

Fatal Railway Accident.

A SAD ACCIDENT, attended with fatal results, occurred at Kensington on Saturday evening last about half-past seven o'clock.

After the accident, Ramsay got up, and, with very little assistance, walked to the residence of Dr. McNeill.

An inquest was held, and the coroner's jury, after hearing the evidence, returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by injuries sustained in trying to board No. 5 evening train for Summerside.

SESSION OF THE SOVEREIGN GRAND LODGE.

On Saturday last, 21st inst., the sixty-fifth annual session of this influential organization closed at Columbus, Ohio.

Delegates from nearly all parts of the world were in attendance. The festivities were carried on in a grand manner, perhaps the most imposing being that of the grand parade on the 18th, in which over sixty Cantons of Patriarchs Militant participated.

The members of subordinate lodges and encampments, together with the military and civic authorities, made the display a most magnificent feature.

We condense from the reports the standing of this noble order at the present time:

Total number of Oddfellows on the globe January 1st, 1889, 1,341,279, fully one-quarter of a million more than that reported by the next largest civilized secret society.

During the year, the lodges in America alone paid out for relief of members $2,253,020.06; increase over 1887, $133,562.91; relief extended by encampments, $226,444.21; increase $9,809.45; by Rebekah Lodges, $21,815.76; increase $4,171.85.

Total paid out for relief, $2,501,820.23; an increase of $147,514.21.

Brothers relieved by subordinate lodges, 6,352, expending $1,640,513.18, for weekly benefits; $423,280.80 paid for burial of 6,413 brothers; 6,545 widowed families received $191,380.00; 9,557 patriarchs received from their encampments $180,080.08 for 68,559 weeks' sickness, and 1,167 were buried at an expense of $36,091.04.

Since 1830 there have been 1,575,637 persons initiated; 1,393,946 members and 176,608 widowed families relieved and 136,834 members have died. The total relief extended during this time was $48,601,862.09. Surely this is a splendid showing.

New Drug Store.

MR. A. S. JOHNSON, late of the Apothecaries Hall, has fitted up a new drug store on the corner of Kent and Prince Streets.

Telegraphic Odds and Ends.

A BUDGET OF GENERAL NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

VIENNA, Sept. 20.—There was a heavy fall of snow throughout Austria yesterday. Hundreds of peasants' cottages were completely snowed under.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 20.—Newspapers in this city have been ordered to cease championing Boulanger and adopt a moderate tone concerning Bulgaria.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—Thirty-two of the 259 Boulanger candidates nominated have withdrawn, and it is now too late to substitute other candidates.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The business affairs in Canada the last seven days reported to Duns and Russells agencies are 21, and in the corresponding week last year 28.

HALIFAX, Sept. 20.—An eight year old son of John H. Barnstead, leather dealer, fell into the Northwest Arm this afternoon and was drowned in five feet of water in the presence of his 15-year old sister.

Varia.

Just before the Imperial Parliament was prorogued, a most important announcement was made by Mr. Balfour regarding the future policy of the Government in the matter of Irish education.

He said, "ought to be done to give a higher university education to Roman Catholics in Ireland." He regretted that the Roman Catholic clergy had discouraged attendance at the Queen's Colleges or at Trinity, which is now open to all denominations.

But regrets are vain things and we must take facts as we find them; and the fact is, that in this matter the legitimate wants of the Roman Catholic population are not satisfied. It has therefore become necessary to devise some scheme "other than those which had at present been attempted" to do this.

What renders this declaration all the more important, is that Mr. Chamberlain states that it has been made with the assent of the entire Liberal Unionist party. If Ireland is to be governed in any respect on Irish ideas, there is certainly none which has a stronger claim than denominational education.

But there is no idea to which English Radicals are more vehemently opposed and it will be remembered that it was upon this rock that Mr. Gladstone's administration was wrecked in 1874.

That this opposition has not abated is shown by several speeches of the Radical members to their constituents, especially in those of Mr. Wallace and M. E. Robertson, who call attention from the real merits of the case by suggesting that it is merely a ministerial device for thrusting in a wedge between the Parnellites and their allies in Great Britain.

A Roman Catholic prelate recently on his way from Rome, was interviewed by the Paris correspondent of the London Daily News, to whom he stated that the report that the Pope was preparing to leave the Eternal City most certainly was not true.

