CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER

West returned the queen of diamonds—the only play to defeat the contract. This drastic return had the intended effect. Though it appeared to sacrifice an otherwise sure trump trick, West's play revealed a sharp appreciation of the situation with which he was faced.

Suppose West had made the neutral return of the queen of hearts. Declarer could then ruff his two remaining spades in making the contract, losing in all, two spades, a diamond, and a club. Or suppose West had returned the nine of diamonds. Dummy's ten would win and South would then make the contract, losing a club and three spades.

Only the seemingly suicidal return of the queen of diamonds could—and in fact did—defeat the contract. South could now slice his cake in any way he wished—there were only eight tricks available.

If he cashed dummy's ten of diamonds, he would end with six trump tricks and two aces.

Of if South chose to ruff a spade in dummy with the ten, he would end by losing three spades, a diamond, and a club.

How can a player in West's shoes be expected to know that the superexcellent return of the diamond queen is the only play possible to bring about declarer's defeat? It is hard to say... except that dangerous situations are supposed to alert one to desperate measures.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

This hand was played in a duplicate pair game. The bidding, characteristic of tournament play, was hard-fought. West, skating on thin ice when he doubled three diamonds, was looking for the 200-number, generally a fine score in match point play.

He opened the king of hearts. Declarer won with the ace, discarding a club, and then led a spade from dummy. East played the nine, which held, and returned the jack of diamonds.

South took the jack with the ace and led back a low spade. West winning with the king. The result of the hand now hinged on West's next lead.

N.S. Strawberry Exchange Marks 40 Years In Business

BERWICK, N.S. (CP)—Since it was formed 40 years ago, the Berwick Strawberry Exchange has marketed more than $1,000,000 worth of berries. Its bad accounts in that time totalled $360.

D. L. B. Chute of Berwick, chief organizer of the non-profit exchange, was manager until retiring at the 40th annual meeting earlier this month. He retains a seat on the board of directors.

The exchange grew out of Mr. Chute's dissatisfaction with prices he was receiving for his berries during the 1918 season. He set out to establish a marketing system for his own operation.

He was so successful that within a short time he was forced to buy berries from other growers to fill orders. In 1919 the exchange was set up and Mr. Chute appointed manager. More than 35,000 quarts of berries were shipped the first year.

MARKETING ONLY
 Mr. Chute said the exchange was organized to market berries and turn the proceeds, less expenses, over to the growers. "And for 40 years that's just what has been done."

"The only capital we have is made up of the membership fee of $2 a year which is returned when the member has paid in $25," he said.

"Had we held back 10 per cent the exchange would have more than $100,000 but the growers would have that much less.

"We could have factories, freezing plants and warehouses... We might have made money or we might have become burdened with white elephants which would make our expenses so high we would not have enough left for the grower."

Gov't. Collects On Oil Leases
 OTTAWA (CP)—Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton Tuesday announced sale of oil and gas exploration leases covering 3,546,820 acres in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

He said in the Commons that all but 250,000 of the acres leased is in the southwest part of the Northwest Territories and in the southeast corner of the Yukon.

Mr. Hamilton reported some of the bids were as high as $9 an acre and that the government collected a total $6,500,000 for the nine-year leases.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's how to work it:
 A cryptogram is a message written in a code. The letters of the alphabet are arranged in a grid. Each letter is replaced by a number. The numbers are then written in a grid. The numbers are then read in a different order to reveal the message.

One letter simply stands for another. In this simple A is used for the three I's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
