

Sheri Bond

Sheri Bond is running for Vice President External and she says she's just "the Bond the Student Union needs."

Sheri's been on the Student Union Council for two years, first as the Freshman Rep, then as Education Rep. She was a DJ on CIMN for a year, has worked on various Student Union committees including the Orientation and Winter Carnival committees, has sat on the Food Committee, and this year is co-editor of the UPEI yearbook.

Her perception of VP External duties includes organizing Fan Vans, overseeing the yearbook, newspaper, and radio station operations, taking care of off-campus advertising for UPEI events, sitting on committees such as the Selection Board, and "working with the three other execs to run a smooth Union."

Plans for next year if she's elected?

Sheri wants to have next year's editors, photographers and radio station manager hired by the end of this year so that they can start work September 1 and do a better job of explaining to Orientation-dazed freshmen the many opportunities open to them.

She feels that SU Council should become involved in recruitment tactics, and will speak further on getting students involved during the speeches on Monday.

She also believes that, while a business-like approach by the executive means the students can have on-campus employment as CP's or bartenders, the current emphasis on making money needs some refinement.

David Doiron

David Doiron is also running for Vice-President External. One of his main qualifications?

"I know what's going on and what I'm supposed to be doing."

He's also worked on both the radio station and the newspaper, as well as the Orientation, Fall Fest, Winter Carnival, and Social Committees, and has been "really involved all year."

He says the VP External is supposed to oversee the newspaper, radio station and yearbook, and look after any needs students express. While the VP External is supposed to be looking after off-campus things which are relevant to students, David feels the job could be widened to help the student body more actively.

If he's elected, David will explore the possibility of 24-hour broadcasting for CIMN, and suggests a greater number of general meetings. He'd like a location for the assemblies other than the library lounge, though, and wants to see them in the Duffy Amphitheatre, perhaps, so that only those who want to come and have input will do so.

He wants students to feel free to drop by the Barn to talk at any time, believing this will greatly improve the quality of student representation.

One of David's vows if students choose him on March 7?

"I'm going to make sure that we get all that CFS has promised us."

Lydia MacLaren

Lydia MacLaren, candidate for VP External, has much experience working with student groups.

In high school, Lydia was secretary-treasurer of the Girl's Athletic Council, and in her senior year she was the vice-president of the Student Council.

While at UPEI, MacLaren has been active in the food committee and for the past year and a half has been a receptionist at the Student Union office, where she feels she has absorbed the operations of the SU and all that it is affiliated with.

Lydia feels that this year VP External did a good job but there is still room for improvement.

VP External's duties consist of three main concerns: The Netted Gem; CIMN; and the university's yearbook.

Lydia would like to see more campus news and humour incorporated in our newspaper; a diversity in the radio's format, extension of hours and a greater variety in music; vans going off Island on weekends when demand is high, not necessarily for sports events; a used book sale initiated. She's also like to keep students informed of on/off campus activities through student assemblies and initiate events/activities that would have mass campus appeal.

MacLaren is also very interest in promoting our school off-campus to other universities and communities.

Lydia, is stressing how she views work of this type as a enjoyable experience, admitted that during high school a few of her Student Council meetings were held at a drive-in.

In her view, student politics should be fun for all involved.

Les Smith

Another vice President External hopeful is Les Smith, a third year Business major from Rocky Point, P.E.I. who thinks that this year's executive is doing a fine job with the SU and that he could "run it just as well".

In the last year, as president of the Marian Hall house executive, Les says he's learned how to talk to students and get their ideas, and now says, "I'm enjoying being involved."

Also, he's just been appointed to a SU committee to study and recommend policies for the Netted Gem.

He thinks a big part of the job lies in finding responsible people to work on the yearbook, CIMN, and the newspaper, and then making sure they do their jobs.

He's also interested in improving out-of-province Fan Vans, starting a winter service from UPEI to the Forum for hockey games, and finding ways to deal with complaints from students and get results.

One of his projects, if elected, will be to explore the possibility of bringing back a student rate with some local taxi companies, a service which was operating a few years ago.

Les aims to improve participation by concentrating on the freshmen next year, getting them more involved and meeting more people. He plans to do this through doing a lot of legwork, talking to freshmen, and asking around to find out people's interests.

Les Smith is asking students to give him a chance to prove that he can do the job of VP External.

EDAMania hits Canada

By John Dougan

For those of you who are interested in answering the question: "What makes an artistic endeavour great?", there is a dance group, calling itself EDAM which is planning a tour of Atlantic Canada.

After viewing one of its performances, one might just come a littler closer to answering the question.

In a recent interview at the Montage Dance Studio, it was learned that EDAM, Experimental Dance and Music, was formed in 1983 and tries to incorporate the strengths of a traditional dance company while allowing for freedom and improvisation.

The dancers' skills include contemporary dance, ballet, and contact improvisation, which they use to experiment in both dance and music.

The show they plan to perform on their tour is called "Run Raw", in which they attempt to produce, through dance, the excitement we feel when watching competitive sport.

The dancers do try to run themselves raw by interpreting different sports, such as football, running, and boxing, into dance. They finally end crashed in exhausted heal.

In spite of this grand finale, which many may deem inappropriate, they are able

Non-smoker's vengeance punished

TORONTO (CUP) — A student at University College has been put on probation for grabbing a cigarette out of the hand of another student.

Rob Macauley, a renowned anti-smoker at the college, was put on probation after Amy Becker complained to the Dean of Men about the incident, which took place in a residence common room with a "No Smoking" sign.

Macauley had asked Becker to put out the cigarette, but she told him to "fuck off" and continued to smoke. Macauley took hold of her wrist and removed the butt.

to use their energy and dance skills to evoke the aura of competitive sport.

This dance group has received a favorable response in other provinces across Canada, but it remains to be seen whether or not P.E.I. is ready for it.

Under probation, the resident is warned that any violation of the residence code of behaviour may mean immediate expulsion.

Macauley said he will appeal the decision, arguing he did not "twist, squeeze, push or pull," Becker.

Becker said she thinks probation is too lenient.

The incident has polarized students at the college. One witness said if Becker was a man, "Macauley would not have dared to act."

Another student said he supported Macauley in principle, but not the act, even though it is "about time non-smokers asserted their rights."

What should the VP Internal be like?

Many people have a misconception about what the VP Internal of the Student Union should be like. Some say he should be intelligent, hard-nosed, business-minded, and experienced. Some say he should be a good partier, an average studier, and a little bit crazy.

When it comes right down to it ... a great VP Internal has to be a combination of both.

Marc Doiron is the great combination. Executive training in the Junior Chamber of Commerce and university studies have given him the know-how to run the business side of VP Internal. Heavy participation on social committees, sub-organizations, and just old-fashioned partying have given him the capability to know what you, the student want for social events and activities at the Barn.

He won't just talk about it, he'll do it; so on March 7
