hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of ginseng are annually exported from this country to China, where it is in great demand by the native doctors, although European and American chemists who have examined it have failed to find that it possesses any curative or medicinal properties.

In China the best ginseng comes from Manchuria and sells for $100 per pound. This is called the Imperial brand. The second grade is collected in Korea, while the ginseng used by the poorer classes comes from the United States.

The Chinatown doctor sells ginseng to his patients at $20 to $100 per pound. He insists on wrapping it up in red paper bearing Chinese characters. An American doctor who tasted some of it the other day said it had the flavor of orris root and that its virtues, for which the Chinese pay so highly, are purely imaginary.—New York Journal.

An Hour in Delphi.

I had an hour all to myself in Delphi, and thought over my day. The drive from Itea, the port of Delphi, is beautiful. The road is perfect. It is a French road. It passes through olive groves, the like of which for vigorous life I have never seen, or, seeing, I have never marked, and then begins the ascent along the zigzags which furrow the face of the mountain. It recalled to my mind the road from Giardini to Taormina, the road from Palermo to Monreale. A very modern dogcart, driven by a very modern French archaeologist, with a very modern French girl at his side, came bowling down the road at a reckless pace. The awe of Delphi was not yet upon us.

Then we reached a large village, Chryso by name, which is, being interpreted, Goldborough—a corruption, it is suggested, of the ancient name Crissa; not an unnatural corruption, if one remembers the popular slanders against Delphi. Chryso seemed larger even than it was. Clambering far uphill, it waylays the traveler three times, and as we traversed it three times, the children of the village threw wild flowers into our carriages. When we went down, I must add, the withholding of a copper tribute roused the wrath of the youthful neighbors of Delphi, and other missiles than wild flowers were hurled into the carriage that I occupied.—B. L. Gildersleeve in Atlantic.

Beds With Drawers.

At some of the furniture houses are to be found brass bedsteads with drawers beneath, which, in these days of apartment life and voluminous wearing apparel, is a distinct advantage. There is a drawer at each end of the bedstead, extending across the width. They are entirely inclosed, and thus the contents are protected from all dust. While not wide enough for dress skirts, they are ample to hold a much trimmed bodice, and it is for these that they are specially designed.

Your anxiety is for your delicate child; the child that in spite of all your careful over-watching, keeps thin and pale. Exercise seems to weaken her and food fails to nourish. That child needs Scott's Emulsion with the Hypophosphites—not as a medicine, but as a food containing all the elements of growth. It means rich blood, strong bones, healthy nerves, sound digestion. No child refuses Scott's Emulsion. It is pleasant and palatable.
