Find Runaway Boys With $9,000 Roll In Jeans

Pittsburgh, March 19 (AP) — How do three kids feel when they're fancy-free and have a $9,000 roll of bills in their jeans?

Let the kids themselves tell you: Nick Palermo, 11; "Boy," it's really something. I never thought I'd had that kind of dough!

Michael Manning, 13: "I was scared. I was worried someone would hit us in the head and take the money."

Nick, the youngest of the trio, acted as spokesman: "We all played hockey from school one day not long ago and we've been getting heck from teacher ever since."

"I knew dad had some money hidden in a closet but I didn't know how much."

"I was supposed to leave the house to take my accordion lesson. I put my accordion under the bed, took the case and got the money out of the closet. Then I put the money in the case and met Mike and Paul."

The boys travelled by bus to Meadville, 40 miles south of Erie, where they stayed at a hotel.

"We got a good suite, and, boy, did we have a pillow fight!" said young Nick.

Saturday they went on to Youngstown, O., where they got a portable radio for $36, and then proceeded to Pittsburgh.

After buying shoes, shirts and pants, the boys checked in at a hotel.

They were about to go to bed, Nick said, when he turned on his new radio. The news blared forth: "Police are looking for $9,000 and three boys in Pittsburgh."

Nick said: "Boy, we got out of that hotel in a hurry. We started to walk out of town. -- A couple of cops picked us up. -- And that's that."

Officers at Central Police Station counted what remained of the money. It added up to $9,005.

Nick's father, a tavern owner, left immediately for Pittsburgh to pick up his son, the two other boys—and his money. He declared:

"I'm thankful they are okay and that I have my $9,000 left. I believe I had between $9,100 and $9,200 so the boys didn't spend too much when you come to think of it."

"One thing, though, I'm going to talk to young Nick. And then I'm going to put that money where it belongs—in the bank."

$50,000 Voted To Start Project

By ED CREAGH NEW YORK, March 19 (AP) — Somewhere in the wooded wilderness of New York State's Catskill Mountains, a small band of scientists is about to begin an experiment that may point the way to new life for vast areas of the earth.

Their immediate goal is to coax the heavens enough water to fill New York City's half-empty reservoirs, and end a shortage that threatens to bedevil the city for years to come.

But this may be only the beginning. "In a world not producing enough food, there are many places suffering from a continuous lack of moisture and rain," said a weather expert.

Opposition Would Have Crown Go To Prince Baudouin

By Alfred Cheval BRUSSELS, Belgium, March 19 (AP) — The Socialists, Belgium's second biggest party, declared today they will call waves of strikes until King Leopold abdicates.

Partisans and opponents of the exiled King exchanged rifle and pistol fire in clashes at Leuden and Erps-Que, but state police forces stopped the fights without casualties.

3 Caribbean Countries Accused Of Plotting, Ordered To Mend Ways

By NORMAN OARIGNAN WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — Five-country investigation committee asserted today that Cuba, Guatemala and the Dominican Republic were involved in plots, conspiracies and attempted invasions which have kept the Caribbean in turmoil for three years.

The committee sternly suggested that any repetition be met head-on with sanctions under terms of the Rio Hemispheric Mutual Defense Treaty.

An 18,000-word report brushed aside diplomatic niceties and recommended selection of a five-man watchdog committee to check on how faithfully the three countries live up to promises to abide by decisions reached.

The report was turned over to the Council of the Organization of American States, which made it public. The Council is the central organization of the 21 American republics.

The investigation was prompted by a complaint by Haiti that the Dominican Government participated in an unsuccessful plot last November and December against her Government.

The Dominican Republic levelled similar charges against Cuba, Guatemala and Haiti. Both Haiti and the Dominican Republic, sharing a Caribbean island, asked that the Rio Treaty be invoked.

This treaty provides for mutual assistance to keep the peace in the hemisphere.

Exasperated by several previous fruitless attempts to deal with Caribbean feuding and faced with loss of its prestige, the Council on Jan. 6 unanimously set the treaty in motion and appointed the fact-finding committee.

The fact-finding committee, appointed Jan. 6, was headed by Jose M. de Urquiza. It included Paul C. Daniels of the United States, Guillermo Gutierrez of Bolivia, Alfonso Moscoso of Ecuador and Eduardo Zuleta Angel of Colombia.
