

The Proud Lady of the Castle.

(CONCLUDED.)

It was not long before he found himself kneeling at her feet and offering the beautiful maiden all that he had to offer—his devotion and his life.

The lady listened silently and with bowed head to his ardent pleading. Then she said, looking up, but away from him, and speaking absently: 'I have heard these words fore.'

'But never from lips so true, so honest, so disinterested,' said the young man warmly, forgetting in his fascination for the beautiful lady how he had certainly taken her inheritance into account in the first place.

The lady sighed and was silent. Then she spoke: 'If I yield to your wishes we must be married at once.'

'At once!' cried Von Stein, perhaps a little startled. Yet what lover ever found the time between betrothal and marriage too short? 'I am ready,' he said gallantly, 'and impatient.'

The lady smiled, moved softly away to an old worm-eaten chest which was set against the wall, took from it two rings, and a white veil, and crown of myrtle, which she laid upon her dark, flowing hair. Her dress was white.

'Come,' she said to her lover, and led the way.

A little bewildered, after the fashion of bridegrooms in general, and scarcely knowing whether to be happy or alarmed, the young man followed his bride through, as it seemed to him, miles of dimly lighted vaulted passages, where the damp was trickling down the walls and where unthought-of steps, up and down, were ready at every moment to trip up the unwary passer. The lady, however, seemed to be well acquainted with every turn and twist of the place, and giving her hand to her lover, she led him up step by step, until at length they reached a vaulted chamber, which they had no sooner entered than a great iron door shut heavily behind them, with a sound that echoed through every arch of the dimly lighted building.

It was the chapel.

'Your hand is cold, my love,' said the young man, tenderly, to his bride.

'No matter; yours has warmth and life enough for both,' returned the lady.

Yet the life seemed actually to ebb from the young man's heart as he observed the stone figure of a bishop, which was sculptured on a gravestone in the centre of the chapel, gradually rise from its recumbent position and walk up the steps of the altar. The eyes of the bishop flamed like glow-worms, the candles upon the altar lighted of themselves, and the tones of the organ rolled solemnly through that vaulted building.

'Kurt Von Stein, wilt thou take the Lady of Windeck for thy lawful wife?' said the bishop, in a low, sepulchral tone, which sounded as though not he, but some muffled voice a dozen yards away, were speaking.

At this moment the whole horror of the scene seemed to break on the young man. Around him, slowly rising from their graves, he saw the shrouded forms and fleshless faces of the dead, who came as witnesses to the ghostly marriage. He turned in an agony to fly from the horrible scene, tried to snatch his hand from the cold, hard grip of the phantom lady, fell, as he believed senseless upon the chapel floor—and awoke to find himself, at dawn of day, lying at his full length on the moss-grown stone where he had sat to rest the night before, at the castle door, and his horse intent, upon an early meal on the rank herbage of the grass-grown court.

When he told his tale in the village and at the neighboring castles, no one in the least doubted that he had almost, if not quiet, laid the unique spirit of the Lady of Windeck.—Harper's Weekly.

A Good Thing.

German Syrup is the special prescription of Dr. A. Boschee, a celebrated German Physician, and is acknowledged to be one of the most fortunate discoveries in medicine. It quickly cures Coughs, Colds and all lung troubles of the severest nature, removing, as it does, the cause of the affection and leaving the parts in a strong and healthy condition. It is not an experimental medicine, but has stood the test of years, giving satisfaction in every case, which its rapidly increasing sale every season confirms. Two million bottles sold annually. Beware of medicines of similar names, lately introduced. Boschee's German Syrup was introduced in the United States in 1868, and is now sold in every town and village in the civilized world. Three doses will relieve any ordinary cough. Price 75 cents. Sample bottle, 10 cents.

The Famine in Syria.

TERRIBLE TIMES IN THE EAST.—GRIEF OF THE MERCHANTS.—INACTION OF THE GOVERNMENT.

A Geneva correspondent says:—"The Bund publishes a letter from a Swiss gentleman living at Aleppo, in which the people of that part of Syria are described as being at the last extremity of misery and want. It is heart-breaking, he writes, to witness the desperate struggle between life and death which goes on in every quarter of the city, in every street and in every hut; old and young, little and great, men, women and children, Christians, Jews, Arabs and Turks are fighting and praying for bread. Hundreds of women surround the barracks where dwells the Governor, Said Pasha, while hundreds more, the wives of soldiers and redifs who have returned penniless to their homes, run wildly screaming through the streets, and literally besiege the Serai, the Government building. The blind, the crippled and the sick of every race and religion wander about and sit in the road crying "Allah kerim, kerim Allah"—"God is good and merciful; take pity on me and give me a morsel of bread." Many have died of hunger, while others, with their children, have been days together without food. All this time the Government remain with folded hands, although they cannot fail to know that the dearth arises from the action of the merchants, who are holding back their stores for higher prices. Aleppo grain merchants ask 33 to 35 piastres for a bushel of wheat, the price in ordinary years being three to five piastres. The misery seems to grow greater day by day.