The Pope has more faith than to think that the Church can perish, and to run away would be to doubt God's promises. "It would, moreover," continued the Bishop, "be impolitic. Princes who flee from fear of revolution seldom come back, and when they do it is with faded glory."

The Pope is not only Captain of St. Peter's barque, but custodian of the infinite artistic wealth contained in his palace, and of traditional forms, the preservation of which enables Catholics to understand the history of their church and its action on civilization.

The "New Review" is what its name declares it to be, it is literally a New Magazine, and claims favor among the many other magazines which save so many people the trouble of thinking for themselves, nowadays.

The second number, which recently appeared, contained a very interesting paper (anonymous) on "Talk and Talkers of Today." The following, whether correct or not, is at least a forcible description of Mr. Gladstone's method: "No image, except that of a torrent, can convey the notion of Mr. Gladstone's conversation—its rapidity, its volume, its splash and dash, its frequent beauty, its striking effects, the amount of varied matter which it brings with it, the hopelessness of trying to resist it, the unexpectedness of its on-rush, the subdued but fertilized condition of the subjected area which it leaves behind.

The bare mention of a topic in which Mr. Gladstone is interested opens the flood-gates and submerges a province. But the torrent does not wait for invitation. If not invited it comes of itself, headlong, overwhelming, sweeping all before it in a seething flood of reasoned and impassioned eloquence, and gathering fresh thought and fury from every obstacle which it encounters in its course."

The study of men's names is as curious as it is interesting. Arbitrary as they seem to-day, they all had their source evidently in some fitting fact. Many English surnames express the county, estate, or residence of their original bearers; as Burgoyne, from Burgundy; Cornell or Cornwallis, from Cornwall; Fleming from Flanders; Gaskin, and Gascoyne, from Gascony; Hanway, from Hainault; Polack, from Poland; Welsh, Walsh and Wallis, from Wales; Coombs, Compton, Clayton, Sutton, Preston, Washington, from towns in the county of Sussex.

Camden says every village in Normandy has surnamed some English family. Dale, Forest, Hill, Wood, and the like, are derived from the character or situation of those who first bore the name. The prefix "atte" or "at" softened to "a" or "an," has helped to form a number of names. Thus, if a man lived on a moor, he would call himself Attemoor or Atmoor; if near a gate, Attegate or Agate. John atte the Oaks was in due time shortened to John Noaks; Peter at the Seven Oaks, into Peter Snooks. Byfield, Ryford, Underhill, and Underwood, indicated residence originally. In old English, Applegarth meant orchard, whence Applegate and Appleton. Chase, a forest; Olive, a cliff; Clough, a ravine; Cobb, a harbor; whence these names. The root of the ubiquitous Smith is the Anglo-Saxon "smitan," or smite. It was applied primarily to blacksmiths, wheelwrights, carpenters, masons and smiters and strikers in general. Baker, Taylor, Butler, Coleman (coalman), Draper, Cowper (cooper), Cutler (Miller), and the rest, plainly denoted occupations. Latimer is from latiner, a writer of Latin. Lorimer is a maker of spurs and bridle-bits; Arkwright, a maker of chests; Lander, contracted from lavender, a washwoman; Banister, the keeper of a bath; Kidder, a huckster; Wait a minstrel; Crocker a potter. Such names as Baxter and Bagster are the feminine of Baker; Webster of webber or weaver; which shows that these trades were first followed by women, and that when men began to take them up they for some time kept the feminine names. Stewart, Stewart, Abbott, Knight, Lord, Bishop, Prior, Chamberlain, Falconer, Leggett (legate), either signified what the persons were, or they were given them in jest or derision, like the names King, Prince and Pope. The termination "ward" indicates a keeper, as Durward, door-keeper; Hayward, keeper of the town cattle; Woodward, forest keeper; Reed, Reed, or Reid, is an old form of spelling red, and was bestowed, as White, Brown, and Black were, to denote the color worn or the complexion had. Hogarth, from the Dutch, means generous, high-natured; Rush is subtle; Bowne, ready; Bonner kind, gracious; Eldridge, wild, ghastly. Many Welsh names, naturalized in English, are from traits, as More, great; Duff, black; Vaughan, little; Lane, slender; Mole, bald; Gough, red. Surnames now apparently meaningless are from old English and provincial dialects. Boock, for instance, signifies badger; Talbot, mastiff; Todd, fox; Culver, pigeon; Henshaw, young heron; Coke, cook.
