

NEWS of the WORLD in PICTURES

Faced with the possibility of a record crop of 62,000 tons of grapes, valued at $4,000,000, Niagara peninsula grape growers fear now they won't be able to market all of it. In previous years surplus was taken over by the wineries and jam factories, which processed everything they had. Now, still laden with heavy carryovers of wine, jam, jelly and juices from 50,000 record tons harvested last year, they are not too keen to buy this year's entire crop. Instead, they are cautiously planning to buy enough to replace sales for last year, keeping their carryovers at some level. Only profitable way out for grape growers is the hope the fresh fruit market and U.S. market will take surplus off their hands. Above, Joan Corman is seen sampling grapes which are now at their peak.

RELUCTANT DRAGON — Winston Churchill, owner of one of the world's most famous faces, hates to sit for his picture. For two years our London bureau has been trying to induce him to sit for a new formal portrait. The other day he consented to "stand" for this portrait. Conservative Party leaders, wanting to present visual evidence that the 77-year-old leader was fit to assume power if the voters so choose in the Oct. 25 general election, induced him to pose. Churchill stood uneasily for two minutes on the terrace of his home at West- ham. Then he strode back into the house without a word. Judge for yourself whether he looks ready to assume the burdens of another term as prime minister.

George Spence, left, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton are two Canadians on International Joint commission of the lakes, and also would develop some 2,200,000 horsepower of hydro-electric energy in the international rapids sections of the St. Lawrence river. The navigation scheme would cost the federal government some $300,000,000 beyond what it now has put into canal and channel system, assuming it were to bear the whole burden. The 2,200,000-horsepower development to be handled jointly by the province of Ontario and the state of New York would cost each about $200,000,000. Ontario and New York have been ready to go ahead with this, but up until recently President Truman has been opposed to letting New York handle the seaway end, holding out for a joint Canadian-U.S. project all the way through.

Two plus two plus two adds up to quite a family, as John D. Gulley, former mathematics teacher, has good reason to know. Now a civilian employee at air force base in San Antonio, Texas, Gulley is father of three sets of twins, all boys. Mathematically, this makes his family, consisting of Mrs. Gulley, one-year-old David and Paul, centre; eight-year-old Daniel and Donald, rear; Gerald, left, and four-year-old Carl, right, one in a million or more.

Iranian troops from all surrounding provinces are reported toward the oil port of Abadan to back up Iran's seizure of the huge British-owned refinery in Teheran. Iran seized the refinery in a surprise, bloodless operation while off-shore the 8,000-ton British cruiser Maritius waited, giving no sign of opposing action. In view of threats that England may use military force to protect her property and personnel, Iran has prepared defence measures in Abadan to meet action.

SORROW AND SUPPLICATION — A Korean widow bows over the grave of her late husband while her daughters bow in tearful prayer after having placed offerings of food at the burial place. The scene is typical of Korean cemeteries, where at least once each month relatives gather to pay respect to their dead.

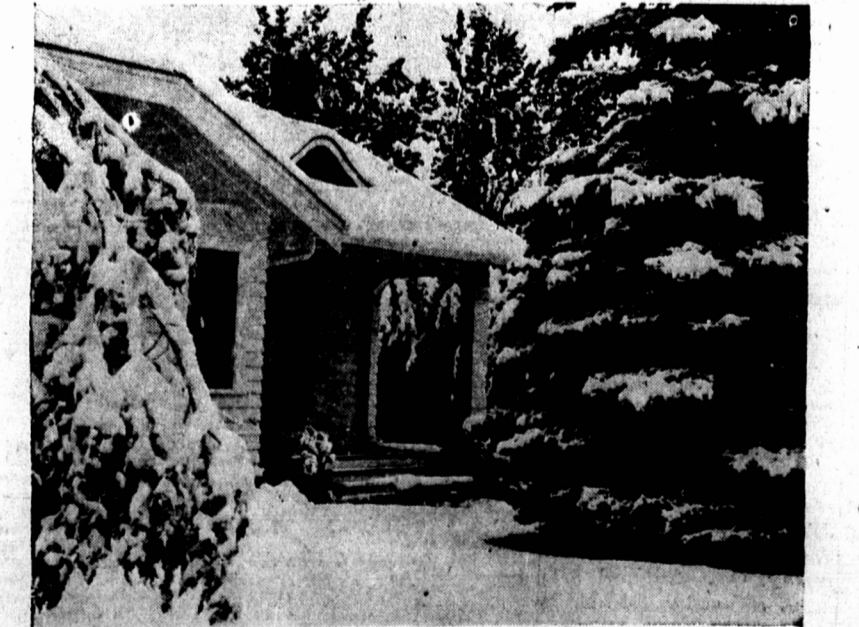

Death claimed lives of these three children, Virginia, Gwen and Martin LaForme who were burned to death in their home on Six Nations Indian reserve near Hagersville, Ont. It is believed an overheated stove in the kitchen started blaze as they lay sleeping along with their mother in early hours of the morning. Heroic attempt by Mrs. LaForme to save children resulted in major burns to her body.

ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY PROJECT IS SEEN AS INVESTMENT IN FUTURE OF CANADA.

Power dam on St. Lawrence waterway at Barnhart Island will look like this.

Winter descended in full force on the prairie provinces depositing eight inches of snow in many places. The owner of this home in Lethbridge, Alta.—the city which boasts the most sunshine of any in Canada—anticipates his first seasonal workout with a snowshovel to clear a path to the road.

A preview of things to come for motorists in the rest of Canada is this shot of an Edmonton motorist clearing his windshield of snow.
