Teacher—Sally Jones, have you done that sum I set you?
Sally—No, thir, I can't do it.
Teacher—Cant do it! I am ashamed of you. Why at your age I could do a y sum you set me.

In attempting to carve a fowl one day, a gentleman found considerable difficulty in separating its joints, and exclaimed against the man who sold him an old hen for a young chicken.

A gentleman of African extraction, who used to display his grinning combination of ivory and ebony about the streets of Indianapolis, was asked by a white gentleman:

"How old are you, sam?"
"Twenty-five, massa," was the reply; "but if you counts up de fun I see seen, jest call me seventy-five."

The following verbatim et literatum was lately received by one of the undertakers of New York, from an afflicted widower: "Mr. Gemimery, my wife is dede, and wants to be buried. Dig a grav for her, and she shall cum to be buried tomorrer at wonner cloke; you noos war to digg it bi mi too uther wifes; let it be deap."

An absent-minded professor in going out of the gateway of his college ran against a cow. In the confusion of the moment he raised his hat and exclaimed: "I beg your pardon, madam." Soon after he stumbled against a lady in the street; in sudden recollection of his former mishap, he called out: "Is that you again, you brute?"

Mrs. Partingotn wished to purchase a tooth brush. "Do you use Brown's tooth brush?" enquired the gentlemanly druggist to whom she applied. "No, sir!" exclaimed the old lady indignantly, "I never use any body tooth-brush but my own! Brown's tooth-brush, indeed! How would Brown like to use mine, I should like to know."

Douglas Jerrold once said to an ardent young gentleman who was anxious to see himself in print: "Be advised by me, young man, don't take down the shutters before there is something into the window."

An eccentric beggar thus laconically addressed a lady: "Will you, madam, give me a drink of water, for I am so hungry, I don't know where to stay to-night?" We doubt whether more meaning could be embodied in so few words.

A physician dislikes to meet a healthy rnegd "never say die" looking sort of man, who evidently "throws physic to the dogs," and would be right glad to toss the doctor after it.

"Do you see that fellow lounging there doing nothing?" said Owens to Jenkins. "How does he live? by his wits?" "Oh no; he's a cannibal." "A cannibal!" "Yes, a cannibal—he lives on other people."

Never cheer your words. Open the mouth and let the voice come out. A student, once asked, "Can virchue fortichude, gratichude, or quiechude, dwell with a man who is a stranger to rectichude?"

"Paddy, where's the whisky I gave you to clean the windows with?"
"Och, master, I just drank it; and I thought if I breathed on the glass it would be all the same."

"Don't trouble yourself to stretch your mouth any wider," said a dentist to a man who was extending his jaw frightfully; "I intend to stand outside to draw your tooth."

Agricultural.

Too Much Land.

We have more than once called the attention of our readers to the great evil, which is so common, of attempting to cultivate too much land, by which farmers fail to cultivate any properly, and so lose a great part of their labor as well as of the profits of farming.

But whatever cause leads to the practice of occupying a large extent of ground without thoroughly cultivating it, the practice is a great mistake which ought to be corrected. It would be far better for the farmers generally, to divide up their farms, selling or renting a portion, and then to concentrate all their energies of planning and laboring, and all their expense of manure and other outlays upon the remainder.

We have never echoed the common cry that ten acres are enough for any farmer to cultivate; they do not begin to be enough for general farming; but the principle is undoubtedly true that it is far better to cultivate ten acres thoroughly than to scratch over and manure sparsely ten times that amount.

These are old thoughts often before expressed, but we should be glad if they could be more deeply impressed upon the minds of those to whom they apply.—N. Y. Observer.

Thorough Cultivation.

The probability is that if the exact truth could be ascertained, we should find that quite one-sixth of the crop capacity of our cultivated fields everywhere, is annually thrown away in clovers.

Some surly old cynic, a great many years, sneerly applied to us delvers in the dirt the ill-natured epithet of "clod-hoppers." Well, the old vinegar-cruct, whoever he might have been, was not so wide of the truth after all. There are more clod-hoppers among farmers than gentlemen among cynics.

Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of highest commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this manner "what we do know," after thirty years' experience, and pledge our reputation for the fulfillment of what we here declare. This valuable preparation is the prescription of one of the most experienced and skillful nurses in New England, and has been used with never failing success in thousands of cases. It not only relieves the child from pain but invigorates the stomach and bowels, corrects acidity, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. It will almost instantly relieve GRIPING IN THE BOWELS, AND WIND COLIC, and overcome convulsions, which, if not speedily remedied, end in death. We believe it the best and surest remedy in the world, in all cases of Dysentery and Diarrhea in Children, whether it arises from teething, or from any other cause. We would say to every mother who has a child suffering from any of the foregoing complaints—do not let your prejudices, nor the prejudices of others, stand between your suffering child and the relief that will be sure—yes, absolutely sure—to follow the use of this medicine, if timely used.
