Hindu Prince Spotted Fake
 NEULLY, Paris, Oct. 5.—"He cats it alive, a real fire-eater from India, a real Hindu," shouted the speller in front of his ballyhoo at the Neully fair some nights ago. "If you don't believe he is a real Hindu speak to him in his own language and he will answer you."

A distinguished looking gentleman stepped up and commenced addressing the fire-eater in Hindi. The latter was silent and perplexed. The dark stranger spoke to the ballyhoo man in all the known dialects in India but still the latter remained silent.

"You're not a Hindu," shouted the speller to the stranger, "you're not talking Hindi but gibberish, if you're a Hindu why don't you eat a little of this fire?"

"I can't just now, I am on a diet," replied the Prince of Kapurthla—for it was the genial Hindu prince seeing the sights. The Prince has been quite a figure around Paris and Dauville this season. He reached the third round in the mixed doubles, teamed with the Princess in the world's hardcourt tennis championships at Stain Cloud.

LABOR LEADERS LETTING CONTROL OVER JOBS

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Lloyd George linked the Irish situation and unemployment crisis as twin issues in a speech delivered at Inverness today.

The Premier referred to the coming Peace Conference only in passing, but delivered a significant expression that "success of the conference depends upon the delegates not trying to reconcile extremists, but trusting to the common sense of their respective peoples."

Regarding unemployment he hinted that he would take up the problem not only from the standpoint of England but in its international aspect before returning to London.

Govt. Relief Unstinted

"There has been more Government relief for unemployment in the last two years," he said "than ever before in the history of England or any other nation. The present situation has arisen through the shattering of world trade and the world's credits. Nations have mortgaged their resources and pledged their future, and the result has been the impoverishment of traders, workers, investors and everybody dependent upon them."

British credit, the Premier declared, is infinitely higher than that of other European belligerents. "No one in Great Britain will be allowed to starve as long as there is a crumb in the national cupboard," he continued. "The world needs most of all an atmosphere of peace and economy. There must be a co-operation of all classes, or otherwise things will proceed from crisis to disaster."

In a speech before the London County Council, Harry Gosling, president of the Transport Workers' Federation, informed the Metropolitan Government that "labor leaders are on the brink, losing their control over an employed army unless the question was settled immediately there is bound to be a row, not only in London but throughout the country."

STEEL WAGES CUT AGAIN.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Under the sliding scale adopted by a board of conciliation and arbitration, affecting the Manufactured Iron and Steel Trade of North England wages will be reduced 25 per cent. immediately, making total reductions since January of 132 1/2 per cent.

The present wage scale is 97 1/2 per cent. above the pre-war scale.

The Villiers smelter works at Swansea has re-opened and is the only works in South Wales now operating. The management announced that wage reductions enabled the plant to resume operations.

IT IS THE HIGH AVERAGE THAT COUNTS

President Lowden of the American Holstein Association very wisely remarks to the effect that he would rather see 1000 cows under average conditions produce 15 pounds of butter in a week than to show one that can produce 40 pounds. As Hoard's Dairyman says there is no doubt but that we have laid too much emphasis on the exceptional cow. It is what the average of the breed will do that determines its contribution to the dairy industry.—Helen S. K. Willcox.

PESSIMISTIC VIEW AS TO EUROPE.

William L. Wood, head of the American Woollen Company, returned after several months in England, Scotland, Holland and France full of dire predictions for the future of the British Isles. He said unemployment in England and Scotland is greater than ever in their history and that lack of employment does not seem to be particularly worrying the majority of the unemployed. He saw as England's only hope a great national "jolt" which he believed might bring the people to their senses. The peasants of France with their historic industry and thrift will save France, Mr. Wood said. Otherwise she is in as bad a fix as England, according to Mr. Wood.

His only word of cheer from across the Atlantic was the good news from Germany which, he said, a German manufacturer flew across the English channel to deliver to him. "This man, said Mr. Wood, declared Germany today is the leading country of Europe in industry and progress toward a return to sound industrial conditions, that smoke is pouring from all her chimneys and everybody is working at top speed.

National wealth and prosperity is a matter of national production. If Germany continues her present policy of hard work, and no doubt she will, and other nations loaf along on the oars of victory, history may raise in still another form the question as to who won the great war.

While a judge was strolling round the grounds of a friend he chanced upon an under-gardener engaged in a violent altercation with his wife.

"Come, come!" exclaimed he, "this won't do—this quarrel must cease at once! Tell me the cause of your dispute; I may be able to settle it for you."

The husband awkwardly doffing his cap to the judge, replied: "This ain't no dispute, sir!"

"No dispute!" reiterated the judge, perplexed.

"No, sir!" rejoined the gardener convincingly. "It ain't no dispute! I've just been paid my wages. My wife thinks she is going to get them, and I know she ain't. No dispute at all, sir!"

Italy in State of Ferment And Wild Disorder

MILAN, Oct. 4.—Italy, today, is in a state of ferment. In Rome, cavalry, infantry, and other arms of the service, have been in evidence throughout the city. At Modena, near Bologna, the police revolted and paraded the city shouting "down with officers." Two members of Parliament have been shot and in one locality seven men have been killed and about 40 wounded.

The cause of the trouble is the vexation of the Fascisti, or the law-loving youth of Italy, the Socialists and the anarchists with each other. The two latter are now almost entirely opposed to one another, and the Fascisti are against them both.

from Russia. "We consider that American relief probably will cost $180,000,000," said Mr. Johnson, "but it is imperative that the American people lend aid quickly, as otherwise the hunger maddened drifters will sweep westward in Russia I saw two classes of starving people, those who had their life and spirit crushed out of them by the steady process of under nourishment, and those who had managed to find food enough to keep up their strength and are prepared to fight rather than to succumb to the famine."

"Many of these no doubt have swelled the guerilla bands still inhabiting the Caucasus—remnants of the forces abandoned by Wrangle, Demetrius and Kaitchak—and it is this last class of homeless Russians that Europe may be called upon to deal with at first hand unless something is done immediately.

Paris, Oct. 4.—Albert A. Johnson, director of the New York State Institute, who was a member of the Near East Relief Commission, and one of a commission appointed by Secretary Hoover to investigate conditions in Russia, intends to ask the United States Congress to take immediate steps to send into Russia 1,000,000 tons of grain and seed grain for planting as the sole solution of Russia's famine problem.

Mr. Johnson today confirmed the tales of suffering as described by the New York Herald correspondent, who has just returned
