piety in his clutches but eventually there was a day when I was no longer jealous.

IT TAKES DETERMINATION

So you see, there is a cure for jealousy if the afflicted one knows that the trouble lies within herself (or himself) and has determination enough to keep on with the treatment until she knows herself to be cured.

ANSWER: There are indeed times when it is a pleasure to be wrong, and I say "Hallelujah" to the writer of this letter. Jealousy is one of the biggest emotions; it sears the souls and warps the minds of its victims.

A woman who wants to cure herself of jealousy must begin by facing the problem squarely, then building up her faith in husband or sweetheart. The methodical reading adopted by L. B. B. can easily be put in practice by anyone.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 29 years old and my hair has been rapidly turning gray, and has now reached the hideous stage where it is no color at all.

Around The Armouries

Although there is certainly plenty of activity around the Armouries these days very little of it is concerned with the local units.

The big recruiting drive for the 27th Brigade is taking up the attention of everyone. There has been a steady flow of young men making inquiries about the opportunities - and on that point many soldiers feel that chances were never better for a young fellow to start a career.

There is one surprising thing about the questions being asked, however, and that is that they reveal a misunderstanding that recruiting is only being carried on now for armored units.

Since the recruits have been coming in they have been given meal tickets, or chits, entitling them to eat in one of the local restaurants.

And the recruits had no complaint about the food either despite the ancient Army tradition of beefing about the beef.

There were 34 sitting down to table yesterday for the first meal. Incidentally they have propane gas cookers out at the old Victoria Barracks to lend a modern touch to an ancient setting.

One of the busier men at the Armouries now is Lt.-Col. K. M. Johnston, O.C. 5th Signals Regiment. Col. Keith for the present is also liaison officer, public relations officer and general "buffer" between recruiting forces and the public.

The local messes are going to look somewhat depleted after the big drive is over. A large number of members are back in uniform again after taking the King's shilling.

Among the better known busily engaged in recruiting are W.O. 2 H. H. MacLeod (Reece); W.O. 2 H. J. Gallant (Arty); S/Sgt. Jim Hogan (Medics) and the following group of N.C.O.'s: Sergeants George Orford, Max King, Joe Peters, Lorne Gass, Lem McAulay, Bob Walton, Bill Cantwell and Ernie Gorveatt, and Corporals Johnny Gallant and C. C. Gallant.

The Officers Mess staged one of its more successful parties early this week. It took the form of a dinner dance at The Charlottetown and has since been voted an outstanding do.

By the way did you notice that the medical examinations for the recruiting drive are being done by Lt. Cmdr. (Dr.) L. E. Prowse? As his assistant he has S.Q.M.S. Charlie Ryan aiding him temporarily.

ASBESTOS DISCOVERY

DEBDEPOORT, South Africa - (CP) - What is believed to be a big new asbestos field has been discovered near this town on the Bechuanaland border.

EDGEWORTH, England - (CP) - An amateur photographer, William Corfield, is making plans to brighten this Lancashire village.

down from high in the sky, watching Mrs. Redtail. But he didn't say what he hoped, for just then he saw Mrs. Redtail flying rather hastily up in the air as if she were anxious, perhaps a little afraid, certainly disturbed.

Probably this would settle the matter. Mrs. Redtail never again would feel easy now that one of those two-legged folks knew about that nest. Now they would have to look around in some other part of the Green Forest, or even go over at the foot of the Great Mountain, and go to all the work of building a wholly new nest.

Then he saw who that two-legged person was and he was less sure that they would have to build a new nest. That was Farmer Brown's boy. Yes, sir, that was Farmer Brown's boy down there, and he had known where that nest was every year since it was first built.

It was two days later that Redtail began to be really impatient. He didn't feel settled. There was no more uncomfortable feeling than that of feeling unsettled.
