Elsa Maxwell's "Hotel For Women" Girl-Glamor Hit

More fun than any Elsa Maxwell ever gave is her first movie, Elsa Maxwell's "Hotel For Women" which opens at the Prince Edward Theatre today. Elsa's the world-famous life of the party who's been everywhere, seen everything and in this production tells plenty!

Elsa says: "Take the light things seriously and the serious things lightly" and how yesterday's audience took to the smart, beautiful young things who do just that in the film! The production is jam-packed with girls and glamor; there are girls who'll go to your head, girls in love with their bosses, girls on the make for fame, girls looking for life in a penthouse, girls longing for love in a cottage, girls who want a good address and a liberal education—it's a world of girls on their own, with Elsa to guide them (and they couldn't have picked a better one).

Darryl F. Zanuck has hand-picked a stellar cast for the film, which features Ann Sothern, Linda Darnell, James Ellison, Jean Roger, Lynn Bari, June Gale, Joyce Compton, Elsa herself, John Halliday, Katharine Aldridge, Alan Dinehart and Sidney Blackmer.

The film is as wise and witty as it is glamorous, with the plenty of glamor, with much of the action set in Manhattan's smartest spots. Elsa imitatively comes across with such nifties as:

"You can't get to the top without men—the dog's—I don't care what you say!"

The screen play based on a story written by Elsa and Miss Seola Gregory Radford, one-time dialect comedian, directed the film, with Raymond Griffith associate producer.

An additional highlight of the film is Elsa's own popular song composition, "Whistle a Little Old Melody" which she sings to her own accompaniment as a feature of the film! Elsa Maxwell party she throws in the picture.
